Resolved, That the Standing Rules of the Senate of the forty-fourth session of the Legislature of the State of California be and they are hereby adopted as the temporary rules of the Senate of the forty-fifth session, excepting Rule S. and amending Rule 1 to read as follows:

"The sessions of the Senate shall be daily, Sundays excepted, beginning at ten o'clock a. m. unless otherwise ordered by vote of the Senate."

Resolution read, and on motion of Senator Inman adopted.

TEMPORARY RULES OF THE SENATE.

Convening and Order of Business—Hour of Meeting.

1. The sessions of the Senate shall be daily, Sundays excepted, beginning at ten o'clock a.m. unless otherwise ordered by vote of the Senate.

Calling to Order.

2. The President, President pro tempore, or senior member present, shall call the Senate to order at the hour stated, and if a quorum be present proceed with the order of business.

Order of Business.

3. The order of business:

1. Roll Call.
2. Prayer by the Chaplain.
3. Reading and Approval of the Journal of the Preceding Day.
4. Presentation of Petitions.
5. Messages from the Governor.
6. Messages from the Assembly.
7. Reports of Standing Committees.
8. Reports of Select Committees.
9. Motions, Resolutions and Notices.
10. Introduction, First Reading, and Reference of Bills.
11. Consideration of Daily File.
12. Unfinished Business.
13. Special Orders of the Day.
14. Announcement of Committee Meetings.
15. Adjournment.

Presiding Officers of the Senate—The President.

4. The rooms, passages, and buildings set apart for the use of the Senate shall be under the control and direction of the President of the Senate, and he shall have the control and direction of the journals, papers, and bills of the Senate. The President shall preside over the sessions of the Senate. He shall see that all officers of the Senate perform their respective duties, and may assign places to properly accredited newspaper representatives.

The President Pro Tempore.

5. The President pro tempore shall, in the absence of the President, take the chair and call the Senate to order at the hour of the meetings of the Senate, and have the same power as the President; but the President pro tempore shall vote only as any other member of the Senate.

Presiding by Senators.

6. The President or President pro tempore, in the absence of the President, shall have the right to name any Senator to perform the duties of the chair, who shall be vested, during such time, with all the powers of the President; but such substitute shall not lose the right of voting on any question while so presiding.

Committees of the Senate—Appointment of Committees.

7. All standing committees of the Senate shall be named by the President of the Senate unless otherwise ordered, and the first named shall be the chairman thereof. All other committees shall be appointed in such manner as the Senate shall determine.

Schedules for Committee Meetings.

9. The President shall be empowered to propose to the Senate such schedules for regular meetings of the standing committees as shall permit a full attendance of their members without conflict of committee engagements.

Quorum of Standing Committees.

10. Each standing committee shall determine (a) its own quorum, and (b) the number of votes necessary to take any action upon any bill, resolution, or other matter referred to it.

The vote by the number of ayes and noes on each bill reported back on all committee reports shall be noted in such reports and recorded in the Journal. When a committee report is signed out, the Journal shall note such fact.

No Committee Expenditures Permitted.

11. No member of any committee shall except by resolution of the Senate be permitted to incur any expense by visiting any part of the State on official business, except that the chairman of the Committee on Finance shall, during the Constitutional Recess, be permitted to visit State institutions for which appropriations are asked, and shall be allowed his actual expenses while on such business.

Special Duties of Certain Committees—Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment.

12. All Senate bills, constitutional amendments, and joint or concurrent resolutions shall be engrossed before final action is taken on them in the Senate. The indications of new matter, omissions, or amendments appearing upon the printed bill shall be omitted from the engrossed copy of the bill. All such bills, amendments, and resolutions, after being engrossed, in pursuance of the order of the Senate, shall be carefully examined and reported back by the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment; the engrossed copy to be transmitted to the Assembly with proper endorsements, and the original retained by the Senate. It shall be in order for the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment to report at any time.

Engrossing and Enrolling Bills.

13. All bills ordered engrossed shall be delivered by the Secretary of the Senate to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment or to the clerk of that committee and a receipt in writing taken therefor; and all said bills shall be engrossed in the order of their receipt by that committee or its clerk. All Senate bills shall, after their final passage by, and receipt from the Assembly, be delivered by the Secretary of the Senate in the order of their receipt from the Assembly, to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment or its clerk and a receipt in writing taken therefor; and said bills shall be enrolled in the order of their receipt from the Secretary of the Senate.

Committee on Rules.

14. The Committee on Rules shall have the general duty of proposing or of presenting recommendations as to the Standing Rules of the Senate. The President pro tempore shall be the chairman of this committee, and the President shall be an ex officio nonvoting member. When executive communication of nominations shall be sent by the Governor to the Senate for their confirmation, the same shall be referred to the Committee on Rules, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate, which motion shall be determined without debate.

Committee on Contingent Expenses.

15. No claim shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate unless the same shall have been referred to and reported on by the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Committee on Revision and Printing.

16. The Committee on Revision and Printing shall have general charge of matters connected with all printing done for the Senate. It shall have the specific duties prescribed for it in the Joint Rules of Senate and Assembly.

Other Senate Officers—Secretary of the Senate.

17. 1. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Senate to attend every session call the roll, read all bills, amendments, resolutions, and all papers ordered read by the Senate or the presiding officer.

2. To superintend all copying and work to be done for the Senate. To have supervision over all attaches and employees of the Senate. To assign, reassign or transfer all attaches or employees to their respective duties. To certify to and transmit to the Assembly all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, constitutional amendments and papers requiring the concurrence of the Assembly, immediately after their passage or adoption by the Senate.

3. To keep a correct Journal of the proceedings of the Senate.

4. To notify the Assembly of the action by the Senate on all matters originating in the Assembly, and requiring action on the part of the Senate.

5. To permit no papers or records belonging to the Senate to be taken out of its custody otherwise than in the regular course of business.

Custody of Bills and Papers.

18. The Secretary of the Senate shall not permit any records or papers to be taken from the desk, or out of his custody, by any person except a chairman of a committee; but he shall deliver any bill or paper to be printed to the Superintendent of State Printing, and all bills ordered engrossed or enrolled to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment, and take receipts therefor.

Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate.

19. A Sergeant-at-Arms shall be elected, to hold his office during the pleasure of the Senate, whose duty it shall be to attend the Senate during all of its sittings, to execute the commands of the Senate from time to time, together with all such process issued by authority thereof, as shall be directed to him by the President. The Sergeant-at-Arms is authorized to arrest for contempt all persons outside the bar, or in the gallery, found in loud conversation, or otherwise making a noise to the disturbance of the Senate. The actual expenses of the Sergeant-at-Arms for every arrest, for each day's custody and release, and the traveling expenses for himself and special messenger going and returning shall be paid out of the contingent fund, and no other fees shall be paid him beyond his per diem. It shall also be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to keep the accounts for pay and mileage of Senators.

Distribution of Printed Matter.

20. The Sergeant-at-Arms shall place copies of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, constitutional amendments, and journals and histories, when printed, on the desks of Senators, at least one hour previous to the opening of session.

Preparation and Introduction of Bills—Introduction and First Reading.

21. Any Senator desiring to introduce a bill shall rise in his seat and address the President, and upon being recognized shall present the same. The title shall be announced by the Secretary, the bill shall be read the first time and thereupon referred by the President to a standing committee.

Joint and Concurrent Resolutions and Constitutional Amendments.

22. Joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall be treated the same as bills; provided, that they shall have but one reading, which reading shall occur after they have been reported by committee.

Introduction of Bills by a Committee.

23. Any committee may introduce a bill germane to any subject within the proper consideration of such committee, whereupon the bill shall immediately be read the first time, ordered to print and placed upon the second-reading file.

Introduction of Bills after the Constitutional Recess.

24. The Committee on Rules shall constitute a standing committee on introduction of bills to serve after the constitutional recess. All motions for leave to introduce bills after the constitutional recess shall be sent to the desk in writing, under the order of "Introduction of Bills." The motion shall give the title of the bill and shall be accompanied by the bill. The bill shall thereupon be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills.

The committee shall examine bills referred to it with particular reference to the question as to whether there is already any bill in either house of the same character which might be amended to effect the result sought and generally as to the advisability of introducing the measure.

No bill shall be introduced without the consent of three-fourths of the members after report thereupon by the Committee on Introduction of Bills, nor shall more than two bills be introduced by any one member after the constitutional recess.

Joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall not be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills, and shall not require a vote to authorize their introduction, nor shall the number to be introduced by any one member be limited.

Bills in Committees—Reference of Senate Bills.

25. At the time of introduction the President shall first indicate to what committee a bill or resolution ought to be referred, and it shall be so referred, unless upon a motion, without debate, the Senate by a majority vote refer it to some other committee. No debate shall be allowed on any motion to refer a bill or resolution to a committee.

Order of Reference.

26. When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made to refer any subject and a different committee shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order:

1. The Committee of the Whole Senate.
2. A Standing Committee.
3. A Select Committee.

Reference with Special Instructions.

27. No amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of such bill, to move its reference to a select committee under special instructions to amend.

Reference of Assembly Bills.

28. When an Assembly bill has been received by the Senate, with a message announcing that it has passed the Assembly, such bill shall be read the first time and be referred by the President to a standing committee; provided, however, that when an Assembly bill is received, the text of which is stated by a member to be identical with that of a Senate bill which has already been considered and reported by a standing committee of the Senate, such Assembly bill shall be referred to the Committee on Engraving and Enrollment for comparison, which committee shall report without delay, whether or not such bill is identical with the Senate bill. If reported identical, such Assembly bill shall be substituted for the Senate bill, shall take its place on the second-reading file and be considered as having received the same committee recommendation as the Senate bill; provided, that the fact that the bills are identical shall be entered in the Journal. Such Senate bill shall thereupon be placed upon the file of unfinished business.

Reference of Appropriation Bills.

29. All bills appropriating money from any fund shall be referred to the Committee on Finance before being read the second time. Concurrent resolutions for adjournment sine die shall in all cases whether originating in the Senate or coming from the Assembly be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Notice to Author of Bill.

30. The chairman or clerk of each committee of the Senate shall notify the author of any bill or resolution pending before such committee of the hour and place of hearing or acting upon such bill or proceeding.

Committee Amendments to Bills.

31. When amendments to a bill are reported by a committee, the clerk of such committee shall prepare three copies of each amendment, one to go with the bill to the Superintendent of State Printing, one to the Minute Clerk, and one to the Secretary of the Senate.

Reports of Committees.

32. All committees shall act upon bills referred to them as soon as practicable, and when acted upon each bill shall be reported back to the Senate forthwith, and the chairman of each committee is charged with the observance of this rule; provided, that the Senate may at any time, by a majority vote, recall a bill from any committee.

Order of Considering Bills—Order of Making File.

33. When bills are reported from committees they shall be placed upon the General File, to be kept by the Secretary as follows: All bills when reported to the Senate by the committees shall be placed at the foot of the second-reading file, in the order in which the reports are made, and after the second reading they shall be placed at the foot of the third-reading file, in the order of reading, and precedence shall be given in the consideration of bills in the following order: Second-reading file and third-reading file, unless otherwise ordered by unanimous consent or by a two-thirds vote of the Senate. The bills upon third reading shall be considered in the order in which they appear upon the file, unless otherwise ordered by unanimous consent or by vote of majority of the members present; such vote to be taken by roll call; provided, that if a bill is passed on file for any reason, other than absence of the author by leave of the Senate, note of the fact shall be made in the General File, and when passed on file a second time, the bill shall be ordered at the foot of the file, and notice of the fact of the bill having been passed on file prior to the order placing it at the foot of the file shall be omitted from the General File.

The General File.

34. The General File shall be the special order for each day between such hours as the Senate may determine, unless sooner disposed of; but no bill shall lose its place upon the file by expiration of the time or by adjournment of the Senate while it is under consideration.

Special Order.

35. Any subject may, by vote of a majority of those voting, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate.

Three Readings of Bills.

36. Every bill shall be read on three several days previous to its passage (unless in case of urgency, two-thirds of the membership of the Senate in which it is being considered shall by vote of the ayes and noes dispense with this provision).

Ordering Bills to Third Reading.

37. After being read the second time bills shall be ordered by the President to third reading (or, in the case of Senate bills, to engrossment and third reading). When any member makes objection to any bill thus being ordered to third reading, the final question for such bill shall be, "Shall the bill be ordered to third reading?"

Bills Considered During Last Seven Days.

38. No Senate bill shall be passed by the Senate within seven days of the time set for adjournment sine die of the two houses of the Legislature unless permission to vote on such a bill be granted by a three-fourths vote of the entire membership of the Senate, voting by roll-call.

Questions and Motions—Precedence of Motions During Debate

39. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but the following privileged questions, which shall have precedence in the following order:

1. To adjourn.
2. For a call of the Senate.
3. To lay on the table.
4. To postpone to a day certain.
5. To commit.
6. To amend.
7. To postpone indefinitely.

Provided, however, that during a call of the Senate, it may consider and transact any matter or business that the Senators then present shall unanimously decide to consider, but no call of the Senate shall be had, during a call of the Senate, on any matter so taken up or considered while the Senate is under call. When a call of the Senate is ordered, pending the completion of a roll call, the pending roll call shall become unfinished business the consideration of which shall be continued until further proceedings under the call of the Senate are dispensed with, when it will forthwith become the order of business before the Senate.

Amendment or Division of Question.

40. An amendment may be laid on the table without prejudice to the bill. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

If the question in debate contains several propositions, any Senator may have the same divided; except a motion to strike out and insert shall not be divided. The rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition, nor shall it prevent a motion to simply strike out, nor shall the rejection of a motion to strike out prevent a motion to strike out and insert; but pending a motion to strike out and insert, the part to be stricken out and the part to be inserted shall each be regarded, for the purpose of amendment, as a question. Motions to amend the part to be stricken out shall have precedence.

Restrictions as to Amendments.

41. A substitute or amendment must relate to the same subject as the original bill, resolution or constitutional amendment under consideration.

Vote Required for Amendments.

42. A constitutional amendment or bill requiring a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to the Senate for final adoption or passage may be amended by a majority of those voting.

Procedure of Debate—Seconding and Announcement of Motion.

43. No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President or any Senator, and read by the Secretary, before the same shall be debated.

Regulation as to Speaking.

44. 1. When a Senator desires to address the Senate he shall rise in his place, address the President, and when recognized he shall proceed to speak.

2. No Senator shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill, without leave; and Senators who have once spoken shall not again be entitled to the floor (except for explanation) so long as any Senator who has not spoken desires to speak.

3. No Senator shall be interrupted when speaking, and no question shall be asked him except those through the presiding officer.

4. The author of a bill, motion, or resolution shall have the privilege of closing the debate.

Securing of the Floor.

45. When two or more Senators arise at the same time to address the Senate, the presiding officer shall designate the Senator who is entitled to the floor.

Order in Debate.

46. When a Senator shall be called to order he shall sit down until the President shall have determined whether he is in order or not; and every question of order shall be decided by the President, subject to an appeal to the Senate by any Senator. If a Senator be called to order for words spoken, the objectionable language shall immediately be taken down in writing by the Secretary of the Senate.

The Previous Question.

47. The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall be admitted only when demanded by a majority of the Senators present upon division; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate except that the author of the bill or the amendments shall have the right to close, and the question under discussion shall thereupon be immediately put to a vote. On a motion for the previous question prior to a vote being taken by the Senate, a call of the Senate shall be in order.

Executive Session.

48. When a motion is adopted to close the doors of the Senate, on the discussion of any business, which may, in the opinion of the Senate, require an executive session, the President shall require all persons, except the Senators, President of the Senate, Secretary, Minute Clerk, and Sergeant-at-Arms, to withdraw, and during the discussion of said business the doors shall remain closed. Every Senator and officer present shall keep secret all matters and proceedings concerning which secrecy shall be enjoined by order of the Senate.

Voting by Senate—Calling Ayes and Noes.

49. When the ayes and noes shall be called for by three members present, every member within the bar of the Senate at the time the question was put shall declare openly, and without debate, assent or dissent to the question. In taking the ayes and noes, and upon the call of the Senate, the names of the Senators shall be taken alphabetically. When the ayes and noes shall be taken upon any question in pursuance of this rule, no Senator shall be permitted, under any circumstances whatever, to vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

Excuse From Voting.

50. When a Senator declines to vote on a call of his name he shall be required to assign his reasons therefor, and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the Senate: "Shall the Senator, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which shall be decided without debate. And these proceedings shall be had after the roll call and before the result is announced, and any further proceedings in reference thereto shall be after such announcement.

Reconsideration of Vote.

51. On the day succeeding that on which a final vote on any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment has been taken, said vote may be reconsidered on motion of any Senator; provided, notice of intention to move such reconsideration shall have been given on the day on which such final vote was taken, by a Senator voting with the prevailing side; and it shall not be in order to reconsider on the day on which such final vote was taken. Said motion for reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn. It shall require twenty-one votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, has been passed or defeated, fourteen votes to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been passed, and twenty-seven votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been defeated. Notice of reconsideration of the vote by which a Senate bill was passed, or a Senate joint resolution, Senate concurrent resolution or Senate constitutional amendment adopted, shall not be in order on or after the eighth day preceding the last day of the session. No notice of reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day of the session.

When Bill Is Held for Reconsideration.

52. If a Senator gives notice that he intends to move a reconsideration, the Secretary shall not transmit the bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment to the Assembly till the reconsideration is disposed of, or the time for moving the same has expired, unless the bill or resolution has already been transmitted to the Assembly.

When Bill Is Recalled for Reconsideration.

53. When a bill, resolution, amendment, order or message upon which a vote has been taken shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate and been communicated to the Assembly, a motion to reconsider shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the same, which last-named motion shall be acted upon immediately and without debate, and if determined in the negative shall be a final disposition of the motion to reconsider.

Debate on Motion to Reconsider.

54. A Senator, after a notice to reconsider is given, as provided in Rule 53, shall, at the reconsideration thereof, present the main question in his argument thereon, and the same shall be debated by the Senate, provided that the subject matter is debatable, and the vote on reconsideration shall be on the merits of the main question.

Messengers and Other Papers—Messengers from the Governor.

55. Messengers from the Governor may be introduced at any stage of business except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, while ballots are being counted, or while a Senator is addressing the Senate.

Messengers from the Assembly.

56. Messengers from the Assembly may be introduced at any stage of business, except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, while ballots are being counted, or while a member is addressing the Senate.

Consideration of Assembly Messages.

57. Messages from the Assembly may be considered when indicated by the Order of Business, or at any other time, by unanimous consent, or by vote of the Senate.

Reading of Papers.

58. When the reading of a paper (except a petition) is called for, and the same is objected to by any Senator, the question shall be determined by a vote of the Senate.

Contents of Senate Journal—Proceedings to be Printed.

59. The proceedings of the Senate, when not acting as a Committee of the Whole, shall be entered in the Journal as concisely as possible, care being taken to record a true and accurate account of the proceedings.

Titles of Bills to be Printed.

60. The titles of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, and constitutional amendments introduced shall be printed in the Journal.

Statement of Petitions to be Printed.

61. Every vote and a brief statement of the contents of each petition, memorial, or paper presented to the Senate shall be entered in the Journal.

Other Matter to be Printed.

62. Messages from the Governor (other than biennial messages and inaugural addresses), joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments, when adopted, and the titles of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments, when acted upon by the Senate, shall be printed in the Journal in full; provided, that in case of a concurrent resolution offering the adoption of a charter or charter amendments of any kind, the text of such charter or charter amendments shall not be printed in the Journal.

Legislative Printing—Number of Bills Printed.

63. Fifteen hundred copies of all bills shall be printed; and the Sergeant-at-Arms shall be required to certify to the reception by the Senate of all printed matter, and the quantity. One copy of each bill or paper printed by order of the Senate shall be delivered to each Senator at his desk, and the balance shall be distributed according to law.

Number of Journals Printed.

64. The Superintendent of State Printing shall print one thousand copies of the Journal of each day's proceedings of the Senate, and one copy of the same shall be placed upon each Senator's desk, and a sufficient number sent to the Assembly to supply each Assemblyman with one copy; he shall also print a sufficient number of copies, properly paged, to bind in book form as the Journal of the Senate, at the end of the session, as required by law.

Number of Other Documents Printed.

65. Seven hundred fifty copies shall be printed of each document or other matter ordered, unless the Senate especially directs a different number.

Excess Printing Only on Written Order.

66. The Superintendent of State Printing shall not print for the use of the Senate any matter other than provided by law, unless upon a written order signed by the Secretary. The Secretary may, when necessity requires it, order from the State Printer such printing as he deems necessary to be printed in advance of the regular order of business, under specially prepared written order, to be known as a "Rush Order."

Form of Printing Amendments.

67. All bills amended shall immediately be reprinted; the new matter added by any amendments to be enclosed in heavy brackets, and the omission of any matter to be indicated by the insertion of heavy parentheses.

The Senate Chamber—Admission Within Bar of Senate.

68. It shall be the duty of the gatekeeper to prevent all persons, except Senators, ex-Senators, members of the Assembly, State officers, officers of the two houses, and such accredited newspaper representatives as have seats assigned to them by the President, from coming within the bar of the Senate, unless upon invitation of the President or a Senator; provided, that no visitor shall be allowed upon the floor while the Senate is in session.

No Lobbying in Senate Chamber.

69. No person engaged in presenting to the Senate or any of its committees any business, claim, or legislation, shall be permitted to engage in such business in the Senate Chamber or be permitted on the floor of the Senate at any time while the Senate is in session. Any person transgressing this rule shall be removed from the floor of the Senate and shall be debarred from the privilege of the floor during the remainder of the entire session. The President and President pro tempore are charged with the enforcement of this rule, and this rule can not be suspended except by a two-thirds vote of the entire Senate.

Maintaining of Order.

70. In case of a disturbance or disorderly conduct in the lobbies, the President (or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole) shall have the power to order the same cleared.

Smoking Within Senate Chamber.

71. No smoking shall be allowed within the Senate Chamber when objected to by the presiding officer or by any five members.

Miscellaneous Provisions—Duties of Members.

72. No Senator shall absent himself from attendance upon the Senate without leave first obtained. A less number than a quorum of the Senate is hereby authorized to send the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person, for any and all absent Senators at the expense of such absent Senators, respectively, unless such excuse for nonattendance as shall be made to the Senate, when a quorum is convened, shall be judged sufficient, and in that case the expense shall be paid out of the Contingent Fund of the Senate; and this rule shall apply as well to the first convention of the Senate, at the legal time of meeting, as to each day of the session after the hour has arrived to which the Senate stood adjourned. The President or Acting President of the Senate, or less than a quorum present, shall have the power to issue process directed to the Sergeant-at-Arms, or to any other person, to compel the attendance of Senators absent without leave. Any Senator who shall refuse to obey such process unless sick or unable to attend, shall be deemed guilty of contempt of the Senate, and the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person, to whom such process may be directed, shall have power to use such force as may be necessary to compel the attendance of such absent Senator, and for this purpose he may command the force of the county, or of any county in the State.

Parliamentary Rules.

73. In all cases not provided for by these rules, or by the Joint Rules of Senate and Assembly, the authority shall be Robert's Rules of Order.

Suspension or Change of Rules.

74. No standing rules or order of the Senate shall be rescinded or changed without a vote of two-thirds of the entire Senate, and one day's notice being given of the motion therefor; but a rule or order may be suspended temporarily by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the Senate, except that portion of Rule 13, relating to the order of enrolling bills. All proposed amendments to these rules shall, upon presentation, be referred to the Committee on Rules without debate.

READING OF THE JOURNAL.

During the reading of the Journal of Monday, January 8, 1923, the further reading was dispensed with, on motion of Senator Rush.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following messages from the Governor were received, read and ordered printed in the Journal:

THIRD BIENNIAL MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR WILLIAM D. STEPHENS.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.

In accordance with my constitutional duty, I hereby communicate to you my third biennial message concerning the affairs of the State, with such recommendations as I deem appropriate at this time.

In presenting this message I am reminded that I am now concluding six years in office as Governor of California. During that time the people of California have witnessed some of the most significant events and remarkable developments that this State and nation have known—the crisis of a World War, the subsequent readjustment of social, economic and business conditions, and the development which has given to California the unique and compelling distinction of being the most prosperous section of the Union agriculturally, industrially, commercially and financially during the years of prevailing national and world depression.

We are now confronted with the prospect of an unprecedented development and expansion for which the foundations have been well and truly laid. It is broadly true that progress in education, industry, agriculture and commerce rests back upon the principles of government in which these are fostered, and upon the practical encouragement and protection given to these interests of our people by the State. Whatever fiscal readjustments you may be called upon to effect, under limitation of revenues or other cause, I hope you will find means to enable the State to keep pace with the demands of progress witnessed in all lines of activity throughout our commonwealth. California with its vast undeveloped resources, and advancing population, has need of governmental projects and policies unequalled for in the stable and settled states of the East.

At the same time I trust I may not exceed the proprieties, if I venture to hope that the governmental institutions which have been created and fostered under progressive and humane policies and measures, initiated by my predecessor and myself, and which I firmly believe have placed the State of California in a commanding and envied position among all the states of the Union, may be continued and protected by the Governor whom the voters have, in their wisdom, chosen to succeed me, and for whom I wish personally and administratively the utmost success in accomplishing the will of the people.

Before proceeding with an analysis of the present financial condition of the State, and a reference to some of its departmental activities, permit me to review two or three special matters of vital interest and importance to us all.

VETERANS WELFARE PROGRAM.

One of the outstanding achievements of this State has been the adoption of the soldier welfare program of which its promoters and the entire State may justly be proud, possessing as it does qualities of economic advantage to the State and of self-respecting benefit to the men who have so worthily served their country in the great wars in which we have been engaged.

The basis of this soldier welfare program lies in the genuine spirit of patriotism among the citizenry of this State, exhibited so triumphantly upon every patriotic demand during the war, whether in the enlistment of California's sons in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, into which they went 135,205 strong and in which 3750 of them made the supreme sacrifice, or in the purchase of liberty bonds by our people to finance the war in every issue of which we went over the top, or in the Red Cross and other relief measures, in all of which our people responded with a consecration that makes the memory of the task a most gratifying one. So, that when in my first biennial message to the Legislature in 1919 I urged that this State cooperate in providing for the rehabilitation and reeducation of those who might return maimed or crippled or needing facilities for the attainment of self-support and in which I recommended the application of the land settlement principle for the benefit of returning soldiers, I found a hearty response among our legislators and people generally.

This sentiment found practical expression in the veterans welfare legislation and appropriations of 1921 which had my active support and executive approval. This legislation included four general provisions: First, the Veterans Welfare Act, creating and defining the powers of the Veterans Welfare Board with an appropriation of $1,000,000 to carry out the provisions of the act; second, the Veterans Educational Act, appropriating $500,000 to assist in giving certain educational benefits to war veterans; third, the Veterans Farm and Home Purchase Act, carrying an appropriation of $2,000,000; fourth, the Veterans Bond Act, enabling the Veterans Welfare Board to issue and sell State bonds in a maximum amount of $10,000,000. Of the latter amount, $2,500,000 is returnable to the general fund in the State treasury during the present fiscal year in accordance with the legislation of 1921, thus reducing by approximately $3,000,000 the appropriations mentioned above.

In the submission of this Veterans Bond Act for the approval of the people, I gave myself without reserve to its advocacy in all of my public addresses, and it was with the deepest gratification to me that the people of the State by an overwhelming majority in the election of last November approved these bonds for the welfare of the veterans.

In justice to all veterans concerned it should be said that the ten million dollars made available through the bond issue will but partially meet the requirements of the veterans for whom the welfare program is intended. Up to the present time applications have been received by the Veterans Welfare Board for loans under the Veterans Farm and Home Purchase Act from 9098 veterans. Of this number 2525 applications have come from wounded and disabled soldiers, and these are given preference under the act. It will require the full $10,000,000 to provide for the disabled group alone leaving practically nothing available for loans to able-bodied veterans. In view of the fact that these funds are all returnable to the State with interest, and that all that the State is giving to the veterans is the use of its credit, with the result that a stimulus will be given to land settlement and to home building, and in recognition of our debt to our war veterans, I recommend that you take into serious consideration what further steps may be necessary to provide for loans to the remaining number of applicants not provided for in the bond issue recently passed.

CONSTITUTIONAL PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT.

California has, through ratification by the people of the Wright Act passed by the Legislature of 1921 and by its adoption of the provisions of the Volstead Act, as the law of this State, taken its rightful place as a State in support of the national constitutional prohibition amendment.

From the beginning of my administration as Governor, and long before that time, I have been by personal conviction, through my study of social and economic conditions an opponent of the liquor traffic, and I have on all occasions as a citizen and in my public life consistently supported every reasonable measure calculated to reduce the evils of that traffic. As a member of Congress I voted for the submission of the amendment to the federal constitution providing for national prohibition. I was the first Governor of California that ever announced in the platform of his candidacy his support of prohibition, which I did in my pre-primary announcement of 1918. In the same year I secured the adoption by the State Republican Convention of a platform favoring the ratification of the federal dry amendment by the Legislature at its next session. In due time the Legislature ratified the Eighteenth Amendment to the constitution. In the same session of the Legislature, in April, 1919, the Harris bill was passed, but was voted down by the people at the election in November, 1920. Finally, in May, 1921, the Wright prohibition enforcement bill was passed by the Legislature and approved by me, declaring that "the courts of this State are hereby vested with the jurisdiction, and the duty is hereby imposed upon all prosecuting attorneys, sheriffs, grand juries, magistrates and peace officers in the State, to enforce the same." This statute was submitted by referendum to the vote of the people in the recent general election in November, 1922, and by a substantial majority was approved and has thereby become the law of this State.

THE ORIENTAL PROBLEM.

Two measures have been adopted by this State looking to the preservation of the rights and privileges of American citizens and of others eligible to citizenship in connection with the development of the soil and its products within this area, and with the social and economic welfare of our people. The first was the Anti-Alien Land Law passed by the Legislature of 1913, forbidding ownership of agricultural lands by persons ineligible to citizenship and limiting their tenure to three-year leaseholds. The second was the initiative measure, submitted to the people with my active support in the election of November, 1920, and approved by an overwhelming majority vote which forbids the leasing of lands by persons ineligible to citizenship and also makes more effective the provisions against evasion of the act by corporations controlled by such persons.

The Legislature of 1921 enacted a law levying a poll tax of ten dollars on all male alien inhabitants of this State, and requiring such aliens to register in the counties, or in the cities and counties, wherein they may reside. The Supreme Court of California declared this act to be unconstitutional, basing its decision on certain treaty rights of Japanese protecting them from taxes that discriminate against them in comparison with taxes levied against American citizens. It does not appear, however, from this decision that there is anything to prevent the State of California from providing for a registration of all peoples ineligible to citizenship who are residents of this State, and I recommend as a means of keeping a careful watch upon the growth of the Oriental problem in this State, that a law be passed by the Legislature, providing for such registration and for the enforcement of the same.

The duty of the Legislature of this State, however, in this great problem can not be fully met by its own legislation. The welfare of this State is bound up in the national policy. The menace involved must be controlled at its source—in the immigration that comes into this country. On November 13, 1922, the Supreme Court at Washington rendered an important decision, determining that only persons of the white or Caucasian race are eligible for naturalization into American citizenship. Japanese are, therefore, debarred from naturalization. This decision amply justifies the laws which have been enacted by California as a safeguard to her own citizenship. The incompatibility of Japanese with American citizenship indicates clearly enough their inability to assimilate with the social relationships and with the economic standards of American life.

In its final solution this Japanese problem must be met by Congress. The best figures available indicate that the Japanese population of California comprises between 80 and 85 per cent of the total Japanese population of continental United States, and the safety and welfare of this State demand that Congress be educated as to the seriousness of this problem. In 1920 the State Board of Control, by my instruction, made a survey of the Japanese situation in California, and compiled the results of that survey in an exhaustive report, which I forwarded with my letter of transmittal to the Secretary of State at Washington, and to every member of Congress. This report created such a widespread interest in the problem, and inquiries became so numerous from all parts of the country, that it was necessary for the Legislature of 1921 to provide for a reprint of 10,000 copies for distribution. With the interest already awakened in many other states, it is now opportune to press upon Congress the necessity and importance of passing an exclusion act prohibiting further immigration of people ineligible to citizenship into the United States, and providing for the registration of all said people within the boundaries of the United States at the time of passing such an act. Unless this is done, it is apparent to me that the Japanese problem will become even more serious than it is now, and increasingly difficult to solve.

ADMINISTRATIVE REORGANIZATION.

I desire to call your attention to the progress which has been made in the matter of administrative reorganization. When I took office as Governor there were upwards of one hundred appointive administrative agencies acting more or less independently of one another and with some overlapping. Realizing that this involved waste and inefficiency, I determined upon a policy of State governmental reorganization. Accordingly in November, 1918, I issued a letter inviting a small group of prominent citizens of the state to act as a Committee on Efficiency and Economy. The findings of this committee were submitted to the Legislature of 1919, with my recommendation that as a first step in the direction of reorganization for greater efficiency, the State Department of Agriculture be established, embracing all of those activities of the State having to do with plant and animal industries. The results in this department proved so successful, that at the 1921 session of the Legislature I submitted a plan for the further reorganization of the State government, which, with slight modifications, was enacted into law and is now in operation. By this reorganization some sixty-three State agencies were consolidated into six major departments, the Department of Finance, the Department of Education, the Department of Public Works, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Institutions, and the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations. The agencies not included in the final reorganization expend less than fifteen per cent of the State's total expenditures; thus, more than eighty-five per cent of all of the State's expense comes under the jurisdiction of these six major departments, and seventy-three appointments have been eliminated from executive patronage, and sixty-one appointments have been changed to positions having advisory powers only.

During the one and one-half years in which this reorganized plan of administration has been in operation, I have been convinced that it has added greatly to the efficiency of the State government. I am also satisfied that it has reduced the overhead expenditures of the agencies thus consolidated, that is, upon the basis of the business previously done by those agencies. Of course, the business of all departments has greatly expanded with the growth of the State and the general overhead has increased accordingly. One point in which I have been particularly gratified is that while this reorganization has increased the efficiency, and has decreased relatively the overhead expense of the government, it has not in any case eliminated any function of governmental service that is vital to the welfare, whether material or humane, of the State and its people. The development of the progressive ideal in democratic government has brought to the fore not merely a larger measure of participation by the people in government, but it has also emphasized the moral and humane aspects of legislation and administration. No reduction of State activities should be permitted to eliminate or vitally injure any of those services or functions of government that have proven to be beneficial to the people, or that in their nature are vital to the higher welfare of the State.

STATE EXPENDITURES.

The appropriations made by the Legislature of 1921, and approved by me for the two-year period ending June 30, 1923, amounted in all to $42,652,624.01. In addition to this amount, the fixed charges under constitutional and statutory provision, amounted to $46,159,199.15, making a combined total for the two-year period of $88,811,823.16. This was the exact and total amount of the final budget approved by me.

I was compelled by the nature of the financial situation with respect to available revenues and above expenditures, to veto appropriation bills passed by the Legislature of 1921, amounting in all to $3,397,520. It will be remembered that the large increase of appropriations and fixed charges for the two-year period ending June 30, 1923, over those of the previous two-year period was chiefly due to the large increase in fixed charges for education, the increased expenditure for this one function of the State being $20,557,883, of which $18,069,651 were fixed charges.

Following the appropriations made by the Legislature of 1921, I instructed the State Board of Control to exercise its supervisory powers with a view to such economies as might avoid the possibility of deficits in the various departments and reserve, if possible, a portion of the amounts already appropriated by the Legislature. Accordingly the Board of Control established a policy of a ten per cent unbudgeted reserve in the annual budgets of the various departments, releasing or transferring from this unbudgeted reserve only such amounts as in its judgment would be absolutely necessary for the efficient and economical management of the business of the State. The result of this policy of control, and of the careful management and cooperation of the departments, was that the Board of Control was able to report to me at the close of last fiscal year a conservation of $5,456,879.39 in the funds of the State available for expenditure, including $829,000 actually saved in the appropriations, and $4,627,873 conserved within departmental revenues. I am advised that there is a good prospect for a similar saving in appropriations for the current fiscal year which will make a total saving in appropriations for the two-year period ending June 30, 1923, of at least $1,500,000. There is also every prospect that the conservation within the self-supporting departments, amounting to $4,627,873 on June 30, 1922, will be further increased to an amount in excess of $5,000,000 by June 30, 1923.

Deducting the above saving of $1,500,000 for the current biennium from the total budget of $88,811,823.16 approved by me leaves a net amount of $86,711,823. This amount is further reduced by the return of $2,900,000 provisionally appropriated for the work of the Veterans' Welfare Board, to be refunded to the general fund out of the proceeds from the sale of the $10,000,000 of Veterans' Welfare Bonds. When this $2,900,000 is deducted from the above $86,711,823, it leaves a balance of $83,811,823 net expenditures chargeable to appropriations and fixed charges for the two-year period ending June 30, 1923.

There is still due the State from the larger public utility companies $5,600,000 for taxes levied as of March, 1921.

NEW SOURCE OF REVENUE—NORWALK PROPERTY.

The revenues of the state are at the present time drawn mainly from the taxation of public utilities, banks and insurance companies, general franchise taxes, inheritance taxes, license taxes, fees by Secretary of State, interest on deposits in banks, delinquent property tax redemptions, fees from Supreme and Appellate Courts, collections from punitive and reformatory schools, and miscellaneous receipts. In addition there are certain operative departmental revenues not paid into the general fund but which go to meet departmental operative expenses not provided for by appropriations.

It is evident that under present growing conditions of the State consideration should be given to any further sources of revenue that may be made available to provide for the pressing needs of State departments and to avoid the possibility of an ad valorem tax.

It has developed within the past year, that the State is in possession of certain property capable of producing revenue to a very large amount. Indeed there are a number of State properties in the vicinity of oil fields that may prove to be very valuable from a revenue standpoint. One of the most valuable proven oil fields in the State, if not in the world, lies immediately adjacent to the Norwalk State Hospital grounds, and a report submitted by the State Mining Bureau shows a large part of this State property to be in what is termed a known geological structure producing oil. The adjacent oil field is known as the Santa Fe Springs oil field, and some of the wells are producing over 4000 barrels a day of oil, running as high as 36 degrees gravity. One of the newest producing wells is located about 600 feet from the hospital line. Other wells are being drilled on all sides. The State property includes a main parcel of 272.08 acres on which are located the hospital buildings, and a smaller parcel of 65.63 acres about one-half mile southeast.

While it is possible to continue the work of the hospital so far as the present accommodations will permit for a period of possibly two or three years, even though the oil development should be extended to portions of the hospital property, it is apparent that the oil development must eventually crowd out the efficient operation and the comfort of the institution. Owing to these conditions the building program inaugurated there has been discontinued. Unless immediate action is taken by the Legislature to provide for the development of this property for the oil that is in it, the surrounding oil wells will soon drain off much of the State's share in the underlying oil deposits.

Individual wells in the Santa Fe Springs field are producing oil to a value of over $2,000,000 per year at the present rate of production. Assuming a development of two or three wells to the acre over any considerable portion of the 272 acres in the main parcel of the hospital property, it becomes apparent that an immeasurably large revenue may be obtained from this property.

The Legislature of 1921 passed an oil leasing bill which was approved by me, and which I understood at the time as applying to public, but not to proprietary State lands, and believing that it was not contemplated by the Legislature that this act should apply to operative property of the State, such as that of our State hospitals. I approved of the decision of the Surveyor General, supported by the Board of Control, not to issue a permit for prospecting on the Norwalk State Hospital property. Subsequently an applicant for a permit filed suit for mandamus to compel the Surveyor General to issue an oil prospecting permit on this property, and a hearing of this suit was held by the Supreme Court in San Francisco on December 4, 1922, but at the time of preparing this message a decision had not been rendered.

Subject to the said suit, if then pending, and to the decision if rendered, I recommended that the Legislature amend the said Oil Leasing Act of 1921, so that it can not possibly be applied to the proprietary lands of the State.

I also recommend that provision be made for the securing of another site in Southern California for the erection thereon of buildings to which may be transferred the work of the Norwalk Hospital.

In view of the tremendous revenue-producing value to the State of the Norwalk Hospital property it should not be sold. I, therefore, recommend the earliest possible legislation to secure for the people the benefits of the revenue now locked up in the oil deposits assuredly there. And I submit for your consideration two alternative suggestions.

(a) The Legislature to provide a special plan for leasing the Norwalk State Hospital property for oil production upon a bonus and royalty basis. I am advised that the cost value of the 272.08 acres of land was $87,975, and that there has been expended in improvements on the property $833,898, making a total investment by the State in the 272 acre tract of $920,973. The 65.63 acre parcel has an additional cost value of $19,785. Any method of leasing should provide for the assured realization of the above funds invested in the property. To get the largest and surest results from leasing the property should be subdivided into parcels of from twenty to forty acres each, and separate leases made for each of said parcels, each lease protecting the State adequately and according to the usual procedure in oil leases with respect to the obligation of lessees to produce oil within a specified period of time, and to continue the production of oil for a minimum number of days each year.

Inasmuch as every twenty to forty acres may be capable of supporting many wells, and consequently large revenues may be realized out of the production alone through each lease, I would recommend if leases be made that they be made on a basis of competitive bids as to royalty. Informal offers have already been made to lease on a basis as high as a thirty per cent royalty, and a fifty per cent royalty has even been suggested. Under the known conditions of this oil field high percentage royalties may be expected on a basis of competitive bidding. Then a plan should be devised for distributing the investment cost of the land and buildings over the various twenty to forty acre parcels by a system of cash bonuses to be required as a condition of the respective leases.

(b) The Legislature to appropriate a sum of money not to exceed half a million dollars as a revolving fund for the development of this property for oil by the State itself said revolving fund and control of the development to be placed in the hands of the Board of Control or the Department of Public Works. The legal power of the State to produce and sell oil from its own property may be questioned and this phase of the matter should be carefully considered, so as to avoid any possible tying up of the property for an extended period of time through injunction suits or otherwise. However, I am informed that the State expended in the year 1921 for its own use in fuel and lubricating oil, gasoline, distillate and kerosene, the total sum of $910,415; and in addition thereto, for road oil and asphalt, the sum of $118,236. The records show that the annual expenditures for these purposes is rapidly increasing. Hence, if the plan of State development for oil on its own property should be adopted by the Legislature there would appear to be some justification of the principle from the standpoint of the State's own need of oil and its by-products.

It is interesting to note that in the allotment of school lands by the federal government to the State of Minnesota, and to the State of Oregon, these states became possessed of lands in which are located large and valuable deposits of iron ore in Minnesota and valuable timber in Oregon. Under the provisions made by these states their state universities will share largely in revenues that will come from these lands, and it is believed that these universities will find their ultimate permanent support chiefly if not entirely from these sources.

California can likewise avail herself of the revenues that may be derived from her oil bearing properties for the benefit of such State activities as may seem to come appropriately under such provision. Accordingly, I recommend for your consideration that out of the net proceeds received from oil production on the Norwalk State property a certain proportion, perhaps one-half, be set aside as a reserve fund, and that the remainder be used as a contingent appropriation on a percentage basis to certain of the State functions not adequately provided for out of the regular legislative appropriations; as for instance, a fixed percentage according to the respective needs to each of such activities as the University of California, the State Teachers Colleges, the State Hospitals, the Department of Agriculture and the Board of Forestry.

This whole matter should be very promptly and carefully worked out, as it is fraught with great possibilities of benefit to the State. At the same time no undue speculation as to possible profits should be indulged in, because even the most promising oil fields sometimes bring their disappointments.

STATE BANKING CONDITIONS.

The banking situation, according to the report of the Superintendent of Banks, reveals a condition of marvelous prosperity throughout the State. At the close of the last fiscal year California was fifth in the United States, exceeded only by New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Massachusetts in the aggregate resources in banks under State jurisdiction. On June 30, 1922, the amount of assets in the State banks, both savings and commercial, was $1,657,940,000. On June 30, 1917, the aggregate assets of the State banks, both savings and commercial, amounted to $929,224,000, showing an increase between the two dates in five years of the astounding sum of $728,716,000. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, the increase of assets in State banks amounted to $161,904,000 over the previous year.

During the last fiscal year seventeen national banks with three branch offices sold their assets and transferred their deposit liabilities to state banks. During the same year thirty-six State banks with 113 branch offices were organized, making a total of 429 State banks with 281 branch offices operating under the laws of the State of California. Of these 67 are commercial banks, 99 are savings banks, 7 are trust companies, 232 are commercial and savings departmental banks, and 24 are commercial, savings and trust company banks. At the close of the last fiscal year there were 2,531,624 depositors in the State banks, a gain of 265,250 depositors in one year.

Such a growth of State banks in wealth and in banking power reveals not only a condition of present prosperity, but as well a firm foundation for a period of unprecedented development in the years to come.

STATE RAILROAD COMMISSION.

One of the vital activities of this state is the regulation of its public utilities by the Railroad Commission under the constitutional and statutory laws of the State. A large part of the revenues of the State comes from the taxation of these utilities. The welfare and comfort of the people are involved in the extensions and services of these utilities and in the rates charged for their services. It is the function of the State Railroad Commission to so regulate these utilities that their operation may be maintained on an economical and efficient basis, and their usefulness extended according to the best interests of the State, with no undue burden upon the ratepayers in the rates charged for services rendered.

The work of this commission necessarily demands facilities for expert and thorough investigation of all utilities by a corps of trained engineers and accountants sufficiently salaried to warrant them in remaining in State service. Inadequate facilities for such complex and technical work may defeat the purpose for which regulation was established and leave the commission dependent upon the utilities themselves for the data with which they must proceed. The cost of maintaining the work of this commission is approximately $438,300 per annum for the regulation of utilities having operating revenues amounting to $777,675,000, and operating expenses amounting to $585,955,000 per annum, and from whom $24,625,000 per annum is received in taxes by the State.

During the past year the commission rendered 1444 decisions and instituted 28 proceedings on its own motion. There were held 1088 hearings in different parts of the State and 4950 informal complaints were handled in one year. Valuations of practically all important utilities have been acquired. Investigations into the operation and service of these utilities have been made. Accordingly, it may be possible in the future to set up more definite and accurate standards which the utilities may be expected to observe.

The Railroad Commission states in its annual report that the sum of $20,350,000 has been saved to the public through reductions that have been effected, as follows: Electric rates, $6,000,000; gas rates, $2,000,000; railroad rates, $10,450,000; express rates, $1,000,000. I am advised that since their report was filed a further great saving has been effected through recent decisions.

Utilities reporting to the Railroad Commission show at the close of the calendar year of 1921 a considerable increase in net revenues. Operating revenues for steam and electric railways, gas, electric, water, telephone, telegraph, carriers by water, wharfingers, and warehouse utilities totaled $777,674,991 as compared with $735,048,864 for the preceding year, an increase of $42,626,127. Operating expenses for 1921 were $585,945,737 as against $509,015,657 in 1920, a decrease of $13,060,920. Combining the increased revenue with the lower costs shows a net gain of $55,687,047. During the past year authorization was granted by the Railroad Commission to California utilities to issue securities for additions and betterments amounting to $148,925,206; and a total of securities for all purposes amounting to $188,401,250, including $19,075,793 for refunding purposes, mainly to take advantage of improved interest rates.

The Railroad Commission is a regulative body of a judicial character with initiatory powers, and is charged with the duty of meting out justice to both sides of every issue. It was established under a mandate from the people of the State, to safeguard communities from abuses of capital control in the use of public franchises. It is inherent in the very nature of public service franchises, that the first obligation of those enjoying the control of those franchises is toward the people by whom the franchises were given. Not only is the safety and permanency of the regulative principle involved in the proper interpretation of the law governing public utilities, but as well the continuance of the trust committed by the people to the corporate holders of these franchises.

If these interests of the State are to be properly safeguarded, and justice done to all sides of each issue, it is necessary not only that the commission, the people, and the corporations fully realize these principles, but that the regulating body be adequately provided with the facilities necessary for independent investigation to secure data upon which their decisions must be based.

EDUCATION.

The primary assets of any state or nation are its children, and our teachers are the chief makers of our civilization. Our material developments will last for a time, but the making of our people's character is a matter for all time to come.

It is, therefore, a perfectly logical thing that the establishment and maintenance of our schools and colleges should bulk large in the regular expenditures of the State. Over fifty one per cent of the total appropriations and fixed charges for the two-year period ending June 30, 1923, was for education. Of the total budget of $88,211,823, the sum of $45,188,666 was applied to elementary, secondary, and vocational schools, teachers colleges, and the State University. Of this amount 57.3 per cent was applied to the public schools, 5.3 per cent to the teachers colleges, and 22.5 per cent to the State University.

1. Elementary and Secondary Schools.

By the constitutional amendment approved by a vote of the people in 1920, the State's contribution to the support of public schools was established on a basis of not less than $30 per pupil in average daily attendance in the day and evening elementary, secondary and technical schools in the public school system during the next preceding school year. This resulted in an increase of 110 per cent in the expenditures of the current biennium over those of the previous biennium. In other words, while the 1919 budget provided $14,423,325 for the above mentioned schools, the budget of 1921 was forced under the constitutional amendment of 1920 to provide $30,491,980 for the same purpose.

I have never had any regret that this increase was made by the people themselves, because it has enabled the school boards to pay the school teachers a reasonable salary for their invaluable services, and because it is indicative, not only of our growing educational population, but also of our growing interest in our public schools.

The average daily attendance in our elementary schools for the last three years shows an average increase of seven per cent per annum, and it is reasonable to assume that the increase per annum in the next two years will be as great. The average increase over the past three years in the high schools was eighteen per cent per year. This large increase may be partially explained by the special development in part-time instruction, and in Americanization classes. It must be borne in mind, however, that the incoming population of California is largely comprised of families with such a proportion of children of high school age as will make the annual increase in high school attendance greater than that of the elementary schools.

2. Teachers Colleges.

The enrollment in the teachers colleges, the support of which is not a fixed charge but a matter of appropriations, is growing more rapidly than in any other group of institutions. The approximate enrollment for the teachers colleges, exclusive of the training schools, for the past four years, is as follows: Seventy-first fiscal year, 2750; seventy-second fiscal year, 3100; seventy-third fiscal year, 6000; seventy-fourth fiscal year, 8000, an increase of over 190 per cent in four years. This reveals the necessity for greater support of these teachers colleges, not alone for maintenance but also for buildings.

Whatever may be the difficulties in meeting these requirements, it should be remembered from our experience in connection with the retarding of school construction during the years of the War, succeeded as these years were by a forced building program that was almost impossible to bear, that whenever the necessities of school life are held back for a period of years, such retardation only means larger expenditures later on.

3. University of California.

The University of California is inevitably expanding with the growth of the State. The enrollment on November 1, 1922, was 13,931, not including summer session enrollment of 8297, nor enrollment for University extension work of 21,000. The total enrollment of 13,931 includes 2935 attending the Southern Branch of the University in Los Angeles. The development of State junior colleges has materially relieved the pressure of increasing attendance at the University, particularly in the first two years. Nevertheless, there is a steady increase in University enrollment especially in the southern branch and a corresponding increase in the total expense of operation and equipment.

The University appropriations and fixed charges for the two-year period ending June 30, 1923, amounted to $9,738,904, and increased amounts will be required for the future to meet the extraordinary growth of the southern branch at Los Angeles, and the urgent needs of agricultural education.

STATE LIBRARY.

California has made the most distinctive development, during the past six years in the use of books for the education and enjoyment of all her citizens. The State Library, containing 350,000 volumes, is available to every individual in the State through the medium of the public and county library systems. In 1917, the county libraries, which are of particular importance because they touch the lives of the men, women and children living in comparative isolation, numbered 35, with book resources of 750,000 volumes. Today, the 42 organized county libraries have more than 2,140,000 volumes. The books of the State, whether in the State Library, public libraries, or county libraries, are so readily interloaned that perhaps never in the world's history have the people of any commonwealth been able to use and enjoy, with such accessibility, the literature of this and other countries.

AGRICULTURE.

California is preeminently an agricultural State. It has a land area of 155,652 square miles with a population of about 4,000,000, while the combined land area of the four great states, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and New Jersey, is 156,043 square miles, with a population of over 28,000,000. California has 45,800 square miles, or 29,365,000 acres, in cultivated farms. The total value of all farm property in this State amounts approximately to $3,500,000,000. The value of products of the soil in 1921 was $635,519,000. California's output of fruits is equal to about one-half of the total value of fruits of the entire country.

In harmony with these conditions, the State Department of Agriculture has been organized and advanced to such a point of efficiency that the United States Department of Agriculture has freely acknowledged our department's supremacy among the state agricultural departments of the union. The reorganization of 1919, recommended by me, and which brought all of the State activities related to the plant and animal industries into one department with five divisions, made possible this efficient organization.

1. Agricultural Legislation.

The Legislature of 1921, with my active support, distinguished itself with more advanced agricultural legislation than any previous Legislature in the history of the State. Among the new laws passed in 1921, were the Pure Seed Law under which the standardization of agricultural seeds was authorized and a Seed Testing Laboratory was established in cooperation with the Federal Department of Agriculture; the Control and Destruction of Predatory Animals Law which provides for the protection of live stock from the depredations of these animals; the Grain Standards Act, providing for the voluntary licensing and bonding of agricultural warehouses; and the Economic Poisons Act. Among the new laws passed affecting the animal industry were the Tuberculosis Free Act; the Accredited Herd Act, and the Slaughter House and Meat Inspection Act. Other laws were passed amending previous statutes to provide for more adequate service along various agricultural lines.

2. Plant Quarantine.

The Director of Agriculture calls attention to the importance of plant quarantine in this State. In less than five years the Mediterranean fruit fly destroyed the peach and nectarine industries of Spain, and practically eliminated the orange industry of that country. If this pest should gain entrance to this State it would bring an incalculable loss to our State through the destruction of some of our citrus and deciduous fruit industries. The alfalfa weevil has spread over counties in the State of Nevada, and the dangerous white pine blister rust has appeared in the northern borders of the Pacific Slope. The danger to California of these and other alien enemies of our plant life is becoming very real from year to year, and illustrates the importance of materially strengthening and enlarging our plant quarantine program. The State of Florida has spent over $1,300,000 in an eradication campaign against the citrus canker, Massachusetts is forced to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in an effort to control the gypsy moth, and many thousands of dollars are being spent in the Southern States in an attempt to control the Mexican bean beetle.

To protect California from plant pests every boat that touches our shores from foreign or interstate ports is examined by horticultural officers for contraband material. Every freight train crossing our State border and carrying plant material is met and inspected. If such protection were not given California would be likely within a few years to find her entire fruit areas devastated by plant diseases.

3. Standardization.

The standardization work on fruits and vegetables, essential for the building up and maintaining of our fruit-producing credit, has progressed materially during the past year. The Bureau of Standardization has developed, to a high degree of efficiency on a self-supporting basis, a commercial shipping point inspection service for fruits and vegetables.

4. Animal Industry.

The Division of Animal Industry has rendered protection to livestock producers by preventing, controlling and eradicating transmissible animal diseases, and also protection to the public health by efficient inspection of animal food products.

5. Support.

Toward the fostering of this great agricultural industry in our State, the Legislature of 1921 appropriated the total sum of $1,115,040 for the two-year period ending June 30, 1923. It is evident that this is one of the departments that may reasonably be expected to command increasing support incident to the growth of the industry, and the broadening efforts to cope with its problems.

STATE LAND SETTLEMENTS.

Although California ranks fifth among the states in her value of agricultural products, this wealth is drawn from a comparatively small portion of the State's area. A great influx of settlers and an enormous increase of wealth and production await the stimulus of further aid and direction by the State through land settlements, tending to make rural life more attractive and give broader opportunities to men of moderate means.

The establishment of the Durham and Delhi colonies has demonstrated the value to the State and to its agricultural progress of the land settlement plan. These two settlements have been created under legislation, fathered and supported by me, which gives settlers 36½ years' time in which to pay for farms, with interest at 5 per cent on deferred payments. It provides for the creation of communities large enough to give settlers the benefit of expert advice and direction, and it enables them to cooperate in carrying out developments and in the business management.

The Durham settlement, including approximately 6400 acres of land, which unfriendly critics previously called "a malaria marsh unfit for human habitation," has become the home of 139 settlers and their families, all enjoying prosperity and health, and the benefits of unusual community privileges.

Delhi, with 8600 acres of land, which the enemies of the State's policy called "a windswept desert of shifting sand," has been transformed into alfalfa fields, orchards and vineyards on which 217 families now live and where 400 families will live when the development is completed. Before the State bought the Delhi lands the rental income was about $44,000 per year. Competent experts predict that within ten years the crops from this land will be worth $1,000,000 per year.

What the State has done at Durham and Delhi needs to be done on 15,000 acres awaiting development in the Happy Valley district, on 100,000 acres in the Merced district, on 250,000 acres in the larger Madera district, on 300,000 acres in the Imperial Valley, and on other thousands of acres elsewhere in California.

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.

The annual State Fair at Sacramento shows encouraging progress for the past six years. In 1916 the attendance was 110,000 and in 1922 it was 160,000. Premiums for exhibitors and races have advanced from a total of $58,000 in 1916 to $87,000 in 1922. The number of counties exhibiting has increased from 14 in 1916 to 36 counties in 1922. Live stock entries have increased from 1600 in 1916 to 2300 in 1922. The horse show has grown from 40 entries in 1916 to 200 in 1922.

A notable expansion has taken place in the exhibition of tractors and farm machinery, the space occupied having increased from 200 square feet in 1916 to 75,000 square feet in 1922. Another significant growth has been in the educational exhibits. Although an additional 10,000 square feet was added for this purpose last year, the exhibits were so crowded that the directors are seeking for an appropriation to meet further extension.

Live stock valued at over $2,000,000 was shown in 1922, the largest exhibit ever shown in the West, not excepting the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

STATE EXPOSITION AT LOS ANGELES.

Exposition Park, located in Los Angeles, comprises 130 acres owned by the State, title being vested in the Sixth District Agricultural Association. The land has an inventoried value of $1,000,000, but is worth considerably more at this time.

The State maintains a State Exposition Building here for the purpose of housing "a permanent, classified exposition of the resources and industries of California." The exhibits cover agriculture, horticulture, animal industries, manufactures, mines and mining, forestry, fish and game, and scenic attractions. This exposition, open all the year, is one of the most valuable means of educating the vast number of tourists visiting Los Angeles as to the resources and attractions of all California.

The National Guard Armory is also located on the exposition property.

The State leases to the county of Los Angeles a portion of the property, which is occupied by the Museum of History and Art. The remainder of the property is leased to the city of Los Angeles, and on this portion has recently been erected, by the Community Development Association, a stadium at a cost of $900,000 that is one of the largest structures in the world, with a seating capacity for over 75,000 people.

STATE CORPORATION DEPARTMENT.

The increasing volume of work done by the State Corporation Department is another evidence of expanding business conditions in this State. During the past biennium this department has authorized the issuance of securities to an aggregate par value of $1,452,594,000. Of this amount the par value of bonds, notes, etc., was $168,354,000. During this period a total of 15,990 permits were issued by the department, and a total of 3700 permits were revoked. To meet the increasing demands of this work, the personnel of the department has been increased approximately 24 per cent, with a proportionate increase in cost of equipment and salaries.

The department has vigorously prosecuted undesirable promoters and unscrupulous salesmen in its effort to curb security frauds. Business trusts, cooperative loan companies, and other organizations, some of which have sought to evade their just obligations, have been brought under the regulations of the Corporate Securities Act by advice of the Attorney General of the State. Amended legislation to strengthen the regulation of the promotion of securities may be presented for your consideration and no doubt will have your careful attention.

REAL ESTATE DEPARTMENT.

It is inevitable that the increasing population and growing prosperity of our State should be accompanied by a great expansion in real estate activity. With this expansion many dangers and evils are likely to arise which must be guarded against, while legitimate business must be safeguarded and fostered. During the past two years land has been subdivided for promotional purposes, both in the large centers and in rural districts, especially in the vicinity of the oil fields. Propositions with merit and without merit have been placed on the market. Thousands of the poorer classes of people have lost all their savings by turning over their money to unscrupulous promoters. Manifestly these conditions are a menace to the prosperity and welfare of the State, and it was to meet such conditions particularly that the State Real Estate Department was established. The Los Angeles office of this department for months has held an average of four to five hearings, formal and informal, per day.

During the year 1922, this department issued over 37,000 real estate license certificates. The results of the work of the department have inspired confidence not only among the better class of real estate men, but also among investors, homeseekers and developers throughout the State and the entire country.

STATE INSURANCE COMMISSIONER.

The insurance business is an inseparable part of the progress of any State. Through no other medium can the economic and social conditions and the rapid growth of a commonwealth be more clearly indicated.

The increase in the volume of life business, the stabilizing of the accident and health business, the strict conformity to the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act, and the prompt recognition of their obligations on the part of insurance carriers of all lines in California, have contributed much to the advancement and contentment of our citizens.

The sound financial condition and conservatism in investments, and the cooperation of the insurance companies of this State with the State Insurance Commissioner, demonstrates the integrity of our insurance institutions and the high character of the men in executive control. The public confidence in the strength of these institutions, temporarily shaken in some instances by the great San Francisco conflagration, is now entirely restored.

INDUSTRIAL AND SOCIAL RELATIONS.

1. Industrial Accident Commission and State Compensation Fund.

The establishing of the State Compensation Insurance Fund in 1914 was one of the most progressive measures ever adopted by this State. Workmen's compensation insurance has been accepted by employers, employees and the public at large as an equitable way of relieving distress on a business basis, and has assisted in reducing the friction between employers and employees. Human wastage is now recognized as one of the essential items in the operating cost of industry. The State Compensation Insurance Fund received an original appropriation of $160,000, which under the act of 1921 was returned to the State treasury. The compensation fund has been so efficiently and economically managed that according to available records, its overhead expenses are proportionately less than one-half of the expenses of other compensation insurance companies, with many advantages at the same time to policyholders through dividend returns. The premiums paid into this fund in the first year of its existence, 1914, amounted to $500,000. The premium income for 1922 was approximately $5,000,000. This beneficial and financially successful State institution deserves encouragement. Any attempt to reduce the efficiency or scope of the business of the State Compensation Insurance Fund should be vigorously resisted by the Legislature.

2. Labor Commissioner.

Industrial employment at the present time, aside from seasonal conditions, is generally good throughout the State. During the winter season of 1921-1922, when there was a condition of general unemployment throughout the United States, this State suffered to some extent from the migration of unemployed from other parts of the country. But through the diligent service of our State employment bureaus under the direction of the Commissioner of Labor in cooperation with employers, and owing to the large building activity extending throughout the State, and the speeding up of State highway and building construction, the threatened unemployment in California was largely relieved, and in the early months of 1922 had practically disappeared. Seven State employment bureaus have secured employment during the year 1921 for 132,133 persons, and during ten and one-half months of 1922 for 222,911 persons, showing a very great increase in the value of this service.

3. Industrial Welfare.

The Industrial Welfare Commission has advanced the minimum wage for women from $10 per week in 1917 to $13.50 per week in 1919, and to $16 per week in 1920. The minimum wage has been recently sustained at $16 in the mercantile industry, and it is expected that this minimum will be extended to other industries. In 1917 90 per cent of the women workers in California received less than $16 per week. Today 90 per cent receive $16 per week and over. In the mercantile, laundry and manufacturing industries, employing 67,000 women, 60 per cent receive $17 and over per week. California is the only state where wage regulation has had adequate financial support, and it is to be hoped that the efficiency and facilities of this commission may be maintained.

4. Immigration and Housing.

The Immigration and Housing Commission has been the friendly helper of thousands of strangers and foreigners in our midst. Through its Bureau of Complaints it has met and relieved many distressing situations, and by its community organization and information it has assisted many foreign-born people in our State to become truly Americanized. Its work of inspection of labor camps, as well as its efforts to improve housing conditions among the foreign-speaking communities of our populous centers, has contributed to a better understanding by immigrants of our social, sanitary and economic standards and ideals.

WOMEN'S AND CHILDREN'S WELFARE.

Some of the most advanced steps for the welfare of women and of children in this State have been taken during my administration and with my hearty approval.

1. Women's Welfare Legislation.

The amendment to the national constitution granting to women equal franchise with men was ratified by the Legislature of California in November, 1919, at a special session which I called for that purpose. While a member of Congress I was ever an advocate of woman suffrage, and when in 1916 the measure giving the franchise to women in this State was before the voters of California, I spoke throughout southern California in its behalf.

In 1917 I approved, as Governor, a bill of the Legislature making women eligible for election as school trustees, and in 1919 I approved a bill making women eligible to act on juries. In 1917 and 1919 I approved amendments to earlier statutes, improving the provisions for limiting the hours of labor for females. In 1919 I approved amendatory legislation making more effective the regulatory work of the Industrial Welfare Commission with respect to a minimum wage for women. I have supported advanced legislation respecting community property rights of women, and I am in favor of the Legislature at this session amending the community property law of the State with proper safeguards to business stability and responsibility to enable women to make testamentary disposal of their share of community property.

2. Children's Welfare Legislation.

The minimum age for child labor in street trades was advanced from 10 to 12 years in 1917 under my approval. The Bureau of Child Hygiene, established in 1919, and the Division of Dental Hygiene, established in 1921, operate for the benefit of the children.

In 1919 the Legislature proposed a constitutional amendment, which was approved by vote of the people in 1920, authorizing the Legislature to increase the State aid to needy children from $6.25 to $10 a month per child and a new group of needy children was added to the list of beneficiaries under this State aid to include children of tubercular and permanently incapacitated parents. The total expenditures by the State for this purpose in the year ending June 30, 1921, amounted to $1,200,000, and the amount expended in the year ending June 30, 1922, amounted to $1,340,000. No expenditures for material advancement can be justified equally with the money expended by the State for the protection and welfare of its children.

3. Home for the Adult Blind.

The State maintains an Industrial Home for Adult Blind in Oakland where the blind are taught trades and encouraged to assist in their own support. There are about 2000 adult blind in the State who can not be cared for in this institution. Obviously the aged blind should be maintained in the homes of their relatives, or by local charities in the homes for old folks. Only those are admitted to the Industrial Home for Blind who can be taught some of the various trades, and use their training in at least partial self-support, and this policy should be maintained. The results of this institution have been gratifying in this respect.

HEALTH CONDITIONS.

1. Board of Health.

The health conditions of the State show gratifying improvement. The Board of Health reports that typhoid fever has almost been banished from California. The death rate in this State from typhoid fever in 1921 was about one-tenth of what it was in 1906, when vital statistics were first recorded. The tuberculosis death rate has also been reduced from 216.7 deaths per hundred thousand population in 1906 to 150.7 deaths per hundred thousand in 1921. The fact that this death rate is still high is chiefly due to the attractiveness of this climate to tubercular patients from the East, who are too far advanced in the disease to find complete recovery. But, with the financial aid now given by the State for these patients in county hospitals, and with proper education in respect to the control of this disease, it is hoped to greatly reduce this condition. Influenza has been reduced to the vanishing point both in prevalence and in virulence as compared to the years 1918 and 1919.

Among the beneficial activities of the Board of Health has been the sanitary inspection of automobile camps, the revision of plans for municipal and community sewage disposal and water supplies, and the inspection of milk under the California Milk Law, which is one of the best in the United States and has helped to reduce the infant mortality rate for California to 66.3 per hundred thousand population, one of the lowest rates for any state in the Union. The availability of the Sheppard-Towner fund, which I accepted from the federal government, has facilitated the organization and formulation of a comprehensive and constructive program for the conservation of child life, prenatal and maternity welfare. The results attained by this department, together with its vital relation to the welfare of the people, have amply justified the support given to it by the State.

2. Other Health Boards.

To the Board of Health, the Board of Medical Examiners, the Board of Pharmacy, the Board of Dental Examiners, and the Board of Optometry, have now been added through initiative measures, carried by vote of the people in the election of November, 1922, the Board of Osteopathic Examiners, and the Board of Chiropractic Examiners.

3. State Hospitals.

The State hospitals for the insane administered by the Department of Institutions show a gradual but persistent increase in the number of patients. The records show that in 1918 the number of patients was 10,296, while in 1922 the number was 11,291. One of the gratifying aspects of the work in the State hospitals for insane is the percentage of cures that are effected, as the following list of percentages of recoveries to admissions show, namely, in the year 1918, recoveries were 23.66 per cent of the admissions, and 27.43 per cent in 1919, 26.45 per cent in 1920, 21.5 per cent in 1921, and 24.3 per cent in 1922.

On the basis of the increases during the past two years, it may be expected that in the next two years there will be an increase of over 800 patients. At the present time these hospitals are seriously overcrowded by an excess of 800 patients. Provision will, therefore, have to be made for additional building accommodations for patients in these hospitals.

This problem of accommodation is further seriously increased by the situation at Norwalk Hospital, which was established in 1913, to relieve the overcrowded condition in the other hospitals. The oil development which has taken place in the immediate area around that hospital makes it all the more necessary to immediately provide for the purchase of land elsewhere in southern California, and the erection of buildings on the new site, so that the hospital work can be transferred to the new location within a period of two years.

4. Pacific Colony.

The provision of the State for homes for mentally deficient youths is inadequate. The number of inmates at present accommodated in Sonoma Home is 1596, and there is a waiting list of over 800 applicants, designated as suitable for admission to such a home. The home at Pacific Colony has 22 inmates, but the development of this institution has been retarded by the lack of a satisfactory water supply on the property where the present building is located. There are two parcels of land connected with Pacific Colony, which is located near Pomona in southern California. One of these properties has 800 acres and it is on this property that the one building is located, and on which there is not an adequate supply of water. The other property contains about 200 acres, and is some miles away from the main property, but on one of the boulevards and close to railroad transportation. I am advised that the purchase or condemnation of a piece of approximately 40 acres adjacent to the above 200 acres will provide a good location, with adequate water supply, for the development of Pacific Colony. I recommend that the Legislature make provision for the purchase, or condemnation, if reasonable purchase can not be made, of the 40 or more acres tract above referred to and that buildings be proceeded with on the 240-acre tract out of the special appropriation made by the Legislature in 1921.

HOUSES FOR VETERANS AND THEIR WIDOWS.

The State assists in the maintenance of two homes for aged or infirm veterans and their widows. One of these is the Veterans' Home at Yountville, in which there are about 470 Civil War veterans more than 75 years of age, who are gradually diminishing in numbers, and Spanish-American War veterans whose numbers are increasing. The other is the Woman's Relief Corps Home near San Jose, now accommodating about 30 widows, sisters and daughters of Civil War veterans. This home is urgently in need of additional building accommodation for about 30 more members. Both of these homes are rendering a service of patriotic love to some of those to whom this country is greatly indebted for their heroism and fidelity in a time of national need.

PENAL AND CORRECTIVE INSTITUTIONS.

The growth of population, and the imperfect conditions of social and economic environment, are inevitably attended by a proportionate increase in delinquency and crime. Society must protect itself against the menace involved, and consequently prisons and reformatories are necessary institutions.

1. Penal Institutions.

Attention is called to the alarming growth of population at San Quentin and Folsom prisons. In San Quentin there are 600 more prisoners than there were two years ago. The present population is about 2400, not including 258 paroled for work in road camps. If the population should increase as it has in the past two years, San Quentin would have 2910 prisoners by June 30, 1924, and 3494 by June 30, 1925. This will be far beyond the corrective and healthful accommodations of this prison. Folsom is also crowded with a population of 951 inmates, mostly second termers, not including 179 paroled for road construction. Both prisons are overcrowded to such an extent that the pernicious practice of confining two male prisoners in a single cell is, in large measure, made necessary.

At San Quentin, a jute mill for the manufacture of bags, and a factory for the manufacture of all kinds of office and institutional furniture, as well as other industries, engage the occupation of a large number of prisoners, and at Folsom quarrying and farm work are the main occupations. The cost of the maintenance of these institutions is necessarily increasing with the growth of their populations.

2. Corrective Institutions

The Whittier State School for Boys, the Preston School of Industry, and the California School for Girls at Ventura, are classified, not as penal but as corrective institutions, because, while their inmates have been committed under the Juvenile Court Law for delinquencies of various kinds, these are boys and girls from 8 to 21 years of age, susceptible of reformation by education, and experience has demonstrated the possibility of redeeming a large percentage of them to be useful members of society.

At Whittier and Preston regular schools are conducted and the boys are trained in farming, printing, blacksmithing, auto repairing, carpenter work and furniture making, shoemaking, bakery, tailoring and laundrying.

At Ventura, in addition to regular school work, the girls are trained in domestic work, sewing, gardening, typewriting and commercial work.

Whittier had an enrollment in November, 1922, of 306 boys from 8 to 16 years of age, and 56 employees; Preston had 430 boys from 15 to 21 years of age, and 123 employees; and Ventura had 155 girls and 54 employees.

These schools have attained a national reputation for efficiency in standards and results. Human redemption comes through knowledge. By the training received at these corrective schools, hundreds of boys and girls of delinquent tendency are saved from becoming a criminal menace to society.

3. Industrial Farm for Women.

The Industrial Farm for Women was established under the authority of an act passed by the Legislature in 1919 as a corrective institution for delinquent women committed by the courts. It was opened during the last year, and has now 43 inmates. While it has been questioned whether the institution would in any effective measure solve the problem or relieve the menace involved, it must be remembered that the social delinquencies of these women are not necessarily such as would justify crowding them into our prisons to associate with depraved criminal characters.

It would be unjust to determine the usefulness of this institution upon its first year's trial with constitutional tests pending and under adverse circumstances of equipment, and before its availability and value could be recognized generally by the courts throughout the State.

CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS.

It is the function of the State Board of Charities and Corrections to license and inspect all charitable organizations, including child-placing agencies, institutional homes for children, maternity homes and hospitals, rescue homes and day nurseries. It also exercises advisory oversight of the social welfare of the wards of the State in hospitals, reform schools, reformatories for women, institutions for feeble-minded, homes for the blind, and State prisons, and in county hospitals, almshouses, detention homes and jails.

The board reports in the State at the present time 15 State institutions, 62 county hospitals, 58 county jails, 24 detention homes, 74 children's institutions, 60 day nurseries, 7 rescue homes, 257 maternity wards. The inmates of the above institutions number upwards of 57,000 persons.

PUBLIC WORKS.

1. State Highways.

The agricultural and industrial development of the State is very intimately related to the improvement of its roadways. An influential factor in attracting settlers and tourists to California is the accessibility of interior sections of the State and the comfortable means of transportation by State highways.

Of the 64,000 miles of rural roadways in the State, the completed and contemplated State highway system covers only one-tenth of the total mileage, or 6400 miles. Of this amount approximately 2500 miles have been completed, and approximately 1065 miles were under construction June 30, 1922. Including the 1065 miles of highways now under construction, there remains a total of 39000 miles to be completed within the present program of the highway system.

One of the problems before the State is whether this limited extent of highway mileage is to be made available by moderate cost per mile for the rural and mountainous sections of the State, which are the most needy and susceptible of development, or whether the State's funds should be expended on a much smaller and more centralized area of highway improvement. Upon the determination of this problem rests the policy as to the character and expense of the highway pavements to be built. Believing that the proceeds of highway bonds hitherto authorized by the vote of the people of the entire State should be applied as widely as possible, I have favored the construction of our highways at a moderate cost per mile, thereby securing greater mileage at the same total outlay than could be secured by the initial construction of heavier and wider pavements. Moreover, it has been established that these pavements of moderate cost, when thicker and wider pavements are required, can be salvaged at from 75 to 90 per cent of their original cost. The widening and thickening has been made necessary by reason of the fact that the motor vehicle traffic of the State has increased over 1700 per cent in the last ten years, the period in which the present highway system has been under development.

In this financial period the State has received $48,488,240 on its highway system and within a year or two will have exhausted the funds remaining from the sale of authorized highway bonds. A considerable part of the highway system is to be completed, and if the department is to be maintained only on city bonds, it will be necessary to provide some method for the securing of additional funds to finance this work.

2. State Buildings.

The Division of Architecture of the Department of Public Works, under which the building construction of the State is carried on, reports that the work handled during the period of fifteen months from August 1, 1921, to November 1, 1922, in offices in Sacramento:

114 construction projects handled under appropriations of 1921, costing approximately	$670,336
---	-----------

15 construction projects handled under previous appropriations, costing approximately	255,120
---	---------

Buildings held in progress.

--	-----------

11 construction projects handled under previous appropriations, costing approximately	3,839,847
---	-----------

Total	$5,950,028

San Francisco State Building.

The original bond issue to provide for the cost of the State building in San Francisco amounted to $1,000,000. A subsequent appropriation was made by the Legislature of $250,000. This has not proved sufficient to complete the building and an additional appropriation will be necessary.

State Capitol Extension Buildings.

The original bond issue to provide for the cost of the State Capitol extension buildings at Sacramento was for $2,000,000. An additional amount of $300,000 was appropriated by the Legislature in 1921, with which to finance the sale of the bonds which bore only a 4 per cent rate of interest. A further appropriation will be necessary, owing to the increased cost of materials and labor since the original estimates were made.

Printing Plant Building in Sacramento.

The appropriations made by the legislature to cover the cost of site and building for the State Printing Plant amounted to $175,000. Owing to engineering advances as to the dangerous condition of the present printing plant, it was deemed advisable to proceed with the outer construction of the new building as planned, and to await further appropriation to complete and finish the building in detail.

3. Reclamation Work.

During the six years of my administration the actual development of reclamation projects among the swamp and overflowed lands within the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys has been realized. These lands were deeded to the State of California by the federal government in 1850 on the understanding that they would be so reclaimed and developed. Various acts by Congress and by the State Legislature led up to the establishment of the Reclamation Board in 1911, which, however, exercised police powers only until 1917, when the way for action was cleared by a decision of the Supreme Court, affecting the control of lands involved in the State reclamation projects. Since the beginning of 1918, the Reclamation Board has expended in reclamation work $10,177,000, provided by assessments on lands benefited by the reclamation work.

In addition to the above, the State, under a contract with the federal government for the deepening and straightening of the Sacramento River, toward which each government has agreed to contribute a total of $6,280,000, has already appropriated over the period from 1918 to 1923 inclusive, a total of $2,850,000. The State also appropriated in 1919, with my approval, the sum of $3,000,000 to be paid over a period of ten years, for the construction of the Sutter by-pass.

The State as a whole is greatly benefited by these developments in Sacramento Valley because of greatly increased taxable land values, increased volume of production, and improved navigation facilitating the transportation of products to the shipping centers and markets. Lands under this reclamation development are selling at as high as ten times their cost before the reclamation work began. The people in the above mentioned valleys, on the other hand, have constructed other reclamation and flood control works at their private expense totaling something over $50,000,000.

The Legislature of 1921 with my active support appropriated for flood control in Los Angeles County the sum of $6,000,000 to be paid over a period of ten years. This was in addition to $830,000 appropriated in 1919.

This reclamation work is of vital importance to the State, not only in its relation to the reclamation of lands otherwise of little use, but also as a protection against the menace of floods to life and property, and it should be proceeded with as rapidly as possible, until the program of needed work has been completed.

4. Engineering and Irrigation.

Through the Division of Engineering and Irrigation the regulatory powers of the State are applied to organized irrigation developments. The marketable value of the securities of irrigation districts is thereby enhanced.

This division during the past biennium acted upon the organization of 33 irrigation districts having a combined area of 1,803,221 acres. Investigations are now in progress as to the feasibility of three water storage districts.

Irrigation district projects financed by more than $600,000,000 worth of bonds have been investigated and reported upon and the division is now exercising general supervision of the expenditure of this vast sum. It has passed on plans for the construction of dams having estimated costs amounting to nearly $8,000,000 and these dams are now being constructed under inspection by this division. Work of this kind requiring the most careful inspection is rapidly increasing in volume.

It is expected that the stupendous task of investigating the water resources of the entire State, for which an appropriation of $200,000 was made at the 1921 Legislature, will soon be completed. This report will present a comprehensive statement of the water resources in all parts of the State, the irrigation requirements of all agricultural lands, the maximum storage and use of all waters, and plans for development with costs.

5. Water Rights.

The Division of Water Rights now does the work of the former State Water Commission, and its purpose is to provide the legal machinery by which new vested rights to the use of water may be acquired, while at the same time rights which have already vested by use may be protected. All new rights by appropriation must be acquired through procedure set forth in the Water Commission Act under the supervision of this division. A complete record is kept of the progress made from time of filing until use of the water is made available.

COLORADO RIVER COMPACT.

I will submit for your ratification at this session, a compact, under the act of Congress, approved August 19, 1921 (42 Statutes at Large, page 171), between the States of California, Arizona, Nevada, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, which was agreed upon by a representative of the United States designated by the President and representatives of the above mentioned states, the representative of California being the Chief of the Division of Engineering, Department of Public Works. This contract pertains to the equitable division and apportionment of the use of the waters of the Colorado River system; to the establishing of the relative importance of different beneficial uses of water; to the assurance of interstate comity; to the removing of present and future controversies; to promoting the expeditious agricultural and industrial development of the Colorado River basin and the storage of its waters; and to the protection of life and property from floods.

The compact being approved by the Attorney General of this State as to its legal form, I recommend it for your ratification, believing as I do that it will contribute largely to the conservation and early development of an extensive area within the State of California, and to the other important ends described in the compact.

MOTOR VEHICLE DIVISION.

The motor vehicle traffic of California is evidence of the enormous development and progress that have been made in this State during the past six years. At the end of 1916 the total motor vehicle registration of all kinds was 282,945. On July 31, 1922, the total registration was 987,436, an increase of 249 per cent in six years.

Under the California Motor Vehicle Act all money received by the Motor Vehicle Division is deposited in the State treasury. Part of the funds goes to meet the expenses of the Motor Vehicle Division. All of the remainder, amounting to at least 90 per cent of the "Motor Vehicle Fund," is divided equally between the State and the counties, one-half being transferred to the State Highway Division of the Department of Public Works for the maintenance and improvement of State roads and highways, and one-half paid into the road fund of the several counties on a pro rata basis, to be expended exclusively in the construction and maintenance of roads, bridges and culverts in said counties respectively.

FORESTRY.

At the Legislature of 1921, an appropriation of $300,000 was made for the purchase of certain tracts of timber land in Humboldt and Mendocino counties with a view to the preservation of the redwoods. Of this appropriation the sum of $261,305 has been expended in the purchase of 1654 acres in eight tracts, having an estimated timber value of $340,000. In addition, the Board of Forestry has secured from private owners the donation to the State of 605 acres of redwoods in ten tracts, having an estimated timber value of $112,500, and this board has under negotiation the securing by donation of a further 300 acres containing 17,000,000 feet of redwood timber, having an estimated value of $102,000. This work can not be praised too highly for its value to the future of this State in the preservation of these incomparable woods which are among the chief glories of California and which otherwise would be destroyed by commercial development. At the same time the Board of Forestry is giving invaluable aid to fire prevention throughout the State. This also is a most important factor in the conservation of our water supply. A far-sighted policy will take care of these natural resources, and provide for reforestation on a much broader scale.

SAN FRANCISCO HARBOR.

The harbor at San Francisco is an asset of primary importance to the State. It is the great ocean outlet for northern and central California. The operation of this harbor, with its docks, wharves, terminal buildings, warehouses and other facilities, by the Board of State Harbor Commissioners, has always been self-sustaining. It is necessary, however, for the board to reserve a substantial contingent fund to provide against unfavorable fluctuations of commerce, and the further possibility of emergency expenses in maintenance and operation. The demands of commerce necessitate from time to time entirely new structures and facilities. Owing to the great increase in business of the past year the board is now planning additional improvements.

The harbor business of the seventy-third fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, shows total revenues of $2,408,844, and total expenses of $1,942,673, including general maintenance and operating expenses of $1,317,342, and fixed charges in bond maturities and interest on bonds of $625,331, giving a net revenue surplus for the year of $466,161.

MINING CONDITIONS.

It has been claimed that the cost of the Civil War was financed by the gold mined in California during that and the preceding period of years. Since its discovery in 1848 the total production of gold in California has amounted to approximately $1,750,000,000. The present generation, however, is largely ignorant of the fact that a vast amount of gold remains in the gravels of our ancient river channels. In July, 1920, the State Mining Bureau started a field investigation of the extent and value of these gravels, and as a result of work already completed, the astounding fact has been demonstrated that probably $2,000,000,000 could be extracted from the placer deposits in the drainage channels of the Feather, Yuba, American and neighboring rivers.

It is now believed by authorities that a system of restraining dams could be built that would not only keep the mine tailings from entering the navigable portions of the rivers, but that would also conserve the flood waters for the use of agriculture. The Mining Bureau looks forward to the time when remedial legislation may be had from the federal government which will enable these enormous resources to be released for the benefit of the State of California.

This has sometimes been called a gasoline age. The development of the oil resources of the State has already placed California in a preeminent position among the states of the Union as regards the output of crude oil. Not only are millions of dollars spent annually in adding to the number of producing wells, but equally large amounts go into the drilling of prospect wells. Last year the oil industry alone brought approximately $182,000,000 of new wealth into this State.

The mining of clay and the manufacture of its products are among the principal industries in the United States today. California possesses great potential wealth in her clay deposits known to exist in almost every county in the State, and yet, it is surprising to learn that millions of dollars worth of clay products are annually shipped into California from other portions of the United States and from foreign countries.

California also contains inexhaustible supplies of building stone and structural materials, including granite, marble, sandstone, slate, travertine and serpentine. This State also has large deposits of borax, sodium compounds, nitrates and similar materials.

During 1921 there were employed in the mines, dredgers, quarries, cement and brick plants of the State about 13,000 men, and approximately 25,000 men in the oil fields exclusive of refineries. The production for the year of $268,157,472 worth of minerals, represents in round numbers an average output of $7,000 for every man employed.

ARGONAUT MINE DISASTER.

During the last year an appalling disaster befell 47 of our fellow citizens through the outbreak of fire in the Argonaut Mine in Amador County in which these men were entombed. The State has never witnessed more heroic efforts to rescue than were displayed with unflagging zeal by the comrades of the entombed men. On learning of the disaster, I immediately communicated with several of the State departments requesting them to give such aid as properly lay within their power to give. Later I appointed a special commission of three citizens to investigate the disaster, and I will submit to you the report of their findings.

CALIFORNIA FISH AND GAME COMMISSION.

The State Fish and Game Commission report that new hatcheries have been built, including the large Tahoe Hatchery with a capacity of 3,000,000 fry. During the past four years there have been reared in the State's hatcheries and planted in streams over 75,000,000 trout and nearly 45,000,000 salmon. The development of a breeding pond system makes it possible to secure nearly 10,000,000 trout eggs with regularity and with a minimum cost. The equipment used in connection with fish cultural operations now has a value of at least $350,000.

A campaign of education has included the carrying of the conservation message to children of the public schools and to the thousands of people who gather during the summer season in the various mountain resorts.

Several special problems relating to game are being satisfactorily solved. By means of added patrol and winter feeding the remaining large herd of antelope within the confines of California is being properly cared for. Thousands of deer and quail were saved from starvation last year by artificial feeding during severe winter weather. Due to active patrol measures, market hunting has been largely stopped.

California has by its conservation of fish and game, combined with its wonders of forest and mountain, attained an unchallenged fame as one of the greatest playgrounds of the world, a reputation that may be still further improved by due encouragement of the aims and endeavors of its Fish and Game Commission.

STATE PRINTING PLANT.

The State printing plant turns out annually work to the amount of $600,000. Paper stock and material purchased annually amounts to $200,000. The pay roll is approximately $360,000 per annum, there being about 200 employees receiving an annual average salary of $1800. It is safe to say that no other printing plant on the Pacific Coast can compete with the State printing plant in quantity and quality of work and in time and cost of production.

Recently two geographies were printed in the State printing plant on which $40,000 was saved in competitive bids with Eastern book concerns. In competition with the same book concerns, the State plant printed 210,000 atlases at a cost of 10½ cents per book, where the Eastern book concern bid 13 cents.

In the recent pre-election publication of the proposed constitutional amendments, the State printing plant was able to print them at a cost of $22 per thousand as compared with the next lowest bid of $26 per thousand.

During the two years from July 1, 1920, to July 1, 1922, the State printing plant printed for the State Board of Education 2,286,711 copies of school books at the cost of $540,922, or an average of 23.65 cents per copy.

The Legislature will find the printing plant in excellent condition from a mechanical and personnel standpoint, ready and willing to perform every service required, in a most expeditious manner. In fact, I believe the printing plant is prepared to give the Legislature a service unequalled in the history of the State Legislature. At the same time, owing to the limited capacity of the present plant, and the unsafe condition of the present building, it will be a matter of great satisfaction and relief to all concerned when the plant can be transferred to its new location.

NATIONAL GUARD.

When the National Guard of California was called into federal service in March and August, 1917, this State furnished to that service a total of 11,562 officers and men.

In 1918 six companies of the National Guard were organized with a total strength of 300 men. The present strength of the Guard is 4450 officers and men. In addition to this there are five units that have not yet been extended federal recognition. The California National Guard received all of its equipment from the federal government. For every dollar that we spend, the federal government spends three dollars. The National Guard costs the state about $125 per year for each soldier. The California Guard now possesses about $2,100,000 federal equipment.

While the Guard has not been called out for State service since 1913, it is a source of strength in the face of possible riots and is at all times the first line of defense.

CIVIL SERVICE.

Civil service has been in operation in this State for ten years, and has demonstrated its value in increasing efficiency and in stabilizing the work of State departments. The Legislature of 1921, under my approval, reorganized the Civil Service Commission, placing the responsibility in the hands of a commission of three members, one of whom is designated as president and executive member, and two associate members. Approval and consent of a majority of the three commissioners is necessary in the case of (1) the adoption of rules; (2) exemptions; (3) changes in classification; and (4) conduct of trials. The report of the commission for the past biennium shows a total of 7197 state employees under civil service jurisdiction, an increase during the biennium of 1036, the largest increases having been made in the Department of Public Works, the Department of Institutions, and the Department of Agriculture.

The average salary paid by the State, including officers and employees, is less than $140 per month, showing that in this respect the State is operated more economically than any other large business within the State. In fact, it is becoming more and more difficult to retain efficient and well-trained employees in many of the departments beyond the experimental stage, owing to the remunerative attraction of employment elsewhere. Of the 5000 employees in State service in 1913 when civil service was inaugurated, over 4200 have left the service. The present turnover of State employment is approximately 100 per cent per annum.

The importance not only of selecting competent employees to enter the service, but of encouraging them to stay in the service when once trained to do effective work, can not be over-estimated. The Civil Service Commission is devoting its thought and attention to this end.

REPORTS OF SPECIAL COMMISSIONS.

I hand you herewith reports of the following special commissions, committees, and representatives appointed by me under authority of the Legislature of 1921, namely: (1) the report of the State Engineer submitting the proposed Colorado River Compact, agreed to by the members of the Joint Commission, representing the states of California, Arizona, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming; (2) the report of the commission appointed to investigate the entire problem of agricultural instruction and investigation; (3) the board appointed to investigate available sites in southern California for the location of an agricultural school or college; (4) the report of a committee to investigate and report a plan for the proper treatment and care of narcotic drug addicts, with their recommendation as to hospital requirements; (5) the report of Mount Diablo Park Commission.

I also hand you herewith the report of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations, embodying a plan of reorganization and departmentalization of the activities therein, in accordance with the provision of Statutes 1921, chapter 604, section 364d.

CONCLUSION.

Finally, permit me to again remind you that this is a progressive State, committed by the enlightenment and conviction of its people to forward-looking, constructive and humane policies, and I confidently look for the maintenance and development of those principles in your deliberations and legislation. California, one of the richest states in the Union, with rapidly developing resources and growing population, is destined to become one of the great commonwealths of the world, and it is your enviable duty to continue the building of a structure worthy of the foundations that have been laid.

In conclusion, I desire to express my appreciation of the unfailing courtesy and the untiring cooperation which I have, on all occasions, received from both houses of the Legislature. At the same time I desire to thank all of the officers and employees of the various departments and institutions of the State, who not only have loyally supported me in my administration, but who have patriotically, unselfishly and effectively given their best thought and labor to the State.

WM. D. STEPHENS, Governor.

Dated, January 4, 1923.

APPENDIX.

PARDONS GRANTED BY GOVERNOR WM. D. STEPHENS (1921-1922).

JOSEPH WILSON was pardoned November 8, 1921. He was convicted in the county of San Luis Obispo on May 18, 1907, to serve a term of nine years in San Quentin for manslaughter. Recommended for pardon by Louis F. Sinsheimer, Mayor of San Luis Obispo, who was well acquainted with the case; M. R. Van Wormer, District Attorney of the county of San Luis Obispo; Albert Nelson, the attorney who prosecuted Wilson, the Advisory Pardon Board.

DAN CIUFFO was pardoned November 8, 1921. He was convicted in Madera County of robbery July 10, 1904, and was sentenced to a term of fourteen years in San Quentin. Was recommended for pardon by Hon. W. M. Conley, former presiding judge of the Superior Court of Madera County, who sentenced Ciuffo; R. R. Fowler, District Attorney of Madera County, who prosecuted Ciuffo; J. F. Flynn, present superintendent and D. W. Wallace, past superintendent of the Miller and Lux ranches in Merced County, also Mr. Edward Bickmore, secretary and attorney of the Silver Blossom Mine's Company of Reno, Nevada.

ALBERT HARRIS was pardoned December 5, 1921. He was convicted in San Francisco County of burglary, second degree, May 19, 1915, and was sentenced to a term of five years in San Quentin. Was recommended for pardon by Rev. Martin A. Meyer, prison visitor for the Jewish societies of San Francisco. Presiding Justice Frank M. Angellotti, of the Supreme Court, and Associate Justices Curtis D. Wilbur, W. A. Sloane, Charles A. Shurtleff, Thomas J. Lennon and Wm. P. Lawler. Harris was released from prison on December 20, 1918, when his sentence expired by reason of credits earned through good behavior. Good prison record.

IRA V. PLUMP, American Negro, pardoned December 22, 1921. Was convicted in the county of Alameda of murder in the second degree September 25, 1907, and was sentenced to thirty years at San Quentin. Was paroled February 5, 1915. Parole and prison record good. Was recommended for pardon by Hon. Henry A. Melvin, who sentenced Plump; Ezra W. Decoto, District Attorney who prosecuted Plump; Sheriff Frank Barnett, of Alameda County; State Federation of Colored Women's Clubs, Alameda County; Colored American Civic Center and many individuals, also the Advisory Pardon Board.

ROSINA SALVINO was pardoned May 12, 1922. She was convicted in San Joaquin County of murder in the second degree on October 30, 1920, and was sentenced to a term of imprisonment in San Quentin of from ten years to life. Many citizens, including all members of the jury that convicted her, Rev. J. M. Nead, prison investigator of the Church of the Nazarene, the attorneys who defended her, the brother and wife of the slain man, and a nephew of the victim, the principal witness against her, joined an appeal that she be pardoned. Many citizens of Stockton, San Francisco, and other cities joined in petitions for her pardon.

ALVIN M. MCCOY, pardoned November 15, 1922. McCoy was convicted in Stanislaus County on October 27, 1921, of rape, and was sentenced to San Quentin under the Indeterminate Sentence law. Shortly after his conviction McCoy married the prosecuting witness, who subscribed to a further affidavit denying circumstantially each and every one of her accusations at the aforesaid trial of McCoy. Pardon was recommended by Hon. J. C. Needham, the judge who presided at the trial of McCoy, Hon. Wm. J. Brown, District Attorney of Stanislaus County, who conducted the prosecution of McCoy; and Wirt M. West. Others recommending pardon were: Hon. Herbert W. Slater, member of the California Senate, Santa Rosa; Hon. Clarence F. Lea, member of the House of Representatives of the United States; Dr. G. W. Mallory, and Mr. W. H. Hatton, attorney of Modesto.

RICHARD R. RILEY, pardoned November 27, 1922. Riley was convicted in Los Angeles County of robbery on four counts, and was sentenced in August, 1918, to serve a term of six years in San Quentin. Was paroled on September 19, 1919, and has lived an honorable and law-abiding life since that time. A pardon has been recommended by Roy E. Langworthy, Deputy State Parole Officer; Hon. Asa Keyes, Chief Deputy District Attorney; Hon. Frank R. Willis, who sentenced Riley, Mr. Charles R. Burger, president of the Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission, who has kept in close touch with Riley while on parole; Mrs. Nellie D. Gleason, and many other reputable citizens of Los Angeles.

C. G. SHINN, pardoned November 27, 1922. Shinn was convicted in Sacramento County of forgery and was sentenced to a term in San Quentin under the Indeterminate Sentence Law. This sentence being illegal he was returned to court and was sentenced to serve two and one-half years. He was recommended for pardon by Hon. Hugh B. Bradford, District Attorney, who prosecuted Shinn; Hon. A. W. Anderson, sentencing judge; Hon. E. C. Hart, Judge of the Appellate Court of the Third District, Sacramento, who was acquainted with the conduct of Shinn both prior to and subsequent to his conviction; Mr. Fred M. Miller, engineer of the California State Corporation Department; Mr. R. L. Shinn, City Attorney of Sacramento, uncle of the applicant; Mr. Clyde Seavey, City Manager of Sacramento; Mr. A. J. Poser, consulting mining engineer of San Francisco; Mr. B. V. Sargeant, attorney at law, San Francisco, and Mr. Daniel D. Sullivan, City Councilman of Sacramento.

W. W. SWAN, pardoned November 27, 1922, was convicted in Los Angeles County of extortion, January 14, 1921, and was sentenced to a term not to exceed five years in San Quentin. Judge Frank R. Willis, who sentenced Swan, has recommended executive clemency, and many other prominent citizens have written in Swan's behalf, and their willingness to provide him with employment.

E. N. SANDERS, pardoned November 27, 1922. Sanders was convicted in Los Angeles County of extortion, and was sentenced to a term not to exceed five years in the state prison. Hon. Frank R. Willis, the trial judge, recommended executive clemency. Others recommending pardon were the seventeen members of the grand jury that indicted Sanders; all the members of the trial jury that convicted Sanders; Louis D. Oaks, Chief Los Angeles Police Department, and many other prominent officials and citizens of Los Angeles.

JAMES A. RUMMEL, pardoned November 28, 1922. Rummel was convicted in San Joaquin County of burglary in the first degree and was sentenced April 3, 1920, to a term of four years in San Quentin. Pardon was recommended by Hon. Edward Van Vranken, District Attorney who prosecuted Rummel; Hon. J. A. Plummer, Judge of the Superior Court of San Joaquin County; Mr. J. A. Norwood, Chief Probation Officer for the county of San Joaquin; D. P. Eicke, Mayor of Stockton; Albert C. Parker, Justice of the Peace; William H. Riecks, Sheriff, San Joaquin County; A. H. Gazin, master mechanic of the Central California Traction Company, and many others.

GEORGE W. HARRINGTON, pardoned November 28, 1922. Harrington was convicted in San Diego County on March 11, 1912, of murder. Record in prison and on parole was good. Board of Prison Directors voted him meritorious recognition for distinguished service at furniture factory fire. Hon. W. A. Sloane, who sentenced Harrington, recommended pardon. Hon. H. S. Utley, late District Attorney of San Diego County, who prosecuted the prisoner also has recommended that he be pardoned, and many other prominent citizens.

GEORGE M. ZENTGRAF, pardoned November 28, 1922. Zentgraf was convicted in El Dorado County of burglary, and was sentenced to state prison, under Indeterminate Sentence Law, November 24, 1920. Pardon has been recommended by Hon. George H. Thompson, Judge of the Superior Court of El Dorado County, who sentenced the prisoner; Hon. Abe Darlington, District Attorney of El Dorado County, and a large number of citizens and officials of Sacramento and El Dorado counties petitioned me to extend executive clemency to Zentgraf, asserting their belief that he was mentally incompetent at the time of committing the offense.

ROBERT R. BELL, pardoned December 20, 1922. Bell was convicted on December 17, 1920, in Tulare County of the crime of issuing a bank check without funds to meet the same, and was sentenced under the Indeterminate Sentence Law. Definite sentence was fixed at three years. Pardon has been recommended by Hon. W. H. Wallace, sentencing judge; Hon. Fred C. Scott, District Attorney; Court Smith, Sheriff of Tulare County; M. W. Collins, Probation Officer of Tulare County, under whose supervision Bell has been paroled; J. K. Macomber, Supervisor Fifth District, Tulare County; Ross Graham, Constable of Tipton township, and many others.

J. M. FLOWERS, pardoned December 20, 1922. Flowers was convicted on January 31, 1921, in Los Angeles County, of the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses. Definite sentence was fixed at two years. On account of previous conviction in the State of Kansas he was sent to Folsom as a recidivist. Was discharged from prison October 30, 1922, with all credits earned. Entire term of his imprisonment was spent in hospital ward. Owing to the advanced age of the prisoner and his poor physical condition, William F. Lusk, Probation Officer of Los Angeles County, recommended probation at time of his conviction. Recommendation for pardon has been made to me by Chief Justice Lucien Shaw, and the following Supreme Court Justices: Curtis D. Wilbur, W. A. Sloane, Charles A. Shurtleff, Wm. H. Waste, and Wm. P. Lawler. Many citizens of Los Angeles have joined in recommending executive clemency.

EMIL SPITZER, pardoned December 20, 1922. Spitzer was convicted in Los Angeles County, October 10, 1921, of the crime of bigamy. Spitzer, a native of Austria, was ignorant of the marriage laws of this country. It has been recommended to me that Spitzer was ill advised in his defense. During eighteen months Spitzer was confined in the county jail in Los Angeles and during that time was of immense service to the jail authorities in frustrating an attempted wholesale jail delivery, and in other ways. Hon. Sidney N. Reeve, sentencing judge, after careful investigation has recommended executive clemency. Others joining in recommending a pardon for Spitzer were: Chief Deputy District Attorney Asa Keyes; W. J. Clark, Deputy District Attorney, who conducted the prosecution of Spitzer; Carl L. May, Chief Probation Officer, and many citizens of Los Angeles.

CHARLES LAWRENCE STOKES, pardoned December 20, 1922. Stokes pleaded guilty in the Superior Court of the county of Los Angeles, June 24, 1920, to a charge of manslaughter, and was placed on probation for ten years by Judge Gavin W. Craig. Many reputable citizens of Los Angeles County recommended Stokes for executive clemency, in order that he may be relieved of the burdens of the terms of his probation.

C. VINCENT RICCARDI, pardoned December 24, 1922, was convicted in the Superior Court in the City and County of Los Angeles, of embezzlement, and was sentenced to serve a term of from one to five years in San Quentin Prison. Owing to certain activities which he was able to undertake in correcting corrupt conditions then existing in the City and County of San Francisco, and for other reasons he was strongly recommended for Commutation of Sentence, which was granted May 13, 1921. Owing to his good conduct since then and the fact that he is debarred from the practice of law by the courts, he was recommended for a Pardon, to restore his civil rights.

ARTHUR ELLENBURG, pardoned December 23, 1922, was convicted in the Superior Court of the county of Fresno of the crime of embezzlement, January 26, 1918, and sentence fixed by the Board of Prison Directors at three years. He was recommended for pardon by Judge M. F. McCormick, Chester H. Rowell, Hon. H. Z. Austin, and a large number of reputable citizens.

THOMAS ENRIGHT, pardoned December 23, 1922, was convicted of the crime of robbery and prior conviction for the same offense, in the Superior Court of the city and county of San Francisco, April 1, 1908. He was recommended for pardon by Thomas F. Boyle, Percy V. Long, former city attorney of San Francisco, Joseph F. Lahaney, supervisor of the city and county of San Francisco, R. A. Crothers, editor and proprietor of the San Francisco Bulletin, Matthew Brady, district attorney, James M. Hanley, and many others.

STANLEY CRANE, pardoned December 23, 1922, was convicted of the crime of embezzlement in the Superior Court of San Joaquin County, and was sentenced to a term of ten years in San Quentin. He was paroled April, 1921, and his conduct on parole has been excellent. Among those urging executive clemency for Crane were Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, Mrs. E. M. Potts, Jesse L. Greenbaum, Dr. Herbert E. Long, George E. Covell, H. I. James, Dr. John E. Paulson, Rev. A. C. Shepherd, L. B. Levy, Parke Vawter, William E. Billings, Oliver H. Reena, J. E. Manning, Chas. W. Alexander, J. F. Wright, H. H. Somers, Ben Berry, and many others.

JOHN SMITH, was pardoned January, 1923. He was convicted in the county of Trinity on December 17, 1917, of the crime of burglary in the second degree, and was sentenced to serve one year in San Quentin. Recommended for pardon by Hon. James W. Bartlett, judge of the Superior Court of Trinity County who sentenced him; all members of the jury that convicted him; Hon. L. J. Flaherty, United States Surveyor of Customs, San Francisco, and others.

C. M. STITT, pardoned January, 1923. He was convicted in the Superior Court of Los Angeles County on February 20, 1919, of violating section 28 of the Motor Vehicle Act, for driving away an automobile without the consent of owner, and was sentenced under the indeterminate sentence at law to serve two years in San Quentin. He was paroled March 2, 1920, and was discharged from custody October 20, 1920, after having served his full term of two years, with credits. He was recommended for a pardon by Hon. Chas. L. Neumiller, president of the State Board of Prison Directors, and others, because of his excellent record in prison and on parole.

DR. WM. S. CARD, pardoned on condition that he leave the State of California and never return, January, 1923. He was convicted in the Superior Court of the city and county of San Francisco, July 7, 1918, of the crime of murder in the second degree, and was sentenced to serve a term of from ten years to life imprisonment in San Quentin. Was recommended for a pardon by Hon. George H. Cabaniss, who sentenced him; Hon. Frank H. Kerrigan, Associate Justice of the First District Court of Appeal, who reviewed the case on appeal; Hon. Chas. M. Fickert, former district attorney of San Francisco, who conducted the prosecution of Card; Hon. Matthew Brady, present district attorney of San Francisco; all surviving members of the jury that convicted Card; Hon. Samuel M. Shortridge, United States Senator from California; Hon. J. M. Inman, State Senator, of Sacramento; Hon. John H. Riordan, Deputy Attorney General of California, who was prosecuting deputy for the district attorney's office at the trial of Card, and many others.

PHILLIP C. BEUTTER was pardoned January, 1923. He was convicted in the Superior Court of the county of Los Angeles of the crime of burglary and was sentenced under the Indeterminate Sentence Law to serve a term of five years in San Quentin, being received at that prison April 5, 1909. He was paroled November 17, 1911. Pardon was recommended by Dr. John R. Haynes, member of the State Board of Charities and Corrections; Frank M. Bagley, Manager California District Messenger Co., Los Angeles; Miss Faith Chevallier, and many others.

JAMES WILTON CROWHURST, pardoned January 8, 1923. He was convicted of the crime of robbery in the Superior Court of Alameda County August 18, 1905, and was sentenced to serve a term of seven years in Folsom Prison. He was paroled and served his entire term with all credits earned. Pardon recommended by Honorable John J. Allen, District Attorney of Alameda County, who prosecuted Crowhurst; and August Vollmer, Chief of Police of Oakland; Superior Judge William C. Doran of Los Angeles County; Raymond I. Turney, former Deputy District Attorney of Los Angeles, to whom Crowhurst was of great assistance in the successful prosecution of a murder case in Los Angeles County.

HUGH McCANN, pardoned January 8, 1923. He was convicted of the crime of driving away an automobile without the owner's consent, in the Superior Court of San Diego County, September 18, 1922, and was sentenced to serve a term of from one to five years in San Quentin Prison. McCann was a sailor in the United States Navy and but nineteen years of age. Recommended for pardon by Honorable Lewis F. Byington, United States Receiver for Oil Properties in San Francisco, and former District Attorney for San Francisco County, Alexander B. McCabe and others.

COMMUTATIONS GRANTED BY GOVERNOR WM. D. STEPHENS (1921-1922).

C. VINCENT RICCARDI, commuted on May 13, 1921, to a term to end on that date. Riccardi had been convicted in San Francisco County of embezzlement and sentenced to serve a term of one to five years at San Quentin. The grand jury of which Mr. William H. Harrelson was the foreman, and which devoted almost a year to investigating corrupt conditions in a number of the courts in the city and county of San Francisco, the District Attorney, the San Francisco Bar Association and police officials of San Francisco, who assisted in the investigation of these conditions, in recognition of assistance rendered by Riccardi in exposing and correcting corrupt conditions in the courts of the city and county of San Francisco, joined in recommending commutation of sentence.

SIMON RUIZ, commuted on July 5, 1921, to life imprisonment. Ruiz had been convicted in San Bernardino County of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be executed at San Quentin, January 14, 1921. Commutation of sentence to be executed at San Quentin, January 14, 1921. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Hon. J. W. Curtis, Judge of the Superior Court who sentenced Ruiz; the foreman and members of the jury who convicted Ruiz, and by many citizens and civic organizations, because of his extreme youth. The legislature adopted Assembly Bill No. 1282, which became a law July 29, 1921, making it illegal to execute youths under the age of 18 years, convicted of murder in the first degree. This law might have had the effect of rendering the sentence in the case of Ruiz nonenforceable. The Advisory Pardon Board joined in the recommendation for commutation of sentence.

ARTHUR OWEN DAVIS, true name William Henry Norris, commuted on July 18, 1921, to life imprisonment. Davis had been convicted in Shasta County of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin, March 25, 1921. The legislature adopted Assembly Bill No. 1282, which became a law July 29, 1921, making it illegal to execute youths under the age of 18 years, convicted of murder in the first degree. This law might have had the effect of rendering the sentence in the case of Davis nonenforceable.

WALTER LEE SMITH, true name Walter D. Smith, commuted on July 18, 1921, to life imprisonment. Smith had been convicted of murder in the first degree in Monterey County and was sentenced to be hanged at San Quentin on May 20, 1921.

The legislature adopted Assembly Bill No. 1282, which became a law July 29, 1921, making it illegal to execute youths under the age of 18 years, convicted of murder in the first degree. This law might have had the effect of rendering the sentence in the case of Smith nonenforceable.

MRS. MARY A. GREGSON, commuted on September 21, 1921, to a term to end on that date. Mrs. Gregson had been convicted of murder in the second degree, and was sentenced to serve a minimum sentence of ten years at San Quentin. Commutation of sentence was recommended on account of her age and very poor health; the judge who sentenced the prisoner and the District Attorney who prosecuted her did not object to such action on account of her condition.

AH DAN (a Chinese), commuted on November 8, 1921, to a term of twenty-five and one-half years. Ah Dan was convicted in the county of Butte of murder in the first degree, and was sentenced to life imprisonment at Folsom penitentiary on March 26, 1906. Commutation of sentence was recommended by R. W. Durham, employer of the prisoner, who was familiar with the circumstances of the crime; W. E. Gerber of the California National Bank, Sacramento, to whom Ah Dan was paroled; the Advisory Pardon Board; Judge H. D. Gregory, who sentenced the prisoner, and State Parole Officer Ed H. Whyte.

J. R. HOPKINS, commuted on December 30, 1921, to a term to end on that date. Hopkins was convicted of the crime of burglary in Stanislaus County on November 4, 1920, and was sentenced to serve a term of from one to fifteen years in San Quentin. Commutation of sentence was recommended by T. B. Michael, the prosecuting witness, and all members of the jury that convicted the prisoner; Judge J. C. Needham, who sentenced Hopkins; District Attorney W. J. Brown, who prosecuted him; Sheriff R. L. Dallas, who gathered the evidence against the prisoner, and several hundred citizens of Stanislaus County.

JOHN COFFEE, commuted on December 30, 1921, to a term to end on that date. Coffee was convicted of the crime of burglary in Stanislaus County on November 4, 1920, and was sentenced to serve a term of from one to fifteen years in San Quentin. Commutation of sentence recommended by T. B. Michael, the prosecuting witness; all the members of the jury that convicted Coffee; Judge J. C. Needham, who sentenced Coffee; District Attorney W. J. Brown, who prosecuted him, and Sheriff R. L. Dallas, who gathered the evidence against the prisoner.

STEPHEN DUNCAN, commuted December 22, 1921, to a term to end on that date. Duncan was convicted in Trinity County of the crime of murder in the first degree, on April 12, 1912, and was sentenced to life imprisonment in San Quentin. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Judge James W. Bartlett, who sentenced Duncan; by District Attorney H. R. Given, who prosecuted Duncan; and a number of citizens of Trinity County, in view of the extreme youth of the prisoner.

LEUNG OCK (a Chinese), commuted December 16, 1921, to a term to end on that date. Ock was convicted in Siskiyou County of murder in the first degree, and was sentenced to be executed at San Quentin November 8, 1902. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Dr. F. W. Hatch, at that time General Superintendent of State Hospitals, and Dr. Robert L. Richards, Medical Superintendent of the Mendocino State Hospital, in order that he might be deported to China as incurably insane.

SING TIE, true name Chang Sing Tie (a Chinese), commuted December 16, 1921, to a term to end on that date. Tie was convicted in Santa Clara County of arson in the first degree and was sentenced to serve from two years to life imprisonment in the state prison. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Ralph T. Fisher, Director of Institutions, in order that he might be deported to China as incurably insane.

CHRISTOS PARASKEVOPOULIS, commuted May 3, 1922, to time served, upon condition that he be surrendered to the United States Immigration authorities for deportation to Greece, and to remain in force and effect only while and during the time the said Christos Paraskevopolis remain absent from and without the United States. Paraskevopolis was convicted of murder in the first degree in the county of Napa, and was sentenced to life imprisonment in San Quentin on October 31, 1917. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Judge Henry C. Gesford, who sentenced Paraskevopolis; Nathan F. Coombs, District Attorney who prosecuted the prisoner; E. A. Kelton, Sheriff of Napa County; Thomas F. Finn, Sheriff of San Francisco County, and the Advisory Pardon Board.

THOMAS STEPHENS, commuted June 15, 1922, to a term to end on that date. Stephens was convicted of burglary, first degree, in San Francisco County, and was sentenced on March 20, 1920, to ten years in San Quentin. Commutation of sentence recommended by Dr. L. L. Stanley, hospital physician, and a number of others, in order that he might die outside of prison walls.

ALFRED ELLIS, commuted September 8, 1922, to life imprisonment. Ellis was convicted in Ventura County of murder in the first degree, and was sentenced to be hanged September 22, 1922. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Judge Merle J. Rogers, the sentencing judge; Mrs. Mable Dorn-Hirst, of San Francisco; Rev. G. C. Coleman, D.D., pastor of the North Oakland Baptist Church; J. D. Drake, president National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Rev. James B. Holmes of Oakland; Rev. J. W. Brown, pastor First A. M. E. Church, Oakland; Rev. Louis G. Robinson, Los Angeles; Rev. J. C. Anderson, Los Angeles; Rev. A. P. Shaw, West M. E. Church; Rev. A. M. Ward, First A. M. E. Church, Los Angeles; Chas. F. Blackstock, attorney, Oxnard; Rev. J. R. Skinner, Los Angeles; Rev. W. M. Shipley, Los Angeles; Rev. L. B. Brown, Los Angeles; Rev. James A. Warren, Los Angeles, and many others.

ARNOLD V. THOMPSON, commuted November 28, 1922, to a term to expire on that date. Thompson was convicted of burglary, second degree, in San Mateo County, May 15, 1922, and was sentenced to an indeterminate sentence of from one to five years in San Quentin. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Judge George H. Buck, who presided at the trial of Thompson; Mr. Julian Hart, whose residence was entered by Thompson; Miss Mary J. Conway, a member of the Hart household. Disabled American Veterans of the World War agreed to rehabilitate Thompson when released from prison—he being a veteran of the World War.

BERNARD LEVINE, commuted November 28, 1922, to a total of twenty years imprisonment, to include time already served. Levine was convicted of robbery in San Francisco County, August 4, 1911, and prior conviction for assault with intent to commit murder, and was committed to the state prison at Folsom on two commitments, one for life imprisonment and the other for fourteen years imprisonment, not to run concurrently. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Hon. William P. Lawlor, the trial judge; the Supreme Court of California; Rev. Martin A. Meyer, of San Francisco; Herman Davis, of Sacramento; William A. Stryker, Prosecuting Attorney of Warren County, New Jersey; Harry K. Wolff of San Francisco, and many other reputable citizens.

AMMON O. FOWLER, commuted on December 20, 1922, to twenty-five years. Fowler was convicted of the crime of murder in the first degree in the county of San Joaquin, November 30, 1916, sentenced to life imprisonment in Folsom prison. Fowler's conduct during the entire period of his incarceration in Folsom prison was exemplary. Warden Smith recommended that Fowler be rewarded for fine services rendered the prison while in charge of the power plant, and in other ways, by commutation of sentence. Hon. D. P. Eicke, Mayor of Stockton; William H. Riecks, Sheriff of San Joaquin County, and the Advisory Pardon Board recommended commutation of sentence.

PAUL CASE, commuted on December 20, 1922, to twenty years. Case was convicted of the crime of murder in the first degree in Riverside County, January 14, 1914, and sentenced to life imprisonment. Among those who recommended executive clemency for him are: Charles R. Burger, president Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission; Edward F. Fitzpatrick, attorney of Redwood City; Miss Eleanor Herbert of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Kreiss of Redwood City; F. W. Brown of San Francisco; C. O. Tabor of San Francisco; Hon. Lyman Evans of Riverside; J. R. Gabbert of Riverside; Raymond G. Thompson, attorney of Pasadena, and more than one hundred others.

SAMUEL J. LEWIS, (nationality American Negro), commuted on December 20, 1922, to twenty years, was convicted of the crime of murder in the first degree in Los Angeles County and was sentenced August 1, 1916, to life imprisonment in San Quentin prison. Hon. Frank R. Willis, Presiding Judge of the Superior Court of Los Angeles; Hon. Wheaton A. Gray, former judge of the Superior Court of California; J. R. Coats, and Sons of Visalia; W. W. Glenn, Sergeant of Police; Mrs. Mabel Dorn-Hirst of San Francisco; L. McDuff, Sergeant of Police, Los Angeles; Frank Dominguez, and others recommended executive clemency.

EMERSON B. HARTMAN, commuted December 20, 1922, to fifteen years. Hartman was convicted of the crime of murder in the first degree in San Joaquin County, November 3, 1916, and was sentenced to life imprisonment in San Quentin prison. Among those recommending executive clemency are: Wm. H. Riecks, sheriff of San Joaquin County; Hon. D. P. Eicke, mayor of Stockton; State Senator Frank S. Boggs, who was a member of the jury that convicted Hartman, and many other prominent citizens.

JOHN CHIMES, commuted December 20, 1922, to a term ending on that date, was convicted in Los Angeles County of the crime of assault with a deadly weapon, and was sentenced under the Indeterminate Sentence Law, August 21, 1921. Definite sentence was fixed at two years. Many letters and petitions were filed in support of this application for executive clemency, among them one from Hon. Sidney N. Reeve, Hon. Gavin W. Craig, and many other prominent citizens of Los Angeles.

JOHN BOGDEN, commuted December 20, 1922, to a single term of ten years, was convicted in Yolo County, on a charge of burglary, and was sentenced to serve a term of fourteen years in San Quentin prison July 6, 1914, and was sentenced in the Superior Court of Marin County to a term of four years on a charge of escaping from State's prison May 26, 1915. The Supreme Court after careful review of the record, and upon recommendations by Superior Judge N. A. Hawkins, who sentenced Bogden; District Attorney A. J. Bailey, who prosecuted him, and with the approval of J. W. Monroe, sheriff of Yolo County, recommended commutation of sentence to five years. Edward I. Butler, district attorney of Yolo County; Judge Edgar T. Zook of the Superior Court of Marin County; Senator Inman, and other citizens and officials joined in this recommendation for executive clemency.

GEE NING, commuted December 20, 1922, to a term to end on that date, was convicted of the crime of murder in the second degree in the city and county of San Francisco, January 29, 1919, and was sentenced to serve a term of ten years to life in San Quentin prison. A number of citizens have interested themselves in this case and urged executive clemency, among them being Joseph Brachman, who was personally acquainted with Gee Ning for a number of years and had employed him in his own business; Hon. Charles M. Fickert, who was district attorney of San Francisco and had charge of the prosecution of Gee Ning, Hon. Mathew Brady, district attorney of San Francisco, and a number of reputable Chinese.

LEE YICK, commuted to life imprisonment December 20, 1922. He was convicted in Fresno County of the crime of murder in the first degree, and on November 20, 1922, was sentenced by Hon. S. L. Strother, Judge of the Superior Court of Fresno County, to be executed at San Quentin, February 16, 1923. Justice Curtis D. Wilbur of the Supreme Court recommended commutation of sentence. Hon. S. L. Strother, sentencing judge; Hon. B. W. Gearhardt, district attorney; W. F. Jones, sheriff of Fresno County; T. F. Coyle, jailor under Sheriff Jones, and many other prominent officials and citizens joined in recommending executive clemency.

WONG TOY, commuted December 20, 1922, was convicted in the Superior Court of Fresno County of the crime of murder in the first degree, and on November 20, 1922, was sentenced by Hon. S. L. Strother, judge of the Superior Court of Fresno County, to be executed at San Quentin prison on February 16, 1923. Hon. B. W. Gearhardt, who prosecuted Wong Toy recommended commutation of sentence; also Frank Truax, Chief of Police of Fresno; Guy Shawn, Lieutenant of Police, and Sidney J. Shannon, Deputy U. S. Marshal of Fresno; Assemblyman Herbert W. McDowell, Samuel A. Mortland and many others.

THOMAS MASTON, commuted on December 23, 1922, to a term of twenty years. Maston, an American Negro, pleaded guilty to the crime of murder in the first degree in the Superior Court of Los Angeles County, on April 24, 1909, and was sentenced to life imprisonment in San Quentin prison. After serving eight years, eight months and 22 days in prison Maston was released on parole December 22, 1917. His employers have vouched for his good conduct while on parole. Judge Frank R. Willis, sentencing judge, also the Advisory Pardon Board have recommended commutation of sentence, in which they have been joined by many others.

CHARLES H. HADLEY was commuted to a term of twenty years January, 1923. He pleaded guilty in the Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles, January 7, 1918, for crimes of robbery and murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment on the charge of murder and fourteen years apiece on six counts of robbery, to run concurrently. Commutation of sentence to permit the parole of Hadley was recommended by the Supreme Court of California, Hon. Frank L. Willis the sentencing judge; John C. Cline, former Sheriff of Los Angeles County and Capt. Geo. J. Home, former Chief of Police of Los Angeles who were instrumental in the prosecution of Hadley; Hon. Irving Martin, member of the State Railroad Commission of California; State Senator Chas. W. Lyon of Los Angeles; Edward D. Zehner, former Under-Sheriff of Los Angeles; Hon. W. R. Williams, Examiner State Railroad Commission and many others, on account of the extreme youth of Hadley who was but eighteen years old at the time of his conviction.

STEVE (STILANOS) KOURIS was commuted to time served on condition that he be deported to Greece and never return to the United States, January, 1923. He was convicted in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento of the crime of murder in the first degree, on a plea of guilty, and was sentenced to serve a term of life imprisonment in San Quentin by Hon. Malcolm C. Glenn. Strong representations were made that Kouris would never have been convicted had he not pleaded guilty, the sentencing judge advising me that there was some doubt on that score owing to the unwillingness of the witnesses who were all foreigners to give a clear account of the homicide. A strong showing was also made that the deceased threatened Kouris who had been a benefactor to the deceased in many ways, and that the crime was committed in self-defense. More than one hundred leading citizens of Sacramento County joined in recommending that Kouris be commuted on condition that he be deported to Greece.

TONY FRANKINO was commuted to a term of ten years, January 8, 1923. He was convicted of the crime of burglary with explosives in the Superior Court of Lake County, September 21, 1918, and was sentenced to serve a term of from twenty-five to forty years in San Quentin prison, under the provisions of section 464 of the Penal Code of California which provides a minimum sentence of twenty-five years. Commutation of sentence was recommended by Honorable Frank H. Benson, former State Senator of San Jose, Honorable M. S. Sayre, Judge of the Superior Court of Lake County, who sentenced Frankino, Honorable H. B. Churchill, District Attorney of Lake County, who prosecuted him, and others.

SPEROS KASCLAS, commuted to a term of fifteen years, January 8, 1923, was convicted in the Superior Court of Solano County, April 20, 1918, and was sentenced to life imprisonment for the crime of murder. Commutation recommended by Advisory Pardon Board, Arthur Lindauer, who prosecuted Kasclas, the members of the jury that convicted him, State Senator J. M. Inman, and State Senator Frank M. Carr and others.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

SACRAMENTO, January 8, 1923.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California:

I transmit herewith the report of the Board to investigate sites for the location of an agricultural school or college in southern California—signed by the entire Committee appointed pursuant to Assembly Bill 300, Chapter 672, page 1148, Statutes 1921.

Yours truly,

WM. D. STEPHENS.

Governor of the State of California.

SITE BOARD OF FIVE.

1028 Pacific Finance Building, Los Angeles, California.

*His Excellency, The Governor of California,
Sacramento, California.*

MY DEAR SIR: In accordance with an act of the Legislature of 1921 (chapter 672, approved June 3, 1921), the board appointed by you for the purpose of investigating sites for the location of the agricultural school or college in Southern California respectfully submits the following report of its activities and conclusions:

Complying with the terms of the above mentioned Act you appointed as members of the board a member of the College of Agriculture of the State of California, Thomas F. Hunt; the Director of Agriculture of the State of California, G. H. Hecke; and three agriculturists, H. A. Jastro, Bakersfield, S. C. Evans, Riverside, and Mark Grimes, Van Nuys.

The board met in Berkeley on December 14, 1921, and elected H. A. Jastro, Chairman. Later the Board appointed R. N. Wilson, Sacramento, Secretary, who consented to serve without pay. It was agreed that it would be desirable to meet with the Commission on Agricultural Education which had been appointed by you to study the entire problem of agricultural instruction and investigation for California. Such a joint session of the commission and this board was held in Riverside on March 9, 1922, at which time a free discussion of the general problem was held. It was agreed that the Board should delay active consideration of sites until the Commission on Agricultural Education had had an opportunity to study the whole problem of agricultural education for California, both by investigating conditions in California and by visiting Eastern institutions.

Another joint meeting of the commission and this board was held in Berkeley, October 20, 1922, all members of both committees being present with the exception of S. C. Evans, who failed to receive notice of the meeting. Through complete discussion the board obtained the views of the members of the commission as crystallized following an intensive study of the problem.

A public hearing was held by the board on the evening of October 26, 1922, at the Mission Inn, Riverside, at which about thirty-five persons were present. Their opinions concerning the adequacy of the site at Riverside and the desirability of retaining this site as a location for a school or college of agriculture were presented.

On the following morning, October 27th, the board held a hearing at the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce with about twenty-five persons present. Four or five sites were tentatively mentioned to the board as possibly available under certain circumstances. During the afternoon the board examined two of the proposed sites, one at Burbank and one in the vicinity of Van Nuys.

Offers of sites were again considered at a meeting of the board held in Los Angeles on December 15 and 16, 1922, at which time the following sites were offered for consideration:

By W. H. Hay, eight hundred and thirty-six (836) acres, near Owensmouth, on the Ventura Boulevard, San Fernando Valley, nineteen and a half (19½) miles from the Southern Branch of the University of California, at $650.00 per acre. The soil is black loam and irrigation water is supplied by the Los Angeles aqueduct.

By Charles A. Nash, six hundred (600) acres, four (4) miles east of Alhambra, in the San Gabriel Valley, eighteen (18) miles from Los Angeles, at $1,400 per acre. The soil is sandy loam and irrigation water has been developed for three hundred acres.

By the Brant Estate, eight hundred and fifty-two (852) acres, near Owensmouth on the Ventura Boulevard at Calhuenza Avenue, San Fernando Valley, twenty-two (22) miles from Los Angeles at $1,000 per acre. The soil is black loam and irrigation water is supplied by the Los Angeles aqueduct.

By Carnahan and Clark, one thousand (1000) acres near Burbank, sixteen (16) miles from Los Angeles. One hundred and fifty-five (155) acres of this amount would be donated and the remainder would be sold at the rate of more than $1,000 per acre. The soil is a sandy loam and irrigation water is supplied by a pumping plant.

By Hugo Carlson, eight hundred and sixty-five (865) acres, near Owensmouth, on the Ventura Boulevard, at Fallbrook Avenue, San Fernando Valley, twenty-six (26) miles from Los Angeles, for $650.00 per acre. The soil is black loam and irrigation water is supplied by the Los Angeles aqueduct.

By the Los Angeles Extension Company, one thousand (1000) acres, or a portion thereof, near Inglewood, eleven (11) miles from Los Angeles, at $1,000 per acre. Irrigation water is developed for a portion of the property.

By the Ventura Chamber of Commerce, a site near Ventura, in Ventura County, sixty (60) miles from Los Angeles. No exact acreage or price was submitted.

By Volney H. Craig, near San Fernando. Acreage and price not submitted.

Another offer was submitted to the board in confidence, but did not meet with the requirements as interpreted by the board.

It was moved by Mr. Evans, seconded and unanimously carried that all offers be filed as matter of record, and that these be placed in the minutes, copies of which should be furnished to all members of the board.

Following a full consideration of the proposed sites it was moved by Mr. Evans, seconded by Mr. Grimes, and unanimously carried that we recommend to the Governor that the sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000) be appropriated for such summer session courses as shall be deemed practical, to be held during twelve weeks, at Riverside, for the next two years, using the existing facilities of the Citrus Experiment Station and the staff of the College of Agriculture as far as practical and as determined by the College of Agriculture.

Respectfully submitted,

H. A. JASTRO, Chairman.
G. H. HECKE,
MARK GRIMES,
S. C. EVANS,
THOMAS F. HUNT,
Members of Board.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

SACRAMENTO, January 8, 1923.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.

I transmit herewith a certified copy of the Colorado River Compact, signed November 24, 1922, by representatives of the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, and approved by the Honorable Herbert Hoover, who represented the interests of the United States in the negotiations of the Compact. Mr. W. F. McClure, Chief of Division of Engineering, Department of Public Works, assisted by R. T. McKisick, Deputy Attorney General, acted at my request for the State of California. I recommend the approval of the compact at this session of the Legislature.

Yours truly,

WM. D. STEPHENS, Governor.

DIVISION OF ENGINEERING AND IRRIGATION.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

SACRAMENTO, Wednesday, December 13, 1922.

Honorable William D. Stephens,

Capitol Building, Sacramento, California.

Subject:

COLORADO RIVER.

DEAR GOVERNOR:

Agreeable to the provisions of chapter 88 of the Statutes of 1921, you appointed the writer of this note as a member of the Colorado River Commission.

The commission met and organized at Washington, D. C., in January of this year, and during the months of March and April hearings were held in all of the states represented, except New Mexico. Our final meeting convened at Bishops Lodge, four miles southeast of the city of Santa Fe, the capital of the State of New Mexico, on the ninth day of November, 1922, and on the twenty-fourth day of November, 1922, an agreement was reached and Compact signed, copy of which is herewith enclosed.

The result reached in the compact is one deemed fair to all of the states, and one which adequately protects existing rights and forms a clear working basis for the future.

The value of the work of the commission as expressed in the compact depends upon its ratification by the legislatures of all the states in the Colorado River Basin. I deem it important that early ratification shall be made by the State of California, and suggest that you use your good offices to that end.

Very truly yours,

W. F. McCLURE, State Engineer.

COLORADO RIVER COMPACT.

The states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming having resolved to enter into a compact under the act of the Congress of the United States of America approved August 19, 1921 (42 Statutes at Large, page 171) and the acts of the legislatures of the said states, have through their governors appointed as their commissioners:

W. S. Norviel, for the State of Arizona;

W. F. McClure, for the State of California;

Delph E. Carpenter, for the State of Colorado;

J. G. Scrugham, for the State of Nevada;

Stephen B. Davis, Jr., for the State of New Mexico;

R. E. Caldwell, for the State of Utah;

Frank C. Emerson, for the State of Wyoming;

who, after negotiations participated in by Herbert Hoover, appointed by the President as the representative of the United States of America, have agreed upon the following articles:

Article I.

The major purposes of this compact are to provide for the equitable division and apportionment of the use of the waters of the Colorado River System; to establish the relative importance of different beneficial uses of water; to promote interstate comity; to remove causes of present and future controversies; and to secure the expeditious agricultural and industrial development of the Colorado River Basin, the storage of its waters and the protection of life and property from floods. To these ends the Colorado River Basin is divided into two basins, and an apportionment of the use of part of the water of the Colorado River System is made to each of them with the provision that further equitable apportionments may be made.

Article II.

As used in this compact:

(a) The term "Colorado River System" means that portion of the Colorado River and its tributaries within the United States of America.

(b) The term "Colorado River Basin" means all of the drainage area of the Colorado River System and all other territory within the United States of America to which the waters of the Colorado River System shall be beneficially applied.

(c) The term "states of the Upper Division" means the states of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming.

(d) The term "states of the Lower Division" means the states of Arizona, California and Nevada.

(e) The term "Lee Ferry" means a point in the main stream of the Colorado River one mile below the mouth of the Paria River.

(f) The term "Upper Basin" means those parts of the States of Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming within and from which waters naturally drain into the Colorado River System above Lee Ferry, and also all parts of said States located without the drainage area of the Colorado River System which are now or shall hereafter be beneficially served by waters diverted from the System above Lee Ferry.

(g) The term "Lower Basin" means those parts of the States of Arizona, California, Nevada, New Mexico and Utah within and from which waters naturally drain into the Colorado River System below Lee Ferry, and also all parts of said states located without the drainage area of the Colorado River System which are now or shall hereafter be beneficially served by waters diverted from the System below Lee Ferry.

(h) The term "domestic use" shall include the use of water for household, stock, municipal, mining, milling, industrial and other like purposes, but shall exclude the generation of electrical power.

Article III.

(a) There is hereby apportioned from the Colorado River System in perpetuity to the Upper Basin and to the Lower Basin respectively the exclusive beneficial consumptive use of 7,500,000 acre feet of water per annum, which shall include all water necessary for the supply of any rights which may now exist.

(b) In addition to the apportionment in paragraph (a), the Lower Basin is hereby given the right to increase its beneficial consumptive use of such waters by one million acre feet per annum.

(c) If, as a matter of international comity, the United States of America shall hereafter recognize in the United States of Mexico any right to the use of any waters of the Colorado River System, such waters shall be supplied first from the waters which are surplus over and above the aggregate of the quantities specified in paragraphs (a) and (b); and if such surplus shall prove insufficient for this purpose, then, the burden of such deficiency shall be equally borne by the Upper Basin and the Lower Basin, and whenever necessary the States of the Upper Division shall deliver at Lee Ferry water to supply one-half of the deficiency so recognized in addition to that provided in paragraph (d).

(d) The states of the Upper Division will not cause the flow of the river at Lee Ferry to be depleted below an aggregate of 75,000,000 acre feet for any period of ten consecutive years reckoned in continuing progressive series beginning with the first day of October next succeeding the ratification of this compact.

(e) The states of the Upper Division shall not withhold water, and the states of the Lower Division shall not require the delivery of water, which cannot reasonably be applied to domestic and agricultural uses.

(f) Further equitable apportionment of the beneficial uses of the waters of the Colorado River System unapportioned by paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) may be made in the manner provided in paragraph (g) at any time after October first, 1923, if and when either basin shall have reached its total beneficial consumptive use as set out in paragraphs (a) and (b).

(g) In the event of a desire for a further apportionment as provided in paragraph (f) any two signatory states, acting through their Governors, may give joint notice of such desire to the Governors of the other signatory states and to the President of the United States of America, and it shall be the duty of the Governors of the signatory states and of the President of the United States of America forthwith to appoint representatives, whose duty it shall be to divide and apportion equitably between the Upper Basin and Lower Basin the beneficial use of the unapportioned water of the Colorado River System as mentioned in paragraph (f), subject to the legislative ratification of the signatory states and the Congress of the United States of America.

Article IV.

(a) Inasmuch as the Colorado River has ceased to be navigable for commerce and the reservation of its waters for navigation would seriously limit the development of its basin, the use of its waters for purposes of navigation shall be subservient to the uses of such waters for domestic, agricultural and power purposes. If the Congress shall not consent to this paragraph, the other provisions of this compact shall nevertheless remain binding.

(b) Subject to the provisions of this compact, water of the Colorado River System may be impounded and used for the generation of electrical power, but such impounding and use shall be subservient to the use and consumption of such water for agricultural and domestic purposes and shall not interfere with or prevent use for such dominant purposes.

(c) The provisions of this article shall not apply to or interfere with the regulation and control by any state within its boundaries of the appropriation, use and distribution of water.

Article V.

The chief official of each signatory state charged with the administration of water rights, together with the Director of the United States Reclamation Service and the Director of the United States Geological Survey shall cooperate, ex officio:

(a) To promote the systematic determination and coordination of the facts as to flow, appropriation, consumption and use of water in the Colorado River Basin, and the interchange of available information in such matters.

(b) To secure the ascertainment and publication of the annual flow of the Colorado River at Lee Ferry.

(c) To perform such other duties as may be assigned by mutual consent of the signatories from time to time.

Article VI.

Should any claim or controversy arise between any two or more of the signatory states (a) with respect to the waters of the Colorado River System not covered by the terms of this compact; (b) over the meaning or performance of any of the terms of this compact; (c) as to the allocation of the burdens incident to the performance of any article of this compact or the delivery of waters as herein provided; (d) as to the construction or operation of works within the Colorado River Basin to be situated in two or more states, or to be constructed in one state for the benefit of another state; or (e) as to the diversion of water in one state for the benefit of another state; The governors of the states affected, upon the request of one of them, shall forthwith appoint commissioners with power to consider and adjust such claim or controversy, subject to ratification by the legislatures of the states so affected.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the adjustment of any such claim or controversy by any present method or by direct future legislative action of the interested states.

Article VII.

Nothing in this compact shall be construed as affecting the obligations of the United States of America to Indian tribes.

Article VIII.

Present perfected rights to the beneficial use of waters of the Colorado River System are unimpaired by this compact. Whenever storage capacity of 5,000,000 acre feet shall have been provided on the main Colorado River within or for the benefit of the Lower Basin, then claims of such rights, if any, by appropriators or users of water in the Lower Basin against appropriators or users of water in the Upper Basin shall attach to and be satisfied from water that may be stored not in conflict with Article III.

All other rights to beneficial use of waters of the Colorado River System shall be satisfied solely from the water apportioned to that basin in which they are situate.

Article IX.

Nothing in this compact shall be construed to limit or prevent any state from instituting or maintaining any action or proceeding, legal or equitable, for the protection of any right under this compact or the enforcement of any of its provisions.

Article X.

This compact may be terminated at any time by the unanimous agreement of the signatory states. In the event of such termination all rights established under it shall continue unimpaired.

Article XI.

This compact shall become binding and obligatory when it shall have been approved by the legislatures of each of the signatory states and by the Congress of the United States. Notice of approval by the legislatures shall be given by the governor of each signatory state to the governors of the other signatory states and to the President of the United States, and the President of the United States is requested to give notice to the governors of the signatory states of the approval by the Congress of the United States.

In Witness Whereof, the commissioners have signed this compact in a single original, which shall be deposited in the archives of the Department of State of the United States of America, and of which a duly certified copy shall be forwarded to the governor of each of the signatory states.

The above-named commission makes the following recommendation:

The members of the Colorado River Commission have had constantly before them the great menace by annual floods to the lives and property of the people of the Imperial and Palo Verde valleys in California, and the Yuma Valley in Arizona, and the anxiety of their thousands of citizens;

Therefore, they earnestly recommend and urge the early construction of works in the Colorado River, of sufficient size to control the floods and permanently avoid the menace, subject to the Colorado River Compact.

I transmit herewith a report of the committee appointed to investigate and report to the next legislature a plan for the proper treatment and care of narcotic drug addicts, and that "such committee be instructed to embody in their report their recommendations upon the establishment of a hospital for narcotic drug addicts, its cost and location and the approximate number of addicts to be handled therein." Signed by the entire committee appointed pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Senate of 1921.

Yours truly,

WM. D. STEPHENS, Governor.

January 4, 1923.

To His Excellency, Governor William D. Stephens, Sacramento, California.

DEAR SIR:

In pursuance of a resolution adopted by the State Senate on April 21, 1921, (page 1735, Senate Journal, forty-fourth session), wherein it was deemed desirable by the Senate of the State of California to obtain intelligent information upon the subject of drug addiction and the handling of narcotic drug addicts in order that proper legislation might be proposed and in pursuance of your action of October 31, 1921, in appointing the undersigned as members of the committee contemplated in the above mentioned Senate resolution, we beg the honor to report to you as follows:

Your committee has held a number of meetings, has investigated the extent of narcotic drug addiction in California, has interviewed various police and medical authorities and those in charge of institutions and State hospitals in California and other states of the Union. It has corresponded with the departments of health of Great Britain, France, Spain, Norway, Belgium, Denmark, and Sweden in order to make a comparison of the problem which presents itself in the State of California with that elsewhere in the civilized world. Your committee has particularly given attention to the matter of a State hospital for the treatment and cure of those addicted to the use of narcotic drugs and has come to the following conclusions:

From the information procurable it is evident that there are between ten and twenty thousand drug addicts in California occupying all stations of life; many of these addicts are engaged in the illicit traffic in drugs, all of them have a personal interest in having narcotic drugs available for their use. The traffickers in drugs are interested in maintaining the necessary quota of drug users to consume their products. Very few, if any, narcotic drugs are manufactured in California, most of them being manufactured in the east whence they are shipped to old Mexico and other points outside of the United States, whence again they are smuggled into this country and ultimately reach the peddler and through him the consumer. The drug is sold by the manufacturer to the purchaser in Mexico at approximately two cents per grain of morphine, yet when it reaches its ultimate distribution in the hands of the consumer he is obliged to pay approximately fifty cents a grain. This naturally provides an opportunity for an enormous profit to the various dealers in this commodity and such profits serve as a temptation to indulge in the traffic of narcotic drugs.

With ten thousand or more addicts it would obviously be folly to attempt at the present time to provide facilities for the segregation of such a large number. Besides there are thousands of addicts who have the necessary means and influence to avoid falling into the hands of the law. Suppose, therefore, the State should build an institution which would house two thousand addicts, certainly this would serve a very small purpose in reducing the number of addicts. Your committee therefore, does not consider the establishment of such an institution or hospital to be the proper step at the present time in the solution of the narcotic drug problem, nor does the committee consider that the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs lends itself to solution by any state or local community but that it is a matter which could be handled successfully by proper effort on the part of the federal authorities. If the federal government could maintain a strict supervision over the manufacture and distribution of narcotic drugs, including its importation and exportation, enter into treaties with other nations looking toward the control of the importation of opium and its derivatives the solution of the problem of drug addiction would thereby be approached in a practical manner and with the promise of ultimate success. It is also evident to the committee in the matter of punishment of drug peddlers and smugglers, that fines and short jail sentences fall far short of their purposes and that punitive measures to be effective should consist of long jail sentences.

Your committee, therefore, takes the liberty of making the following recommendations:

First, that the Legislature of California memorialize the United States Congress to take such steps looking toward the supervision of the manufacture and importation of narcotic drugs and that treaties be entered into with foreign countries to prevent the smuggling of such drugs into this country.

It is the unanimous opinion of the committee that opium and its derivatives properly used by patients in the hands of the medical profession have been a boon to the human race in the alleviation of suffering and pain and that such proper use of narcotics should in no wise be hampered or interfered with and that the medical profession may be trusted as a whole to properly safeguard those in their charge from abuse of these important and necessary remedies.

The committee further respectfully recommends that the legislature consider the inefficacy of the infliction of fines and short jail sentences upon those convicted of smuggling and peddling narcotic drugs and consider the question of sufficiently long jail sentences as a deterring influence upon smuggling and peddling of narcotics.

Respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF THE SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE COMMISSION ON AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

As Authorized by Assembly Bill No. 1335 by the Forty-fourth Session of the Legislature of California.

There is evidently no great horde of eager young people clamoring for an opportunity to work out their destinies on the soil. Everywhere enrollment is lower than one would expect it to be in consideration of the character of the states in which the colleges are located. The truth is that the Morrill Act came as a result of the ideas of one man, not in response to a great social need, and the supply of agricultural colleges has been greater than the educational demand ever since. Fortunately, they have abundantly justified themselves in the influences they have exerted, but the disappointment of California at the comparatively small enrollment in its agricultural college is shared by every state which we visited, no matter what the type of institution in it. The more the commission studied this problem the more it was convinced that the problem of increasing enrollment in agricultural colleges and keeping boys on the farm is not to be solved by changes in curricula, equipment, or method, but by the betterment of the social and economic conditions of rural life. No plan which leaves this out of major consideration is going to succeed in keeping farmers' sons in great numbers on the farm or in attracting the sons of city dwellers to it. This is the great work of the college of agriculture today, and in it the University of California has no superior, so far as we could find. See page—.)

INTRODUCTION TO THE REPORT.

To the Honorable William D. Stephens,

Governor of the State of California.

The report which follows is the report of the Special Commission provided for by Assembly Bill No. 1335, approved by both houses of the forty-fourth session (1921) of the legislature of California, and signed by you, which reads as follows:

CHAPTER 698.

An act to provide for the appointment of a commission to investigate the plan of operation and organization of agricultural colleges in the United States, and to recommend a plan for the reorganization of agricultural instruction in the State of California, and making an appropriation therefor.

(Approved June 3, 1921. In effect August 2, 1921.)

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The Governor of this State is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint a commission of seven persons, which commission is hereby charged with the investigation of the entire problem of agricultural instruction and investigation. Said commission shall investigate the plan of operation and organization of the leading agricultural colleges of the United States, and report to the Governor before the convening of the forty-fifth session of the Legislature their recommendations upon the reorganization of the agricultural instruction as given in the University of California.

Sec. 2. The sum of ten thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated for the purpose of carrying on the work of said commission as provided for in this act; said money shall be expended and used for the purpose of paying the necessary expenses of the members of said commission while engaged in the performance of their duties, and for all necessary clerical, printing and other expenses connected with the work of carrying out the provisions of this act. The claims of each shall be audited and approved by the board of control in the manner provided by law, and when so approved the State Controller is authorized to draw his warrant therefor, and the Treasurer is directed to pay the same.

In pursuance of the above act, Governor William D. Stephens appointed G. Harold Powell, Los Angeles; W. S. Guilford, Butte City; Doctor Elwood Mead, Berkeley; J. James Hollister, Gaviota; Sheridan W. Baker, Santa Rosa; Sam G. Mortland, Fresno; Robert G. Sproul, Berkeley.

The commission met and organized at San Francisco, electing Mr. G. Harold Powell as chairman. Because of the untimely death of Mr. Powell, on February 18, 1922, it was necessary for the Governor to appoint a new member of the commission, which he did, on March 8, 1922, in the person of Mr. A. C. Hardison of Santa Paula, whom the commission elected chairman. Mr. Powell attended but one meeting of the commission and had no part in the formulation of the final report.

The commission afterwards held four meetings in Berkeley, and one each at Davis, Fresno, Ontario, El Centro, Riverside, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Public hearings were held in San Francisco, Red Bluff, Sacramento, Fresno and Los Angeles, at which an effort was made to secure the attendance of farmers, graduates of the College of Agriculture, school men, and other persons interested in public education, and particularly agricultural education.

In accordance with the legislation, the commission also made a trip across the continent, studying the more important recent developments in agricultural education elsewhere with a view to adapting the best educational experience and practice of other states to the needs of California.

Throughout its period of service the commission has been aided very greatly by Mr. R. N. Wilson, secretary of the Agricultural Legislative Committee, whose services were loaned to the commission without cost by the organization which employs him. Mr. Wilson not only performed the routine duties of secretary in a highly acceptable manner, but by his wide acquaintance with the agricultural interests of California and his intelligent knowledge of the problems of the commission contributed greatly to anything of merit which it may have accomplished. The commission was also materially assisted by the helpful cooperation of Dean Thomas F. Hunt, and other members of the staff of the College of Agriculture of the University of California, by Mr. Will C. Wood, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the members of his organization interested in agricultural education, by Mr. Morton W. Hill, principal of the Chateau Union Junior College, by Mr. Nicholas Ricciardi, president of the California Polytechnic School and by Mr. Ben R. Walker, associate editor of the Fresno Republican, who accompanied the commission on its trip across the continent, at his own expense, gave helpful publicity to its efforts, and brought to its assistance the trained ability of a newspaperman to ascertain, select and classify the essential facts presented by the various colleges and universities visited. Many others too numerous to mention here have given assistance to the commission both in California and outside of the state. The commission gratefully acknowledges the contribution of all these persons, both named and unnamed.

From its first meeting the commission has gone on the theory that it was not expected to make an exhaustive survey of the needs and resources of the State in the matter of agricultural education, but that its findings should deal with the general features of the present situation and with principles of action which might improve that situation. It was the opinion of the commission also that the Legislature did not intend that it should deal in detail with such highly professional questions as curricula, but rather that it was intended that the commission should study the more general features of administration and teaching with a view to making recommendations for the strengthening and more effective functioning of the state's agricultural educational system. To have adopted any other point of view would have required time, money, expert help and professional ability which the commission did not have and for which the legislature had made no financial provision. The commission has also felt that in dealing with the system of agricultural education in this State, account should be taken of the nature and direction of the historical development which has taken place since the agricultural college was first contemplated, in 1860, and should also be in harmony with the best American experience in the organization and administration of agricultural teaching.

On the basis of these principles, the commission has divided its study into three sections: Elementary and Secondary Schools, Farm Schools, and Universities and Colleges, and as was the plain intent of the bill which created the commission, has concentrated the major part of its time and effort on the latter subdivision. The basis upon which the hearings with reference to universities and colleges were developed is set forth in full in the chapter devoted to those institutions. The study of the commission, of course, went far beyond the formal limits of the questionnaire which is set forth, but it was the basis of study and shows the general character of the problems on which the commission sought light.

The attempt of the commission in the chapters which follow has been to set forth the historical background of each type of institution, the present character and future program of the institution and the conclusions and recommendations of the commission based upon the former two factors. The commission has not, in most cases, made any suggestions as to legislative or administrative details, but has tried to offer a constructive program for improvement which might be worked out over a period of years.

ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

Recent legislative acts of the National government have provided the basis for a sound countrywide system of agricultural education in public schools of less than University grade. The program outlined in the Smith-Hughes, or Vocational Education Act, of 1917, has been adapted to the needs of practically every state in the Union and whatever differences now exist are not fundamental. The commission, therefore, confined its study of this phase of the problem of agricultural education to a survey of conditions in California alone, thinking it more important to review the local situation than to multiply evidences of the successful application of the broad general theory in the several states visited on its tour of investigation.

Before entering upon a discussion of the system of agricultural education in the schools of California it will be well to briefly review the character and purpose of the National Vocational Education Act. It is by compliance with the requirements of this act that federal funds are made available for the furtherance of agricultural education within the state, and much of our present system of instruction in the elementary schools and the high schools is dependent upon the continuance of this federal aid. As stated in its preamble, the Vocational Education Act is an act to provide for the promotion of vocational education; to provide for cooperation with the several states in the promotion of such education; to provide for cooperation with the states in the preparation of teachers of vocational subjects; and to appropriate money for these several purposes and to regulate its expenditure. A Federal Board of Vocational Education was created by the act and authorized to carry out its provisions.

The Legislature of the State of California accepted the provisions of the Federal Vocational Education Act in an act passed and approved in May, 1917. This act provided, among other things, for the acceptance of funds for the payment of salaries of teachers, directors, and supervisors of agricultural subjects, and the maintenance of courses, classes, or schools for the training of such teachers, directors and supervisors. Some of the more important articles of the agreement entered into by the California State Board of Education and the Federal Board of Vocational Education for the administration of the federal and state acts may be enumerated as follows:

1. All courses and classes must be under the supervision and control of the public school authorities. The supervision of agricultural education is to be under the direction of a Commissioner of Vocational Education, assisted by a Supervisor of Agricultural Education, both officials to act under the plan of supervision established by the State Board of Education and approved by the Federal Vocational Board.

2. Courses are to be established and maintained only by high school boards. These boards have control of both high schools and intermediate elementary schools.

3. The controlling purpose of all such education is to be the fitting of pupils for the occupation of farming.

4. The instruction in all courses must be of less than collegiate grade.

5. The courses are to be designed for and open to all persons over fourteen years of age.

6. The teachers placed in charge of such courses must hold special certificates in agriculture of the vocational or technical arts type and must be experienced in farming.

7. On the average not less than three hours per day of each pupil's time must be devoted to farm project work and the instruction pertaining thereto; and not less than three hours per day to academic work in class or in school. Each pupil must conduct at least one farm project during the year, such project to be selected separately for each student on the basis of his interest, opportunity, and ability. Project work consists of the production and marketing of farm, orchard, vineyard, or garden crops or of bees, poultry, stock, or other animals and their products. All projects must be conducted on a commercially productive basis. Each pupil must buy, lease, or rent the necessary land and animals, purchase the necessary seed, fertilizers, and feed, rent teams and farm implements, employ labor, market the product, and keep a complete record of all transactions, together with the time spent on the project. Final balancing of the books proves the success or failure of the project as a commercial venture. Project work must be supervised by the agricultural teacher.

8. In accepting the terms of the Federal Vocational Education Act the State of California agrees to appropriate one dollar for every dollar received from federal sources for the aid of agricultural education.

Elementary Schools.

Having thus briefly outlined the acts and agreements governing agricultural education in this State we may now turn to consideration of the particular methods employed in the various classes of schools. For more than fifteen years section 1665 of the Political Code of California has required all elementary schools to give instruction " * * * in nature study, with special reference to agriculture * * *". Practically all of our teachers' colleges offer some instruction in agriculture in order that the teachers graduated may be prepared technically to comply with this regulation of the statutes. But girls reared in the city generally have little understanding of such conditions and can not be successfully prepared to teach agriculture in a brief auxiliary course of instruction. This fact, combined with a lack of interest or initiative on the part of many country school authorities, has led in the past to a more or less general disregard of the law requiring agricultural instruction in the grade schools. There have been a few notable exceptions to this general statement, but they do not greatly affect its application to the State as a whole.

In the city schools the problem has been and is admittedly a difficult one, but the need is not so pressing as in the rural districts. In Los Angeles, Long Beach, Pasadena, San Diego, and in Oakland, work in elementary agriculture and in school and home gardening is now being carried on under the direction of full-time supervisors of agriculture, assisted in some cases by full or part-time agricultural teachers. Pupils receive instruction in the fundamental facts and theories of plant and animal production and certain semivocational training in the landscaping of school and home grounds and in backyard and vacant lot garden projects.

In rural elementary schools it is now possible to provide instruction in agriculture in one of two ways:

1. High school teachers of agriculture generally devote part of their time to work with pupils of the grade schools.

2. County supervisors of agriculture have been appointed in several counties to organize and oversee agricultural instruction.

High school teachers of agriculture, especially those working under the provisions of the Vocational Education Act, are required to devote part of their time to extension work in their particular high school district. Most often this extension work takes the form of giving lessons in agriculture in the rural grade schools and in organizing and supervising boys' and girls' agricultural clubs. Practically every rural school in the state is now included in or affiliated with some high school district and there has been a steady increase in the number of high schools employing agricultural teachers. Here appears to be the nucleus for a sound and practical system of worth-while instruction in agriculture in the rural grade schools. If every high school in the state employed an agricultural teacher and if the teacher's schedules were so arranged that sufficient time would be available for periodical visits to the elementary schools of the district, much would have been accomplished. On each visit instruction would be given which could be applied to local or community problems and such instruction should be of interest to all pupils in the school. Such a system might well be the means of arousing and sustaining the interest of farm children in farm life and, if it should be, this fact alone would justify the expense involved.

County supervisors of agriculture have been appointed in Fresno, Santa Clara and Kern counties. In Fresno and Santa Clara counties the supervisors devote their full time to organizing and supervising instruction in agriculture in the elementary schools. In Kern County the supervisors' activities are limited to the Kern County Union High School District. This office was made possible by an act of the 1921 Legislature which placed $1,400 at the disposal of each county superintendent of schools for every 500 rural pupils enrolled in the county, such money to be used for rural school supervision, although not necessarily for a supervisor of agriculture. County supervisors of agriculture will be chiefly valuable in counties where there are no teachers of agriculture in the high schools capable of or with sufficient time to carry on similar work. It would seem, however, that if it is possible to have a teacher of agriculture in every high school, with time for work in the elementary schools of his district, the necessary instruction would be better given than where one man is serving the entire county and the actual instruction is in the hands of the regular grade school teachers.

In connection with the work now being carried on in the rural elementary schools, some mention should be made of the boys' and girls' agricultural clubs organized under the direction of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University. A large part of this work has been done in cooperation with the rural school teachers. During the year 1922 there were three hundred and ten clubs in the State with a total enrollment of nearly twenty-four hundred boys and girls. This work is being carried on under the provisions of the Smith-Lever Act passed by the Congress of the United States in 1914. The declared purpose of this act is "to aid in diffusing among the people of the United States useful and practical information on subjects relating to agriculture and home economics and to encourage the application of the same by means of cooperative extension work of the Land Grant Colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture." The agents delegated to supervise this work in California are the county farm advisers, the home demonstration agents, and the boys' and girls' club leaders.

Some question has arisen concerning the possibility of a conflict in the work of extension agents and vocational agricultural teachers and also concerning the propriety of the University carrying on work with children of the State through the elementary schools. This controversy, if it merits such a name, is largely a technical one. The first question has been cleared up to a large extent by a recognition of the diverse nature of the work of the two groups and by supplementary agreements entered into between the directors of each type of educational service. Extension workers, in contradistinction to vocational teachers, do not offer a systematic course of instruction, but deal almost entirely with specific problems of farm practice and business management in particular rural communities. Furthermore, the relationship which should exist between the extension workers (Smith-Lever Act) and vocational teachers (Smith-Hughes Act) has been definitely outlined by an agreement entered into by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Federal Vocational Education Board, an agreement which has been amplified informally and ratified by the proper authorities in this state. The general form of the agreement may be stated as follows:

1. It is to be understood that all agricultural extension work should be administered by those in charge of extension activities in the state and that all vocational education in agriculture should be administered by those in charge of the vocational schools of the State.

2. That all extension work with adults done by teachers in vocational schools be in accordance with the plans of the extension system for the state, and in cooperation with the agent who is in charge of the administration of the extension work in the county.

3. That in counties having vocational schools of agriculture the extension service will conduct its extension work in agriculture with children, chiefly through the organization of clubs for the carrying on of definite pieces of work for the improvement of agricultural practice. The practical agricultural work of the schools will chiefly consist of home project work by the students as a part of the systematic practical instruction provided for in the Smith-Hughes Act. It is advised that in such counties a cooperative agreement be made between the extension authorities and the school authorities whereby it will be arranged for the teachers of agriculture to take part in the extension activities with the children within the territory of the school and that such territory be set forth in the agreement.

4. That in every case care be taken to see that work which is supported by federal funds under any of the aforementioned acts will not in any way duplicate or overlap work being carried on in that same community when that work is supported in any part from another federal fund.

The second question which relates to the activities of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University and the State Board of Education is not strictly a debatable one. It must be admitted that all activities organized in public schools and supervised by teachers in these schools should be under the control of the regularly constituted school authorities. Whenever the State Board of Education is ready and equipped to take over the agricultural club work in the schools, the Agricultural Extension Service of the University will undoubtedly be willing to transfer the burden.

High Schools.

The year 1909 marks the beginning of serious attempts to introduce instruction in agriculture into the curricula of the high schools of the State. During the following eight years approximately one hundred high schools offered, and in some cases maintained, instruction in various agricultural subjects. None of these schools gave a complete course in agriculture, however, and with few exceptions the courses given depended wholly upon classroom work and textbook study. Notable exceptions were the high schools at Bakersfield in Kern County and Gardena in Los Angeles County, both of these schools having acquired school farms upon which the practical aspects of agriculture might be taught and studied. It would be well to note here, however, that both schools have abandoned the idea of training farmers on high school farms. They do not provide normal conditions and have proved expensive to maintain.

The movement to introduce agricultural courses into the secondary school curricula met with indifferent success during this period from 1909 to 1917. This is not surprising inasmuch as it was a period of experimentation and time was needed to adjust educational theories to the needs of the pupil and the community. Perhaps the chief weaknesses displayed in these early attempts were the highly theoretical nature of the courses offered and the general confusion of the purpose of agricultural instruction in secondary schools with the purpose of collegiate instruction in the same subject.

It was not until the Vocational Education Act became effective in 1917 that a policy for the development of agricultural courses in the high schools was adopted, which combined the project idea of training in the art and business of farming, with instruction in the science of farming. Since that time steady progress has been made in correlating the work done in class and laboratory with the practical problems encountered in the field. Even students not residing on farms are urged to secure experience by working on farms and, before they have completed their course, they must submit evidence of having worked a definite length of time on an accredited farm, such work to be performed under the supervision of a teacher of agriculture.

When the State accepted the provisions of the Federal Vocational Education Act, the State Board of Education decided that the first step in a sound program for the promotion of vocational education in secondary schools was the development of courses of study and methods of instruction which would be suited to the general and particular needs of various communities. This was and is pioneer work. The State Board of Education has cooperated with local high school boards in the establishment of a limited number of federal and State aided four-year courses in agriculture. The schools giving these courses are well distributed geographically throughout the agricultural regions of the State, only three being located in large cities, namely, Los Angeles, Pasadena, and Oakland.

The locations were all selected with due regard for the agricultural possibilities of the community, the size and the population of the high school district, and the attitude of the school authorities and the people of the community toward the work. No attempt has been made to favor the poorer high school districts with apportionment of federal and State funds. In fact, it has been deemed wiser to secure the cooperation of the wealthier districts in solving the many problems presented so that later, when satisfactory methods and courses of study have been evolved, the poorer districts can be included in the work with a minimum of waste and inefficiency in the expenditure of funds.

Progress has been gratifying although slow. High school boards, principals, and teachers, change so often that it is extremely hard to maintain a constant policy with regard to agricultural instruction in a given community. When difficulties confront the school authorities exploring new educational fields, and the cry is raised for lower taxes, the tendency is to revert to the old classroom, textbook methods of instruction. The terms of the Vocational Education Act and the regulations of the State Board of Education are designed to prevent such retrogression, but the withdrawal of federal and state funds is a negative remedy and does not aid pupils desiring an education in agricultural subjects.

The following table shows the development of courses in agriculture under the provisions of the federal and State vocational education acts from 1917 to date. For purposes of organization and supervision the State has been separated into five regional divisions, the constituent parts of each division having broadly similar problems in the field of agricultural education and practice. The figures are presented for each of these regional divisions.

In the year 1922 vocational courses in agriculture were established in sixty high schools in twenty-six counties, the total enrollment being approximately 1500 pupils. Of these schools twenty-five offered a full four-year course and the majority of the remainder a two-year course. For the smaller schools in the poorer districts the two-year course is perhaps all that can be developed at least for some time to come.

If sufficient funds had been available, forty or fifty more high schools would now be conducting vocational courses in agriculture under the federal and State vocational education acts. It is the policy of the State Board of Education to authorize the establishment of only a limited number of courses for which the funds available will be adequate.

It was not the purpose of the federal and state vocational education acts to provide funds for vocational courses already well financed by local communities and there are approximately sixty high schools and junior high schools in the State which are offering agricultural instruction independent of federal and State aid. There is a great variation in both the method and the scope of the work offered in these schools. Some teach entirely from books and others have well organized vocational courses. Some offer only one class in agriculture and others offer a full four-year course. Of the better type, one of the best examples is the Kern County Union High School at Bakersfield. A brief outline of their methods should be of value as they are pioneers in the work and have achieved a marked degree of success in recent years.

Instruction is divided between class, laboratory, and field, approximately one-third of the available time being given to each method of instruction. The practice work, including project work, and boys' club work, is all carried on outside school hours. One type of work is taken up each school year.

First year: Plant growth and habits; soils; vegetable gardening; poultry raising; bee keeping; project allied to class work.

Second year: Animal husbandry; dairying; project allied to class work.

In addition there are forty high schools and eleven junior high schools offering courses in agriculture which are not reimbursed from State funds.

Third year: Horticulture; viticulture; project allied to class work.

Fourth year: Farm management; soil conditions; project in farm management.

In addition to the agricultural courses given in the Kern County High School the agricultural teaching staff, now numbering five people, visits certain of the grammar schools in the county each week and gives agricultural instruction to pupils in the grades. These men do not teach nature study and call it agriculture. They select important agricultural problems of the community and discuss them with the pupils. One hundred and seventy-nine grammar school students were given instruction of this kind last year.

Junior Colleges.

With the enactment of recent legislation looking toward the development of junior colleges, considerable interest has been manifested in the inclusion of agricultural courses in the curricula of these institutions. The Chaffey Junior College at Ontario is the only institution of its kind in the State which is at present offering instruction comparable to that offered in the first two years of the College of Agriculture, University of California. Schools at Fullerton, Modesto, and Santa Rosa are offering one or more junior college courses in agriculture this year in addition to some basic science courses. Schools at Lodi, Petaluma, Sacramento, Salinas, and Sebastopol are contemplating the establishing of junior college courses in agriculture, as are the Chico and Fresno State teachers colleges. It is probable that when the cost of installing and maintaining a course similar to that given at Chaffey Junior College is realized, many contemplated plans will be modified or abandoned. This opinion is further strengthened by the fact that with the development of the freshman and sophomore courses at the branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis and the possible further duplication of this work under the auspices of the university in southern and central California, there may not be enough demand for further junior colleges of agriculture to justify their existence.

Two types of work may be given profitably in junior colleges of agriculture, the one vocational, the other academic. The first will meet the needs of those who will complete their institutional training when they are graduated from the junior college. It should be organized along vocational lines with due respect for the major agricultural interests of the region in which the school is located, and should not attempt to prepare the student for further work of university grade. The academic courses, on the other hand, should be designed to give students who complete them, junior standing in the university. The courses in the basic sciences and in applied agriculture would of necessity be similar to, if not identical with, the courses given in the first two years of the College of Agriculture at the university. As has been previously stated, the cost of installing and maintaining courses of the latter type would in most cases be prohibitive.

Brief mention should be made here of the remarkable work accomplished by the Chaffey Junior College of Agriculture. It has now been in operation for three years and has become an important part of the educational system in southern California. Primarily its function is to serve the needs of high school graduates and adults who find it difficult or impossible to leave home for further schooling. Certain courses have been planned so that students may receive two years credit toward college graduation. Other courses have been planned for those who wish to broaden their general education, but who do not contemplate attendance at the university. A third group of short courses has been designed for those who can spend only a limited amount of time in school during each year.

The Chaffey school is on a 30-acre campus in the Ontario-Upland section. Its equipment includes four main buildings devoted to class, laboratory, and library purposes; a greenhouse; a lath house; a gymnasium; and a large athletic field. The library is endowed and contains 15,000 carefully selected volumes which are being added to each year. In the reading room 100 daily, weekly, and monthly publications are kept on file.

The agricultural instructors at Chaffey Junior College not only give classroom and field instruction, but they also carry on extension work among the farmers of the district and conduct experimental and demonstration plots on the school grounds and on private farms in the vicinity. Courses are offered in citriculture, deciduous fruit culture, animal husbandry, dairying, bee husbandry, poultry husbandry, and in the sciences underlying all branches of agriculture. During the present year enrollment at Chaffey Junior College of Agriculture totaled two hundred and eighty pupils and the average daily attendance has been close to 250 pupils.

Conclusions of the Commission.

1. The basis for a sound and practical system of agricultural education in the elementary and secondary schools of California has been provided by the Federal and State Vocational Education Acts of 1917.

2. The principal need of the elementary schools of the State is for a competent corps of instructors. If the regular grade teachers are to instruct pupils upon agricultural subjects they must receive a more thorough preparation for the work, and they should be under the close supervision of a specially trained district director of agricultural education. An alternative plan which holds promise of even better results, is to place the actual teaching of agriculture in the grade schools in the hands of the local high school teachers in agriculture. When every high school has an agricultural department this will be a possible and practical solution of the problem of teaching agriculture in the elementary schools.

3. In the high schools the Smith-Hughes work has made a successful beginning and its extension is recommended. The project feature of this type of agriculture instruction has proved particularly valuable. Constant improvement of the high school teaching personnel is distinctly desirable and is rapidly taking place.

4. Agricultural instruction given in the high schools either now or in the future, should be better correlated with the work given in the College of Agriculture of the university than has been the case in the past. This is a practical possibility under present university requirements and is usually neglected because of unfamiliarity with these requirements.

5. In the opinion of the commission, junior colleges of agriculture, equivalent to the first two years of the College of Agriculture in a university, can not be efficiently conducted or adequately financed except by the State. The brilliant record of Chaffey Junior College might seem to indicate that this opinion is erroneous, but we believe that the community in which Chaffey is located is unusually rich and we doubt if even it will always bear easily the constantly mounting cost of scientific agricultural education, research and extension. Whether it will or not, there are certainly few other districts which could copy it, and it is therefore not practical to look in this direction for state development.

6. As a practical substitute for the Chaffey type of school and as a supplement to the College of Agriculture of the University of California and its branches, this commission strongly recommends that consideration be given by the State Board of Education to the extension of agricultural instruction by the project system into the junior colleges. Under this system a reasonable number of junior colleges, strategically located, could, without the very heavy expense of land, buildings, livestock, and farm equipment, conduct worth-while vocational agricultural courses that would be a very serviceable factor in keeping the boy on the farm and fitting him to make of the farm a profitable business venture.

7. Finally, the Commission recommends strongly that support and encouragement be given the branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis where the facilities and staff are such as to guarantee the most successful results in the first two years beyond the high school, both from the point of view of vocational and professional training. This type of school can not be duplicated by any smaller political subdivision than the state, and it should not be duplicated even by the state, which after all has not limitless finances, until the need develops. Neither enrollment nor any other factor indicates that need at the present time, but when such need does appear, it would seem logical that similar institutions should be established in central and southern California.

FARM SCHOOLS.

The State of California has a well-established high school system, including a number of schools offering instruction in agriculture and rural home-making. These schools provide the most efficient and least expensive means both for a general cultural education and for instruction of secondary grade in agriculture and home economics, with the added advantage that they are in the communities where the pupils reside. These schools meet the requirements of the State as college preparatory schools and as vocational schools of secondary grade.

On the other hand, the College of Agriculture of the University of California provides adequate higher instruction. This instruction, by its very nature, requires a large staff of specialists and relatively expensive equipment. The College of Agriculture can for the present meet every need of California with respect to collegiate instruction in agriculture; it requires only additional funds and facilities to make fully available its very efficient staff. No state in the Union has more than one state college of agriculture (except the negro colleges in the south), and it seems highly doubtful if even California can at this time afford to maintain more than one.

Between these two groups of institutions there is a limited educational service to be rendered by what are generally known as farm schools. These should be vocational training schools of secondary grade, teaching the practical handicrafts and well-established principles of agriculture and home-making to relatively immature persons, or to those whose time or educational limitations will not permit more extended training. They are, in part, maintained by Smith-Hughes funds and are subject to the provisions of the Smith-Hughes Act "that such education shall be of less than college grade and be designed to meet the needs of persons over fourteen years of age who have entered upon, or who are preparing to enter upon, the work of the farm or of the farm home." This act recognizes distinctly the secondary school pupil and no other.

It is of great importance that California definitely determine its policy with reference to these special schools basing it on a clear knowledge of the educational service to be rendered by such schools and of their relation to other units in the educational system. The highest efficiency and the greatest economy of educational organization and administration can be obtained only through a clear differentiation of purpose and functions among the various classes and grades of institutions and through a strict observance of these functions and limitations.

The commission was informed that several of the states in this country had made serious errors in the organization of their educational systems by allowing unwarranted duplication to arise when local or political considerations have over-riden logical planning. They therefore made a careful study of the farm schools (where such schools existed) in all of the states visited. Following is a description of the farm schools of Montana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, New York, and California:

Montana.

As originally organized under the state constitution in 1893, there were four separate institutions of higher learning in Montana widely separated from each other in location. These were the State University at Missoula, the State College (Land Grant College) at Bozeman, the State School of Mines at Butte, and the State Normal School at Dillon. In 1913 the four colleges were combined by legislative action and declared to be one institution, the University of Montana.

The School of Agriculture at Bozeman, the only institution in the state offering a complete course of agricultural instruction of secondary grade, is connected with the State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts at the same place. The course extends through three years of six months each (eighteen months of actual instruction) and classes are held only in the winter months when farm workers are more easily spared from their usual labors. For admission to the school students must have passed the eighth grade of grammar school or must give satisfactory evidence to the principal of their ability to carry the prescribed courses. Persons 21 years of age or over may be admitted to the school without having completed the eighth grade provided they have had some practical experience in farm work and possess some common school education. There were 103 students registered for instruction in the school at the opening of the 1922-1923 school year. In 1921-1922 there were 173 students, and in 1920-1921 there were 126 students. (One woman student was included in the enrollment figures for 1921-1922.) Students who complete the course with satisfactory grades are given certificates of graduation. The courses offered are intended to prepare students for practical farm operation rather than for entrance to college.

The plant and apparatus at the disposal of the school are the same as that used by the College of Agriculture. The college grounds and farm contain 455 acres. Ninety-five acres of this land constitutes the college campus and 360 acres are used for farming and experiment station purposes. The equipment includes a modern dairy, a complete poultry plant, model farm buildings and barns, herds of purebred live stock, orchards, greenhouses, grain, soil, biological, chemical, and physical laboratories, wood and iron-working shops, and a selected group of farm implements, tractors and gas engines.

Courses are offered in the usual agricultural and allied subjects and in addition instruction is given in English and in military science. The main subdivisions of the school curriculum are agricultural engineering, agronomy, animal husbandry, dairy husbandry, entomology and zoology, horticulture, poultry husbandry, and veterinary science.

Bozeman, the seat of the College of Agriculture, where the courses in the school of agriculture are given, is in the center of a very rich farming area.

Agricultural educators and state officials in the State of Montana are not in favor of expanding the present School of Agriculture nor of creating new schools of this type. Their present policy is to broaden the courses of study in the regular high schools of the state to include instruction in agriculture and home economics, and they claim that very effective work is now being done in this way. One or more trained agricultural teachers are added to the teaching staff of the high school and work is continued throughout the year, both in the classroom and on experimental plots on the home farms of the pupils. In some cases the State College of Agriculture is cooperating in this work by supplying teaching aid.

According to the authorities in this state the teaching of agriculture in the regular high schools will accomplish all that might be accomplished by separate agricultural schools. They believe that by this method more people will be reached, standards of instruction will be maintained, and state expenses will be reduced. Their experience thus far has partially supported this belief.

Minnesota.

Secondary schools of agriculture in this state are an integral part of the Department of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota and are administered by the university authorities. There are three such schools, the Central School located at the seat of the university, St. Paul, the Northwest School at Crookston, and the West Central School at Morris. Each school has its own separate faculty and is not dependent upon the State College of Agriculture for teaching aid. The schools are co-educational. The total enrollment in all schools by decades since 1901 has been as follows: 1901, 450; 1911, 879; 1921, 955.

The Central School of Agriculture located at the University Farm, St. Paul, is the oldest of the three schools. It was established in 1888. The school does not possess any land but is allowed restricted use of the land of the University Experiment Station including more than 400 acres. All of the mechanical equipment and the live stock of the College of Agriculture is used in the work of the Central School of Agriculture.

The Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston in the Red River Valley opened in 1906. A second school of agriculture was deemed necessary at this time for two reasons:

1. The distance of the Central School from the northern part of the state. Many possible students were barred from attendance by reason of their inability to expend the time or money necessary to take the course offered at St. Paul.

2. Agricultural conditions in the Red River Valley, in many respects, differ radically from conditions in the southern part of Minnesota, and a school devoting its attention to and operating under local conditions was thought desirable.

There is an experiment station directed by the Department of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota in connection with this school. The farm, consisting of 476 acres, is fully equipped with stock and machinery.

The West Central School of Agriculture was established in 1910 as a part of the Department of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota. It is located at Morris in the western part of the state, and its students are all drawn from that section, a predominantly agricultural area. The school farm comprises approximately 400 acres. The physical plant is adequate and ample opportunity to work with live stock and mechanical farm equipment is afforded students. This school and the Northwest School, functioning as branches of the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station, carry on experimental research and farm extension work.

The requirements for entrance, the curricula, and the graduation requirements of all three schools are similar and in this respect they may be treated as one. The only scholastic qualification for entrance is a grammar school education or its equivalent in practical experience. The curriculum for boys includes training in all branches of agriculture and in associated subjects. The courses include general farming, live stock production, crop production and farm mechanics. For girls the schools offer courses in home economics.

The schools of agriculture are in session six months of the year but the curricula offer a program for the full twelve months, including six months of theory and six months of farm practice. The theoretical work in class and laboratory is given during the six winter months. The farm practice consists of supervised work on a farm (usually the home farm since the large majority of the students at these schools are farm boys) during the six summer months. Graduation requirements include attendance at three winter sessions of six months each, the completion of two summers of supervised farm work, and the attainment of satisfactory grades in the required and the elective work offered, in the course selected.

Under certain conditions work taken in these schools may be used in meeting college entrance requirements, but in all cases of this kind additional preparation is necessary. As a general rule the schools are not designed to prepare students for college. Their field of service lies with farm boys who can only attend school during the winter months; with city boys who desire to become farmers, and who need practical preparation; and with older boys who, because of their age, do not wish to attend the regular high schools.

The educational authorities of the State of Minnesota believe in these schools as institutions which are likely to return boys to the land with greater certainty and less expense than junior colleges or universities. The farm school at the University of Minnesota is probably the least successful in this regard and it is certainly the least popular. Its association with the university has caused confusion, dissatisfaction, and considerable discredit to the Department of Agriculture of the University, from which it cannot be dissociated in the popular mind.

Wisconsin.

Secondary school instruction in agriculture in the State of Wisconsin is provided by six county agricultural schools and by the Short Course in Agriculture offered by the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. County schools are located at Marinette, Marinette County; Rochester, Racine County; Wisconsin Rapids, Wood County; Menomonie, Dunn County; Onalaska, La Crosse County; and Waunatosa, Milwaukee County. The Short Course in Agriculture is given at Madison, the seat of the state university.

When first organized the county school of agriculture offered only two years of instruction designed for graduates of the grade or grammar schools. Three of the schools, the Dunn, La Crosse, and Milwaukee County schools now have both two and four-year courses. When the latter three schools are inspected by representatives of the University of Wisconsin, they may be declared, under certain circumstances, accredited high schools of the state. Students graduating from the four-year course in agriculture are then allowed to enter the university on the same basis as graduates of the regular high schools, that is upon presenting evidence of having satisfactorily completed eleven units of academic work and four or more units of vocational work, and of having complied with other entrance requirements of the university. Students who complete only the two-year course in the county schools, and who later decide that they wish to attend the university, must go to some high school and complete their four years of work.

The University of Wisconsin has no direct control over the administration of the county schools of agriculture. They are under the direction of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. It is true that the law authorizing these schools states that the Dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin shall aid in their location and in arranging their courses of study. This latter part of the law has never been observed.

The short course in agriculture at the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin was established in 1885. Instruction is given by the regular members of the teaching staff of the college. The equipment of the college, including four experimental farms embracing 743 acres, is used in the work. The full course consists of two terms of fifteen weeks each and each term is divided into three sections of five weeks each. Students may enter the school at the beginning of any five-week period as the course is so planned that a definite unit of work is completed every five weeks. The school opens in November, closes for the Christmas holidays, begins the second five-week period in January, the third in February, and closes in

The teaching staff of the branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis is common to both degree and non-degree students. Likewise the equipment of the college, including buildings, machinery and live stock is used by non-degree students. Buildings are provided for classroom and laboratory work in the various subjects in which instruction is offered and in addition there are modern barns for live stock, shops for agricultural engineering work, and sheds for flocks of poultry. Herds or specimens of the more important breeds of the various classes of live stock are maintained on the farm and used in non-degree course work. A large acreage devoted to field crop investigations, a commercial orchard and vineyard, and a small vegetable acreage are also available for field instruction.

The non-degree courses now offered by the branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis include a three-year course for anyone 18 years of age or older who has the equivalent of a grammar school education; a two-year course for high school graduates; and a one-year course for those who can not spend more time in educational preparation for their life work. The non-degree courses are not preparatory to work in the University of California nor do they yield credit toward a bachelor's degree.

The course is primarily practical and a large part of the work is done in the laboratory, shop, and field. Major work is offered in animal husbandry, dairy industry, horticulture, and poultry husbandry. All of the major work offered in any one of these courses may be completed in one year but if a student wishes to obtain a certificate of graduation he must complete at least two years of work. Within these major subjects instruction is also offered in agricultural engineering, agronomy, farm management and practice, olericulture and rural economics, as well as in English, mathematics, hygiene, and physical education. Satisfactory completion of the prescribed work during the school terms and at least three months of supervised work on a commercially operated farm are required for graduation.

It is not possible to determine accurately the number of different individuals who have received instruction at the University Farm since the fall of 1908. The following table indicates that over 5000 persons have been enrolled aside from University students, of which about 2000 were Farm School students and 3000 short course students:

Year	New Students	Short Course	Visitors	Teachers	Total

CALIFORNIA POLYTECHNIC SCHOOL.

The California Polytechnic School is a State school for vocational training in agriculture, mechanical arts, and domestic science. It is administered by the State Board of Education and is in no way connected with the University of California. The school site is about one mile from the town of San Luis Obispo. The farm lands owned by the school cover 1336 acres, 450 of which are tillable, the remainder being rolling hill land and mountain pasture. The principal cereals and field crops, and certain orchard fruits are grown on the farm. It is well equipped with modern machinery and herds of the better known breeds of live stock are now being built up.

The school is a special school intended to meet the educational needs of boys and girls who will probably have to complete their school education when or before they are 17 years old. It is not intended to compete with any high school in the State. The work given does not correspond to that given in the regular high schools and is not usually accepted for entrance to the University. Any boy or girl fifteen years of age or over who is proved capable, by test, of doing the prescribed work is admitted. No elementary or high school graduation certificate is required to secure admission. The agricultural courses offered are generally more practical than theoretical and vocational guidance in actual field work is stressed rather than the science and theory of agriculture. The major courses for boys are two in number. The one dealing with agriculture is entitled General Farm Practice. It covers the field of agronomy, animal husbandry, horticulture, dairying, poultry husbandry, and certain subjects known as related work including English, mathematics, history, physical education, and general sciences upon which modern agriculture is based. The second major course for boys is a course in engineering and mechanics and for girls there is a course in household arts. The regular course in all major subjects is four years in length and the successful completion of all of the prescribed work is required for graduation. Intensive training for shorter periods is given those who can not take the four-year course.

While not strictly in accord with the purpose of the school, it has been deemed wise to include in its curriculum a course which definitely prepares students for work in the University and in teachers' colleges. No detailed program of study is framed for students taking this course, a special program being arranged for each individual. The California Polytechnic School is accredited by the University of California.

Conclusions of the Commission.

As a result of its study of the farm school problem, the scope of which has been outlined above, the commission has arrived at certain definite conclusions which may be briefly summarized as follows:

1. The educational service of the farm school occupies a narrow field of usefulness between the Smith-Hughes work in the high schools and the collegiate instruction in the University, but within this field is of considerable importance.

2. The farm school should be a vocational training school of secondary grade, teaching relatively immature persons the practical handicrafts and the well established principles of agriculture and homemaking, with a minimum of general cultural courses. It should prepare young people for farming and homemaking by the shortest route. It should emphasize the practical and, only in a very limited degree, teach the scientific and theoretical aspects of agriculture.

3. The farm schools should be primarily finishing schools, not college preparatory schools. To become the latter denies the premise upon which they were established. To care for the student who, in the farm school, discovers his "career" and wishes further education, some correlation with the University should be effected, so that certain work would be accepted for matriculation and the balance of the requirements met through examinations.

4. The farm school should not conduct research work of any kind. This can be done only by highly trained specialists, a class of men not needed to impart established knowledge to young people of high school age. It is also very expensive and requires special facilities.

5. The farm school should do no extension work. Extension work deals with mature farmers and brings to them methods based on knowledge of recent and often incomplete research. This type of service cannot be given advantageously by those who have been chosen primarily for their ability to teach the immature. Reliable extension teaching, which will keep ahead of the demands of the farmers for exact information, can only be done by extension workers who are in close touch with specialized teaching and investigation departments such as exist in the college of agriculture.

6. The farm school should not admit the student over 21 years of age who has discovered too late the need of an education. This student should improve his preparation and enter the University as a special student or should take short course work in the line of his special interest. Experience has shown that the mixing of mature and immature students of varying degrees of preparation and ability is disastrous to the effectiveness of a teaching institution. The type of short course offered at the University of Wisconsin seems to this commission to meet admirably the need of the student who fits neither in the high school, the farm school, or the college of agriculture.

7. The farm school, being a part of the secondary school system, should be under the State Board of Education. This body should insure its rendering its particular service and keep it in proper adjustment with the other units of the school system.

8. The need for farm schools is limited. It is the opinion of the commission that this need in California would be fully met at the present time by the careful, efficient and attractive development of the California Polytechnic School at San Luis Obispo, to which should be transferred all the non-degree work now given at Davis except the short courses for persons beyond high school age.

UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES.

During the Civil War President Abraham Lincoln signed the act of Congress of July 2, 1862, known as the first Morrill Act, under which there was granted to each state 30,000 acres of the public domain for each senator and representative; this land to be sold and the proceeds invested so as to bear interest at not less than 5 per cent, except for one-tenth of the total, which might be used for the purchase of sites for the college and experimental farms. The interest was to be used for the endowment, support and maintenance of at least one college where the leading object should be to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life. Under this act have been established most of the colleges of agriculture, and out of some of these have grown the great state universities which are such a notable feature of our American educational system.

The first institution to receive a grant under the Morrill Act was Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, which accepted the federal gift on September 11, 1862. This was rapidly followed by Kansas State Agricultural College on February 16, 1863, and Michigan Agricultural College on February 25, 1863. There are now fifty-three land grant colleges, of which the oldest is Rutgers College, New Jersey, founded in 1766, which is a private corporation. The oldest state institution to benefit by the act is the University of Tennessee, established in 1794. The oldest independent state college of agriculture and the mechanic arts is Michigan Agricultural College, established in 1855.

Of the states receiving income under the act, Kentucky, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia, and Massachusetts divide the fund between two institutions. The others maintain one college or university to which it goes as a whole. Nineteen states have erected and maintain independent colleges of agriculture and the mechanic arts, while also maintaining state universities; twenty-eight states have but one institution. Massachusetts has no state university and divides the fund between Massachusetts Agricultural College, a state institution, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a private foundation. In Montana the agricultural college has a separate name and management, but is by law one of the component parts of the state university, which includes all the state-supported institutions of higher learning.

In California the first attempt to take advantage of the Morrill Act was made in 1866 when the legislature created the "Agricultural, Mining, and Mechanical Arts College," and provided for the purchase of a farm of not less than 160 acres of land. This institution never got beyond the stage of preliminary organization, during which it was affiliated with the College of California, which had opened in 1860, to form the University of California. This institution was created by an "organic act" passed by the legislature March 23, 1868, on which date it also received a land grant fund under the Morrill Act.

Organization of agricultural instruction and research in the University began with the election of a "professor of agriculture, chemistry, agricultural and applied chemistry and horticulture" in 1869. In 1874 the first agricultural buildings were erected—a barn 36x44 feet, a tool house 64x12 feet, two propagation houses; and a number of sheds, outbuildings, hot-beds and cold frames, and shortly thereafter one of the main buildings of the University, afterwards known as South Hall, was erected to house the college of agriculture, which it did in a portion of the basement. Permanent buildings for the college of agriculture were provided on the Hearst architectural plan, and the first of these, Agriculture Hall, was completed in 1912 at a cost of $200,000. The second, Hilgard Hall, was built in 1917 at a cost of about $375,000. Between the barns of 1874 and the great buildings of recent date the college of agriculture has gathered unto itself most of the old structures on the campus as their former occupants left for better accommodations or other parts.

The University of California College of Agriculture began as did all its fellows with encyclopedic instruction, but it soon passed from this to the scientific method and in so doing exerting a marked influence on similar institutions elsewhere. Continually since that time California has led the field in the promotion of the scientific point of view and the application of scientific research, but it has followed, sometimes, at a considerable distance, in equipment for instruction and investigation in practical lines. The college has always stood against the inclusion of enforced manual labor in the curriculum, a principle the commission has now found to be accepted all over the country. Another fundamental idea of the college has been that the requirements for admission and graduation in agriculture should be as high as in any other technical college.

Agricultural instruction for some decades was conducted by lecture and classroom methods almost exclusively, and the farmers of the state began to complain that they had a college but no farm and no opportunity for instruction by actual demonstration. This was remedied in some measure through practice courses in the field and various other devices, but agitation was continuous for a real farm. This agitation was often underlaid by separatist schemes and selfish desires to move the college to one location and another, and under such circumstances made little headway with the majority of the farmers, who always contended for building up agricultural research and instruction in the university and not apart from it. Finally, however, a broad and rational proposition was presented to the legislature of 1905 and resulted in the establishment of the University Farm at Davis. This farm was welcomed into the University, and academic ideas broadened to include its functions. The influence of the University Farm has been powerful in developing the college of agriculture and advancing it in public esteem, and has until very recently quieted the separatist movement which is the curse the Morrill Act has laid on so many state universities.

The fact that the Morrill Act was so drawn as to make its benefits available either to a university or to a college carrying on work only in the specific fields mentioned by the act has created a situation which is one of the most fruitful sources of contention in American agricultural circles. Twenty-eight states have chosen to have a single institution, nineteen two separate and independent institutions, and in all forty-seven the battle has raged intermittently to change the status quo. This complication and the strong partisanship manifested by those who know one or the other type of institution was probably responsible, more than any other single factor, for the appointment of this commission. While the act of the legislature gives it a broad field of duties covering all of agricultural education, the specific problem which it was expected to study and report on was the advantages and disadvantages of the separate college of agriculture as against the college of agriculture which is an integral part of a great state university.

To better fit the commission to reach a judgment on this important matter the act directed that the commissioners should visit agricultural colleges and study their organization and accomplishments. In accordance with this direction a visit of from one to two days and a careful survey was made of each of the following: Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis; Montana Agricultural College, Bozeman; University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; University of Wisconsin, Madison; University of Illinois, Urbana; Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana; Iowa State College, Ames; Ontario, Agricultural College, Guelph, Canada; Cornell University, Ithaca, New York; Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst. These particular institutions were chosen for a variety of reasons, but chiefly to give a wide range of types from which fairly general conclusions might be drawn. Oregon Agricultural College is separate from the State University of Oregon, but is more a "vocational university" than a purely agricultural college, including as it does commerce, engineering, mining, home economics, pharmacy, and music. Montana Agricultural College is an example of a college separated geographically but united administratively with a university, the University of Montana being a paper university with colleges situated at Missoula, Butte, Bozeman, and Dillon, all under a sort of super-president who is known as a chancellor. The University of Minnesota exhibits a Siamese twin relationship between the agricultural college and the other parts of the institution. The campus of the college is thirteen minutes by street car from the campus of the university proper, and there is a rather definite administrative demarcation between the two institutions, although they are under the same president and regents. Another factor which interested us in Minnesota was that the agricultural college is there the head of the system of special agricultural education for the state, directing the vocational farm schools in various localities as well as a farm school on the college campus. The University of Wisconsin is probably the finest example of a state institution including a college of agriculture administratively, geographically, and spiritually welded into the whole as an integral part. Moreover the agricultural work of the University of Wisconsin has been so conspicuously successful that no survey could be considered in any way complete which did not include it. Purdue University is properly the college of applied science of the State of Indiana, including schools of agriculture, engineering, science, and home economics. The other types of university work are at the University of Indiana at Bloomington, from which Purdue is entirely separate. The University of Illinois, which includes a college of agriculture on its campus and directly under its control, is one of the very large state universities whose problem of numbers is similar to that of California. Iowa State College at Ames is a separate institution of agriculture and the mechanic arts whose praises have been sung in farmer circles all over the country and particularly in our own State. Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph, Canada, is a vocational school whose graduates receive their degrees through the University of Toronto, with which, however, it does not seem to have any other connection. It was thought to be of interest as a well known and reasonably successful school developed under different traditions and environment from the colleges of the United States. Cornell University is a private endowed institution to which the State of New York has entrusted in major part its educational function in agriculture and veterinary science. The college of agriculture is an integral part of the university in every way except that its property, buildings and equipment are kept legally apart although on one campus. The control of both college and university is in one board of trustees and its direction in the president of the university. This is the only example in the United States of a combination of agricultural education with an endowed institution for the advancement of general culture. Massachusetts Agricultural College is probably the only collegiate institution in America confining its instruction practically to agriculture alone, excluding the so-called mechanic arts. It is neither part of a university nor is it conducting a university under another name. In addition to the colleges and universities listed above, the commission held conferences while in the east with President Butterick, of the General Education Board, President Pritchett, of the Carnegie Foundation, and Dr. A. C. True, Director of the States Relations Service of the United States Department of Agriculture.

At each institution the commission followed the outline set forth below in its quest for information. It was not possible at every institution to develop all the points covered by this outline, but the following interesting data was discovered by conference with the faculty, administrative officers, students, and successful farmers of the state:

1. Composition of Governing Board.
 - (a) Number.
 - (b) How appointed.
 - (c) Relations to college of agriculture.
 1. Are they or any part of them actively interested in the problems and management of the college?
 - (d) Do they receive compensation and if so, how much?
 - (e) Occupations; if retired, former occupations.
2. Facilities and physical equipment.
 - (a) Amount of farming land and location of college with reference to it.
 - (b) Have you any lands at a distance from the campus, used for regular class instruction?
 - (c) How many dairy cattle?
stock cattle?
sheep?
horses?
poultry?
other stock?
 - (d) Number of buildings and character of same.
 - (e) What is the total annual appropriation for maintenance of the college of agriculture?
 - (f) In your opinion, can a first class agricultural college be maintained without plenty of stock for practical demonstration without plenty of land?
3. Student body.
 - (a) Number of university students.
 - (b) Number of agricultural degree students.
 - (c) What percentage of the high school graduates of the state enter your college?
 - (d) What percentage of your students come from the farm?
 - (e) What percentage go to other agricultural institutions in the state? Outside the state?
 - (f) What was the number of your agricultural graduates in 1921?
 - (g) Graduate students in 1921?
 - (h) What percentage of your graduates take up farming?
 - (i) What percentage become agricultural experts and leaders?
 - (j) What percentage of your students work to pay part or all of their expenses?
 - (k) What percentage of your graduates have financial backing to start farming after graduation?
 - (l) Can you suggest the names of some of your graduates in the vicinity who may be interviewed?

4. Faculty and Administration.

(a) Organization of faculty.

(1) Is this established by law?

(b) Administrative organization of college of agriculture.

(1) Powers and duties of deans and other administrative officers.

(c) Relation of college of agriculture to other colleges.

(1) Is it under a separate faculty?

(2) What degree of autonomy has it?

(3) What power has general faculty body over the affairs of the college?

(d) What relations govern the activities of professors or instructors with regard to teaching, research and outside activities?

(e) What are the minimum, maximum and average salaries paid in different faculty grades?

(1) Are they the same as in other departments of the university?

(f) Is there any distinction made between members of the college of agriculture, the agricultural extension service, and the experiment station?

5. Curriculum and Standards.

(a) What are your standards of admission?

(1) Do you admit freely and select later, or do you attempt to make selection before entrance?

(2) Do you admit special students who are deficient in matriculation requirements and permit them to remedy deficiencies during their college course?

(b) What are your major divisions?

(1) What is included under each of those heads?

(c) To what extent is your instruction practical in each division?

(d) What courses not given in the agricultural college are required of agricultural students and what courses are elected by large numbers of such students?

(e) Are any farm schools (schools for vocational or non-degree students) maintained in connection with the college?

(1) Where are they located?

(2) Are they under the direction of the college faculty?

(3) Are the faculties of the college and the farm school separate?

(4) Number of students.

(5) Length of course.

(6) What is the type of training given farm school students?

(7) Are the courses in these schools intended for students between the ages of fourteen and eighteen, or are they intended for students who have reached the college age, but do not have the requirements for admission to college?

(8) Are the courses preparatory to college courses or entirely vocational?

a. If college preparatory, are they accepted at par in transferring from farm school to the college?

(f) Are there any junior colleges in your state giving instruction in agriculture?

(1) What farm land is available to each of these colleges?

(2) How much live stock?

(3) What building and laboratory facilities?

(g) Extension service.

(1) Organization.

(2) Staff.

(3) Cost.

(4) What proportion of this money is spent in field—in office?

(5) How much public service, such as organizing farmers, et cetera?

(6) Do members of the staff engaged in the extension work have academic titles and status?

(7) Do they have the same privileges as to vacations, sabbatical leaves and old age pensions as other members of the faculty?

(h) What short courses in agriculture are given in your institution?

(1) What is the length of each?

(2) What was the attendance in 1921?

(i) To what extent does the college of agriculture include in its curriculum mechanic arts, home economics and allied courses?

(j) What is your policy with reference to research work and experimental stations?

(1) Do you undertake fundamental or specific problems?

(2) Is your work scattered in various localities throughout the state or centralized?

(3) Is the work of the experiment station organized on a project basis and if so, is money allotted to the project or to divisions and are reports required at regular intervals?

(k) What is the character of your instruction and research in business and social problems of agriculture?

(1) Courses in cooperation and marketing?

(2) Courses in farm credits.

(3) Courses in problems of land tenure and land settlement.

(l) What are your fundamental requirements for graduation?

Governing Boards.

The number of trustees varies from one at Guelph, where the Minister of Agriculture for the Province of Ontario stands alone between the college and the legislature, to forty-one at Cornell. Very generally appointments are made by the governor, the most notable exception being Illinois, where of the eleven trustees two are ex officio and the remaining nine elected by the people. At Cornell, which combines a state college with an endowed university, the Governor of New York appoints five of the trustees, seven are ex officio, two are elected by the trustees, two are chosen by the alumni, one is the oldest living descendant of Ezra Cornell, and many other groups are represented. At Purdue three of the nine trustees are named by the alumni and six are appointed by the governor in accordance with a law which provides that two must represent agriculture, two industry, and two the general public.

Almost universally the trustees are keenly interested in the progress and success of the college, but leave to the faculty and administration the direction and conduct of its affairs. Even where the board is elaborately organized with councils or committees to deal with special matters, the business of these divisions is limited to aiding the dean of the college on matters of policy which he brings before them and does not extend to interference in the development and activities of the institution. At Purdue University and Iowa State College the trustees receive a small per diem, but in all other cases they are allowed only traveling expenses, and seldom collect these.

The occupations of the board members of the various institutions visited were most interesting, the unexpected fact being developed that in no case does a majority of the board consist of farmers or representatives of agriculture. For instance, such strongly agricultural institutions as Iowa State College at Ames and the University of Wisconsin have but one farmer on their boards. Moreover, at Ames the active management of the institution so far as the trustees are concerned rests with the finance committee of the board which consists of two newspapermen and a school man. Nor was the absence of strong numerical agricultural representation found objectionable in this or any other case. The general opinion was expressed by President Kerr of Oregon Agricultural College, who said, "The efficiency of a board of regents depends on the character of the men, not on their occupations. We have had farmers on our board who have been entirely unsatisfactory to the college, and men in other occupations who have earnestly promoted its best interests." Every institution visited and every person with whom the commission consulted stressed the importance of long terms and consequent freedom from political interference if a board of trustees was to be even measurably successful.

The following table exhibits in brief certain of the facts with reference to the membership of the managing boards of the institutions visited:

	No. of trustees or regents	No. of farmers on board	No. of ex-officio members	No. ap- pointed by governor	Remarks
Oregon Agricultural College -----	13	3	4	9	Appointed with approval of State Senate
Montana Agricultural College -----	11	--	--	--
University of Minnesota----	12	1	3	9
University of Wisconsin----	13	1	2	11	1 from each congressional district, 2 from State at large
University of Illinois-----	11	1	2	0	Regents elected

Facilities and Physical Equipment.

The land holdings, physical equipment, stock, and buildings naturally varied greatly in the institutions visited, both on account of the differences in State wealth and the emphasis placed by the administration on one phase or another of agricultural education. But these variations were as nothing to the widely differing opinions expressed by educators of standing as to the amount of these things, particularly land, necessary for a successful college—one of the points in which the commission was most vitally interested. One extreme was represented by former Dean L. H. Bailey of Cornell, who has made a study of the College of Agriculture of the University of California and who advised the commission that with 100 acres for demonstration and instructional purposes at Berkeley, the University of California could equal any institution in the country and surpass any separate agricultural college. The other extreme is probably best represented by Iowa State College, which with 1500 acres of tillable land believes that its work could be put on a much higher plane if it had twice that amount, some of which would undoubtedly be used for raising crops and feed that could well be purchased. Most persons consulted seemed to be of the opinion that with about 200 acres, satisfactory work could be done.

Oregon Agricultural College now has about 300 acres of farm land of fair quality, adjacent to Corvallis, and opinion is strongly in favor of the acquisition of 1500 acres additional; not necessarily immediately connected with the campus. Certain areas are even now used for instructional purposes which are two miles from the college. On these lands the college maintains 150 head of dairy cattle, 51 head of stock, 195 head of sheep, 154 swine, 37 horses, 750 laying hens, 820 breeding hens, 3000 young poultry, and 15 head of angora goats.

The University of Minnesota has 422½ acres of farming land as part of its agricultural campus, which, with the buildings and equipment located thereon, is valued at $2,500,000. Purdue University has about 700 acres of land within an hour's ride of the campus used for instructional purposes and also has 400 acres for experimental work. Of this 385 acres are allotted to animal husbandry, 280 acres to agronomy, 10 acres to horticulture, and 17 acres to poultry husbandry. The University of Wisconsin has 746 acres of tillable land on the campus and within a half hour's ride. The University of Illinois is located in the heart of the corn belt, and has almost a thousand acres available for instruction and research.

Iowa State College has a very complete physical equipment. In all, it owns over 1400 acres of land, of which 125 acres are in the campus proper, and the remainder in experiment station farms, orchards, gardens, and a forestry tract. Some forty buildings stand on the campus, including a remarkably fine animal husbandry laboratory which provides complete facilities for the killing, cutting, and curing of meats as conducted on the farm. There is a dairy herd of 100 pure-bred animals, and similar high quality representation of horses, sheep, beef cattle, swine, and poultry. The investment of the state in the college is approximately $4,000,000.

Cornell University has 1200 acres of land in a poor farming section, a good deal of which is not tillable, and only 200 acres of which are used for instructional purposes. Massachusetts Agricultural College is situated on about 600 acres of poor farm land and has a demonstration forest of 1765 acres, six miles away. Of the educational experts who were interviewed in New York, Dr. Butterick of the General Education Board was of the opinion that 200 acres should be ample for instructional purposes at any agricultural college.

The University of California has its headquarters at Berkeley, where three acres of tillable land and 100 acres of pasturage are now available. Here are located the laboratories of agronomy, citriculture, entomology, forestry, fruit products, genetics, landscape gardening, plant nutrition, pomology, nutrition, plant pathology, and soil technology. The headquarters of agricultural education, agronomy, citriculture, entomology, forestry, farm management, genetics, landscape gardening, nutrition, plant nutrition, plant pathology, pomology, rural institutions, soil technology, veterinary science, and viticulture, are also at Berkeley.

At Davis, 45 miles from Berkeley, is the university farm of almost 1100 acres; 780 acres owned by the University and 300 acres under lease. Here are numerous buildings for the various phases of agriculture and horticulture, two stock judging pavilions, agricultural engineering shops, a gymnasium, dormitories, and a dining hall, as well as barns and sheds for horses, dairy and beef cattle, sheep, milk goats, swine, and poultry. The more important breeds of the various classes of farm animals are present for use in class work. A large well-equipped poultry farm is stocked with several thousand fowl of a number of leading varieties. There are over 150 acres of orchards and vineyards on the farm and ample areas for growing vegetables and field crops. The farm has a modern system of irrigation, being under both a pump and gravity system. The headquarters of the following divisions are at Davis: agricultural engineering, animal husbandry, dairy industry, irrigation practice, olericulture, and poultry husbandry. In addition, the divisions of agricultural education, agronomy, entomology, genetics, pomology, rural institutions, soil technology, viticulture, and fruit products offer courses.

The Graduate School of Tropical Agriculture and Citrus Experiment Station is located on 477 acres near Riverside, in the center of the citrus region. Ample laboratory facilities are available, and the station is convenient to all the tropical and subtropical fruit industries.

Faculty and Administration.

During the past few years certain unfortunate differences have developed at the University of California between the College of Agriculture and the Academic Senate of the University, which is a legislative body consisting of all persons of the rank of instructor or above engaged in resident instruction. This body since 1920 has tended to take on administrative as well as legislative functions, has excluded from its membership a portion of the faculty of the College of Agriculture on the ground that they were not engaged in resident instruction, and has set up as the basis for selection and advancement of persons in academic life the Doctor of Philosophy degree, or its equivalent. Because of these and similar happenings and the friction caused by them, the College of Agriculture has come to look upon the Academic Senate as an unfriendly body whose continued power in its present form will be prejudicial, not only to the aims and purposes, but to the very existence of the college. One part of the commission's investigation was to determine the freedom of the College of Agriculture at the University of California as compared with similar colleges elsewhere, both in and out of universities.

At Oregon Agricultural College the president has great power and is the center of faculty organization. There is an academic council consisting of all deans and heads of departments which exercises certain functions in connection with the curriculum of agriculture as well as the other branches of the institution, but since the members of this council are all appointed by the president, have the powers which he gives them, and serve at his pleasure, it is obvious that the body is purely advisory. No distinction is made between the members of the college of agriculture, the experiment station, and the extension service, except that farm advisors or county agents in the latter service are not given academic status, titles, or privileges. Faculty members at Corvallis generally carry on both instruction and research. They are not allowed to accept compensation for outside work.

The College of Agriculture at the University of Minnesota consists of:

1. The college proper,
2. Farm schools throughout the state,
3. Short courses,
4. Extension service,
5. Experiment station.

This group is administered by the dean of the College of Agriculture who reports directly to the president of the university, who has an absolute veto on his recommendations. The faculties of other colleges of the university have not authority in connection with the College of Agriculture except where courses in those colleges constitute part of the agricultural curriculum. This statement does not apply to the graduate school which is divided into seven groups, not colleges, one of which is agriculture. The faculty of the graduate school is elected by the whole faculty of the university and this applies to the agricultural group as well as all others. The members of the agricultural faculty expressed themselves as heartily in favor of this arrangement, believing that a degree given under such conditions represents more than if the requirements were determined by the agricultural faculty alone. No distinction is made at Minnesota between men engaged in research, extension, and resident instruction, except that county agents are not given any academic privileges.

The Montana State College is a small institution and has had no problems of faculty coordination. The representatives of the departments of agriculture, engineering, chemistry, and home economics all play a part with the president and chancellor in shaping the curriculum and activities of the institution. All members of the faculty are free to accept compensation for outside activities, but men in agriculture have never done so. All members of the staff above the rank of instructor get sabbatical leave and other academic privileges. County agents have the rank of instructor and can not go higher in the academic scale.

At the University of Wisconsin the faculty of the College of Agriculture is an integral part of the university faculty, "not only physically, but spiritually and intellectually." There is team work in every phase of the activities of the university and college and particularly in research, where Dean Russell spoke of the tremendous advantage of the cooperation of other academic departments. The general faculty body in which all members of the staff of the College of Agriculture of appropriate rank may sit, must ratify all courses and requirements in agriculture. All members of the faculty are employed on a basis of nine months' service, may accept outside work for pay, and receive a sabbatical year under certain conditions. No distinction is made between men in instruction, research, or extension in any of these regards except that county agents are not included. The university believes that it is advantageous for men to engage in all three of these activities and that no one of them may be set above or below the others.

At the University of Illinois there is an academic senate consisting of all persons of full professorial rank and all heads of departments. This body has power over the College of Agriculture as to educational policy and must approve all new courses, curricula, and departments. It has no part in the appointment or advancement of professors or in the determination of budgets, all of which are taken up directly by the deans with the president. Employment is on a twelve months' basis in all colleges, but agricultural men actually work eleven months as against ten months in in other departments, getting proportionately larger salaries. Faculty members may accept outside work for pay and do so to a limited extent. No distinction is made between instruction, research, or extension; all being regarded as mere phases of the broad work of the college. County agents have no academic rank and are not considered as part of the agricultural college organization.

The College of Agriculture at Purdue University consists of seven departments—agronomy, animal husbandry, dairying, farm management and rural economics, horticulture, poultry and farm mechanics. There are four deans: of science, agriculture, engineering and women. An executive committee consisting of these deans and the heads of the various departments meets frequently to consider matters of policy and routine. The faculty consisting of all teachers above the rank of instructor, meets monthly to discuss and determine policy on matters connected with curriculum and degrees. Promotion and salary is determined by the president on recommendation of the heads of departments meeting together. Men in all departments, except agriculture, are permitted to accept outside work, the theory being that members of the agriculture faculty are paid for full time. This is only a theory. Instruction, extension and research are separate at Purdue, responsibility in each case being to the appropriate subject-matter department. Members of the experiment station staff and extension service are not given professional titles and have no part in faculty meetings or legislation. Members of the faculty engaged in teaching are expected to make rural contacts during the summer.

Iowa State College includes agriculture, engineering, home economics, veterinary medicine, industrial science. There is also a graduate school under a separate dean. Each division has its own faculty. There is also a general college faculty to which matters come up through the division faculties. This general faculty takes final action in all matters of course, curricula, and degrees. The deans form an administrative board which meets once a week. Division faculties and general faculty meet once a month. All members of the staff except county agents, whether engaged in teaching, research, or extension, are eligible for membership in their appropriate faculties. Some faculty members are on a nine months' and some on a twelve months' basis, all high positions in agriculture being on the latter. Salaries are adjusted to meet the conditions of employment and outside work for pay is permitted.

The three departments at Ontario Agricultural College are technical agriculture, the science of agriculture, and home economics. Each of these has a head who has no particular title. The faculty is organized into committees which decide on the courses to be given. The recommendations of the faculty are then submitted to the Minister of Agriculture of the province and to the University of Toronto. The university takes considerable interest in the work of the third and fourth years. It is illegal for faculty men to accept outside work. All members of the faculty are on an equal basis, no matter what activity they may be engaged in. County agents are not connected with the college but are directly under the Minister of Agriculture.

The faculty organization at Cornell is established by university statute. Each college has a separate faculty to which all members of the staff are eligible. These separate faculties join to make the general faculty, in which, however, instructors do not sit. The general university faculty has no power over the agricultural college faculty except by recommendations to the board of trustees. It is recognized, however, that the general faculty should have final jurisdiction in all matters affecting the university as a whole. In the opinion of Dean Mann, the right of the general faculty to consider and even veto agricultural college recommendations is of great value, since it insures serious and careful consideration of all important matters. Extension men have no part either in the college or university faculty, except for those who had seats four years ago when the present rule was made. All persons engaged in teaching or research (including men in the extension division) are members of the faculty. All members of the staff are on a nine months' basis and the rules provide that all time necessary for full performance of university duties must be given, but beyond this the faculty man is free to accept employment. The administrative organization of the college consists of a dean and director, a vice director of research, a vice dean of instruction, and a vice director of extension.

The Massachusetts Agricultural College, being exclusively devoted to agriculture, has no problem of faculty relations, the five divisions of horticulture, agriculture, science, rural social science, and the humanities all coming directly under the president. Teaching, research, extension, and short course work are not watertight compartments, the five divisions cutting across all of them. Members of the faculty are divided into three classes with reference to outside work for pay: (1) extension men who must give full time to the university, (2) men occasionally doing extension work, who may accept a minimum of outside employment, (3) men who infrequently give extension lectures, who are encouraged to do casual work for pay.

At the University of California by the standing orders of the regents, the Academic Senate consists of the president, deans, directors, recorder, librarian and all professors and instructors giving instruction in any curriculum under the control of the Academic Senate; but instructors of less than two years' service are not entitled to vote. The senate determines its own membership under this rule, and, subject to the approval of the regents, determines the conditions for admission, for certificates, and for degrees. It authorizes and supervises all courses of instruction in the academic and professional colleges and schools. It recommends to the regents all candidates for degrees in course. It is authorized to select a committee to advise with the president concerning the budget and a committee to confer with the regents on any matter affecting the welfare of the University.

The faculties of the various colleges and professional schools have such powers as may be delegated to them by the Academic Senate, but no change in the curriculum of a college or professional school can be made by the Academic Senate until such change has been submitted to the formal consideration of the faculty concerned. The Council of Agriculture which conducts the government of the College of Agriculture consists of:

1. The president of the University.
2. All members of the Department of Agriculture who are voting members of the Academic Senate.
3. One representative of each of the departments of the university giving required courses of instruction in the College of Agriculture, such representatives to be nominated by the departments concerned.

The last list of members of the Academic Senate, published in October, 1920, includes 793 persons of whom 159 gave instruction in the various fields of agriculture.

The general situation would seem to be that a large measure of autonomy is granted the college of agriculture, or the agriculture department, in practically every institution, only such regulation and supervision being maintained as will insure unity in matters of general policy. On the other hand, the stronger colleges welcome a consideration of their faculty qualifications, courses of study, and requirements for graduation, by some general faculty body. The situation at California for the past two years would seem to indicate that the institution is going through a similar experience to that which, from time to time, has marred the relations of the College of Agriculture with other colleges or universities throughout the country, and which may be expected soon to subside, if it has not already done so.

Student Enrollment.

The following table shows more clearly than any discussion could the situation with reference to enrollment in the agricultural colleges of the United States. There is very evidently no great horde of eager young people clamoring for an opportunity to work out their destinies on the soil. Everywhere enrollment is lower than one would expect it to be in consideration of the character of the states in which the colleges are located. The truth is that the Morrill Act came as a result of the ideas of one man, not in response to a great social need, and the supply of agricultural colleges has been greater than the educational demand ever since. Fortunately they have abundantly justified themselves in the influence they have exerted, but the disappointment of California at the comparatively small enrollment in its agricultural college is shared by every state which we visited, no matter what the type of institution in it. The more the commission studied this problem the more it was convinced that the problem of increasing enrollment in agricultural colleges and keeping boys on the farm is not to be solved by changes in curricula, equipment, or method, but by the betterment of the social and economic conditions of rural life. No plan which leaves this out of major consideration is going to succeed in keeping farmers' sons in great numbers on the farm or in attracting the sons of city dwellers to it. This is the great work of the college of agriculture today, and in it the University of California has no superior so far as we could find.

Extension Service.

The agricultural extension service of the University of California exists to improve the farms and farm homes of California by demonstrating improved practices in agriculture and home economics. It carries to the farmers of the State the results of the research of the University. The service began in 1913, when the first farm adviser was installed in Humboldt County. The funds expended during 1921 were $141,481 from federal sources through the Smith-Lever Act, $224,548 from State appropriations, and $147,800 from county appropriations. The organization of extension work in California is as follows:

(a) Farm advisers.

- 41 Farm advisers.
- 33 Assistant farm advisers.
- 3 Assistant State leaders.

(b) Home demonstration.

- 21 Home demonstration agents.
- 2 Assistant State leaders.
- 1 State leader.

- (c) Boys' and girls' agricultural clubs.
 - 10 District club leaders.
 - 3 County club leaders.
 - 3 Assistant State leaders.
- (d) Specialists.
 - 3 Home economics specialists.
 - 2 Poultry specialists.
 - 11 Specialists in dairying, citriculture, agricultural engineering, cooperative marketing, farm management, irrigation, walnut growing, pomology and illustrative materials respectively.
- (e) Public service.
 - 1 Director.
 - 4 Representatives.

The extension service works largely through farmers' organizations such as the farm bureau, but has been very careful to limit its activities in this connection to educational matters and to avoid anything verging on the political. This feature and its intensively developed activities are the chief differences between the University of California and Oregon Agricultural College. At the latter institution the extension service actively engages in the promotion and assists in the conduct of all the activities of the farmers, even when, as in the case of marketing organizations, these tend to be commercial. Both at California and Oregon the county agents do not have academic status or privileges and receive only two weeks' vacation.

In Minnesota the extension service is strong and active, 72 out of 79 counties having farm advisers. Despite this fact the director of the service complained that the ideas of the university were not being adequately disseminated among the farmers of the State. He advocated better training for agricultural specialists and better publicity. The publicity of the Minnesota division at the present time consists of monthly publications for county agents, a fortnightly for high schools, and a weekly newspaper for all who are interested. Each of these is put out in a form easy to read, not in six point type.

There are two distinctive features to the extension service at the University of Wisconsin. First, the director has no staff except for administration, the specialists being called from the various departments of the college. This is in accordance with the Wisconsin theory that there should be no separate staffs for instruction, research, and extension, but that economy and efficiency are both promoted by having men work in each of the three divisions as the need arises. Under this system the alfalfa specialist directs and himself carries on alfalfa research, teaches with reference to the product, directs the work of the county agents, and personally engages in extension work. Second, much of the results of agricultural experimentation at the University of Wisconsin is disseminated through the so-called Agricultural Experimental Association, with over six thousand members, an organization of the graduates of both the college and the farm school. Agronomy has been particularly aided by this arrangement, but sections of the association foster various lines of agricultural effort. The extension division at Wisconsin functions through all the farm organizations, not through the farm bureaus alone or primarily. There are 56 county agents in Wisconsin, none of whom has any academic connection.

At Purdue there is almost the reverse of the Wisconsin situation, instruction, research, and extension being separated and differentiated to the fullest degree possible, although the responsibility of each division is to its subject matter department. Also, only persons engaged in instruction get academic titles, and research and extension men generally do no teaching. Purdue is notable for the fact that it has 40 extension specialists, a larger number than any other institution. There are 86 county agents and 3 home demonstration agents, whose salaries and expenses are met jointly by the university, the state, county, and federal governments, and the farm bureaus. There is entire agreement among all these agencies that the extension service should undertake only educational effort; and should not work with farmers' organizations along commercial lines.

The county agents of Iowa are not selected by the agricultural college, and are not under its direction, but are the appointees of the county farm bureaus. They are paid by the farm bureau and the county, the college subsidizing the work from state and federal funds to the extent of not more than $600 per year. As in most other states there is but one of these agents to a county. There are no home demonstration agents, Iowa being convinced that one county organizer is sufficient and that the field of the home demonstration agents can be adequately filled by home economic specialists. Extension specialists are responsible to their subject matter divisions for what they teach, and to the extension division for the disposition of their time and efforts. Frequent conferences are held between the specialists and their subject matter divisions, and an attempt is made to get the results of discovery into the field as promptly as possible. There are 100 county agents in Iowa, one for each county.

At Cornell the extension division in addition to the usual lines of work, undertakes the development of rural dramatics, music, athletics, etc., and has been very successful in this field. Otherwise the Cornell system is very similar to that in California, which was organized under a Cornell man. Extension specialists report to the subject matter departments, of whose staff they are members. County agents have no academic status and take only an educational part in farmers' organizations, being barred from holding office. Despite this careful attitude, Cornell has suffered heavily in the legislature for its aid to farmer movements.

Extension work in Massachusetts has not been highly developed, the funds received under the Smith-Lever Act being very small because of the high ratio of urban population. What county agents there are, are employed by the counties, although they look to the college for direction in practically all their activities.

As a result of our observations it would seem that the agricultural extension service of the University of California is not surpassed by any other, but that colleges of agriculture are less successful in getting their results into the hands of the farmers than in their other activities. This was due formerly to the fact that practically the only agency of dissemination was bulletins, which are still very largely relied upon. These accomplish in very limited degree the end sought, farmers having shown a decided preference for personal instruction. The results of lectures at farmers' gatherings, short courses, and farm adviser activities are greater, yet there is still much to be done, for the fact remains that after over forty years of well-supported activity the colleges have not been able in large measure to check the waste of the resources of the soil. More and better farm advisers are needed, and more, and more, and more publicity to all the manifold activities and accomplishments of the college and the university.

Curricula and Standards.

The first indication of high standard in any institution is the qualifications which it demands of those who wish to matriculate. The next evidence is the content of the courses which it gives, the quality of the men who teach, and the quantity of work required for graduation. In this section of the report an attempt is made to compare the institutions visited by the commission on this basis.

The University of California admits any graduate of a California high school who is recommended by his principal. The only other method of entry is by examination. No specific subjects are required but each college suggests certain groupings which will facilitate the student's work. For instance, the College of Agriculture recommends the completion in high school of four years each of English and mathematics, and one year each of physics, chemistry, history, and geometrical drawing. There is no difference between the admission standards of the College of Agriculture and other parts of the university.

Students may matriculate in Oregon Agricultural College on presentation of a certificate of graduation from high school with fifteen units of work, which must include three units of English, one unit of algebra, one unit of geometry, and five units chosen from English, mathematics, foreign language, laboratory science, and history. These requirements are not enforced with absolute rigidity, students being admitted with less than the minimum number and kind of units, or even in some cases without high school graduation. Purdue University has practically the same entrance requirements as Oregon, but is strongly opposed to the admission of students who are not fully prepared, experience having demonstrated that most of these do not get through the first year.

Students are admitted to the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois upon examination, or on graduation from an accredited high school with fifteen units of work, including three units of English, two units of science, and one unit each of algebra and geometry. In case these requirements are not satisfied, ten units may be offered from an accredited high school and five units secured through examination.

At the University of Minnesota admission is by certificate or examination. Certified candidates must have completed the equivalent of a four-year high school course and must present:

1. Four units of English or three units of English and one unit of a foreign language.
2. One unit of elementary algebra and one unit of plane geometry.
3. Enough additional work to total fifteen units.

Every prospective student is examined on his familiarity with farm practice, and farm experience is required during the college course in accordance with the results of this examination.

Matriculants at Cornell must be graduates of a high school and must present fifteen units of credit including three each in English and a foreign language, two in mathematics and one in history. The university prides itself on its high standards and has not for years admitted a student with less than the minimum, except in the case of a very few mature special students with unusual experience qualifications. Statistics as to student records indicate the wisdom of this policy, for inadequately prepared students are shown in a large majority of cases to have failed to profit by their courses.

The College of Agriculture at the University of Wisconsin admits students on the presentation of a certificate from the principal of an accredited high school showing graduation, and satisfactory completion of fifteen required units, including three units of English, two units of foreign language, science or history, and one unit each of algebra and geometry. Graduates of non-accredited high schools are admitted under the same conditions on probation.

At Massachusetts Agricultural College admission is obtained on examination or graduation from a high school approved by the New England College Entrance Board. Every candidate must present or pass examinations in fourteen units of work, three of which are in English, two in a foreign language, one and one-half in algebra, and one in geometry, but some are admitted on probation with two units of deficiency.

From this summary and the table on page___, it will be seen that the admission requirements of the University of California are more strict than those of any other institution, except possibly Wisconsin, and even in this case the possibility of probation offers an opportunity for flexibility which does not exist in the California system. This situation can not be ignored in considering why certain California boys and girls seek their education in neighboring states. The commission found practical unanimity of opinion throughout the country in favor of high standards of admission, and the history of the past few years shows that the undignified scramble for students which characterized so many land grant colleges in the past has largely ceased and all are working toward a minimum standard of high school graduation and certain specific preparation. On the other hand, the recommendation of the principal is not considered elsewhere as a necessary or valuable factor in the selection of matriculants.

The requirements for the bachelor's degrees in the University of California are:

1. Four years of residence.
2. A summer course of six weeks in special work connected with the major subject, or three months of practical work under certain conditions.
3. One hundred and thirty units of study including

High school or university work:

English	twelve units
Mathematics	twelve units
Physics	three units
History or economics	nine units
Mechanical drawing	two units

University work:

Botany	four units
Chemistry	ten units
Geology	three units
Hygiene	one unit
Military science	six units
Physical education	two units
Zoology	five units
Agricultural chemistry, bacteriology, genetics, or soil technology	eight or nine units

4. Thirty-six units in the upper division (third and fourth years) of which 26 must be in agriculture.

In addition to these general requirements there are specific requirements in the various majors amounting to from 26 to 30 units during the four years.

The graduation requirements of the other institutions visited are not discussed in detail, since they are in general similar to those of the University of California, but an attempt is made to touch upon what notable or interesting differences are characteristic of particular colleges. For instance the typical difference between California and Oregon Agricultural College is the greater number of optional courses in the former institution (or to put it another way the great amount of required agricultural work at Oregon) and the wider range of majors—a point which will be discussed further.

Iowa State College permits no elective courses in the first year and very few thereafter. Each student before graduation must complete six months of practical work on a farm or at the university, preferably the former. This is without credit value, but by doing additional work on a farm, which need not be under the direction of a professor, he may secure a limited amount of credit toward graduation.

The University of Illinois is notable for the large number of electives in its agricultural course, particularly in the upper two years. The theory of the college is that the graduate in agriculture should have a broad foundation on which to build his technical success. At Purdue all students take the same course for the first two years. This course is designed to give the student a general view of the whole field of agriculture and to enable him to choose his specialty for the last two years wisely. In the junior and senior years two subjects (history and economics) and a group of electives are required of all students.

At the University of Minnesota there is a rather free system of electives both in and out of the college of agriculture, and in addition 50 per cent of the prescribed work of the freshman year and 25 per cent of the prescribed work of the sophomore year is in courses not given in the agricultural college. This is somewhat characteristic of the University of Wisconsin also, where of the 133 units required for graduation tion in agriculture, 35 are in the college of letters and science. Moreover, the average agriculture student in this institution takes in addition to these 35 required units 16½ elective units in colleges other than his own. In 1921, 167 agricultural seniors elected 20 units in English, 92 in economics, 16 in education, 73 in history, 96 in public speaking, 74 in psychology, etc. President Birge stressed the economy of this arrangement and the fact that under it all the money appropriated for agriculture can be used exclusively for that purpose.

Cornell University has 19 or 20 departmental units in its college of agriculture in any one of which a student may specialize, but outside of this rather wide field there are very few electives and not more than 20 of these can be taken in other colleges of the university. Every student, on the other hand, must have the following courses which are not given in the agricultural college: English, physics, chemistry, economics, animal or human physiology. Geology is also required of certain students and taken by many. In order to graduate from the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University every student except those in botany and landscape art must pass an examination in actual farm practice, based on at least one year's work done on a farm outside of the college year and reported on by the student and the farmer who employs him.

The following summary of the more important requirements of the various institutions visited and a comparison of the average with the University of California may be interesting:

	University of California	Average of other universities
Chemistry -----	10	11.2
Botany -----	6	5.5
Mathematics -----	10.5	8.5
English -----	15	12
Economics and history -----	9	5.7
Zoology -----	5	4
Agronomy -----	0	3.2
Animal husbandry -----	0	4.3
Agricultural engineering -----	0	2
Horticulture -----	0	2.5
Dairying -----	0	2.5

This would indicate that the University of California follows very closely the average of the other institutions except in the case of the standard underlying agricultural subjects. Of course, most students do take some or all of these, but the fact remains that a man may graduate from the college of agriculture of the University of California without having taken any course which was definitely agricultural. Considering the fact that every agricultural graduate is expected to have some vision of the scope of agriculture, and country life, and some possibility of eventually becoming a farmer, this would seem to be an undesirable situation—a conclusion which is confirmed by the program and curriculum of every institution which we visited.

The best way to obtain an idea of the curricula of the various agricultural colleges is probably to investigate the opportunities which they offer for specialization, or in other words, the scope and strength of their majors. From the point of view of variety the University of California covers a wider range of subjects than any institution in the United States. For instance it is the only institution offering majors in viticulture and viticulture, and only Oregon and California give courses in fruit products. The pomology major, while given generally, does not seem to be nearly as highly developed elsewhere as at the University of California. Forestry and agricultural science have also been developed admirably here.

Conversely, there are several weak spots in our system of majors, particularly in animal husbandry, agricultural economics, and perhaps agronomy. In animal husbandry, the number and type of courses is restricted. For instance, no courses in meat and meat products are given, production courses are limited, and live stock marketing is lacking. In agricultural economics very few courses are given considering that California is probably the foremost State in cooperative marketing organizations. The absence of courses in the marketing of the various agricultural products, fruit, live stock, etc., which are given generally elsewhere, is very noticeable. In agronomy a similar situation exists. California is a great state agronomically and yet comparatively few courses are given in this basic subject. Their weaknesses are of course largely due to the physical difficulties of the present situation and can be corrected in a large measure at least by the new division of work between Berkeley and Davis, and by the acquisition of land at Berkeley, a matter which the commission regards as imperative and which will be touched on later in this report.

Summing up the matter of curricula the University of California offers a greater variety of work than any of the other institutions visited and on the average offers as good or better courses except in the animal husbandry and agronomy groups. In the make-up of its curriculum also, this college of agriculture is probably in advance of most institutions. Certainly it compares almost exactly with Cornell and Wisconsin, the high standing of which is universally recognized.

The unique feature of the curriculum of the University of California is that the entering student may register either at Berkeley or Davis, and may take part of his work in both places. The course has been so arranged that students entering Davis will take either their junior or senior years at Berkeley, or both, and those entering Berkeley may take part of their work at Davis some time during the four years' attendance.

Short Courses.

At every institution visited one or more short courses are given. These vary in length from two weeks to one year and are generally successful. Oregon Agricultural College reported the following courses at which the attendance thus far has not been large:

Fruit growing and vegetable gardening	2 weeks
Grain grading	2 weeks
Beekeeping	4 weeks
Dairy manufacturing	8 weeks
Tractor mechanics	11 weeks
Dairy herdsmen	6 months
General agriculture	1 year
Horticulture	1 year

At Minnesota various short courses are offered at which the attendance has grown from 147 in 1901 to 2015 in 1921. Dean Coffey stressed the fact that such courses must furnish not only instruction, but entertainment if they are to be successful and that farmers attending them must be made to feel at home in the university atmosphere. At Montana State College there is a "School of Agriculture" which continues for six months during the college year for a period of three years, and a farmers' week. The former has an attendance of 126, the latter of 204. The University of Wisconsin has well-attended courses in dairying and tractor mechanics twelve weeks in length, and a notable winter course in general agriculture for fifteen weeks each year for two years. This latter course meets a very real need in the educational system of the state and last year had 252 students. At Purdue University short courses ten days in length were given in tractor work, poultry, dairy field work. A four-day short course is given for farmers. Courses in general agriculture, animal husbandry, dairy products, dairy manufacturing, and home economics, are also given, which are eight weeks in length. Cornell offers twelve-week courses in agriculture, dairy industry, poultry husbandry, fruit growing, flower growing, and vegetable gardening. The attendance at these courses in 1921 totalled 329. At Massachusetts Agricultural College a winter school of ten weeks has an attendance of 83, and a summer school of four weeks an attendance of 223. There is also a two weeks' school for country clergymen, which had an attendance of nineteen.

The University of California offers short courses both at Davis and Berkeley. The Berkeley courses of a few days each include fruit products, nutrition, land colonization and settlement, rural sanitation, economics, entomology, deciduous fruits, commercial manufacture of fruit products, and beekeeping. At Davis five courses of about one week each are offered in beef cattle, hogs, horses, dairy cattle, and sheep. Longer courses are given in poultry husbandry, deciduous fruits, and dairy manufactures. An eight weeks' course in forestry is given during the winter for men employed as guards or rangers in the United States Forest Service and the United States National Park Service. A demonstration school on tractors is another feature of the California program.

The short course is an effective ally of the Smith-Hughes high school and the special farm school in spreading broadcast some of the elements of farming. It helps to teach men and older boys the new farming which is at once a science, an art, and a business. It makes them factors in the conservation of resources. It is an agency for the betterment of the social and economic conditions of rural life. It should be fostered by the agricultural college, for it meets a need the regular course of the college can never fill and stabilizes conditions in the industry which the college serves.

Research Work and Experiment Stations.

The agricultural research and experimental work of the University of California has always been conducted on the theory that the varied conditions in California can not be understood or served by confining the experimental work entirely to Berkeley or to any other one locality. The field of experimentation has been as broad as the State and research has been carried on wherever conditions seemed most favorable. Centers of experiment station activity are now located at Berkeley, Davis, Mountain View, Meloland in the Imperial Valley, Kearney Park in Fresno County, Delhi, Shingle Springs, Petaluma, Porterville, and Riverside. The station library and equipment for chemical, physical and biological work have been more highly developed at Berkeley than elsewhere, but these facilities for research are also being provided gradually at Davis, and at the Citrus Experiment Station, Riverside. Those three places are the sites of permanent institutions and serve as the headquarters for research in adjacent areas.

Another idea of the University of California has been that the existence and encouragement of research is fundamental to a successful system of instruction, as well as basic in the development of the agriculture of the state. All members of the staff are consequently encouraged to devote as much of their time as possible to that intensive study which leads to discovery and the extension of the bounds of knowledge. Individually and in groups representing diverse sciences the members of the college staff and the university staff are working for the advancement of agricultural science. That they are succeeding in a measure is indicated by the United States Experiment Station Record for June, 1921, which published a summary of eighty-nine distinct lines of work by seventy-three members of the staff. The annual report of the college for 1921-1922 contains a summary of 349 pieces of investigation and a list of 149 projects in progress. In the variety of problems under investigation and in the publication of reports, bulletins, and papers in scientific journals the California station ranks as high as any station in America.

The research work of Oregon Agricultural College is scattered in the different agricultural areas of the state, and is organized on a project basis. Reports are required from investigators annually. One difference from the California system is that it is the policy of the state to require the county in which experimental work is located to finance the cost of the land and original buildings.

The main center of research work in the University of Wisconsin is at Madison, where all departments cooperate in attempting to solve the problems confronting agriculture. There are also five stations at other points in the state selected for differing local conditions which could not be adequately met from the University. Research work is organized into projects and progress reports are required annually. The results of many of these experiments are disseminated very widely and satisfactorily through an organization of graduates of the farm school and the college, known as the Agricultural Experimental Association.

In New York state agricultural research and experimentation is carried on both at Cornell University and at the Geneva Experiment Station, which is another state-supported institution. There is no legal association between the two, but a working affiliation has been effected by mutual agreement. Work is also done from time to time on special problems in other areas. Cornell, contrary to the other institutions we visited, does not allot its research funds on a project basis, but makes departmental appropriations which are distributed by the department heads. The Director of Research keeps constantly in touch with all research men and progress reports are required annually.

The general program of all the institutions visited would seem to indicate that in the main research work should be carried on at the university or college center, and that stations in other localities should be established more or less temporarily to solve definite problems impossible of solution elsewhere. The pressure of geographic and political considerations which results in so much unwise expenditure of funds might be curbed by the Oregon system which places on the community a financial burden in connection with the establishment it proposes. Wherever the work is located it would seem advisable to have it organized on a project basis, carefully supervised and frequently reported on.

Relations with State Department of Agriculture.

At the request of Director George H. Hecke of the State Department of Agriculture and Dean Thomas F. Hunt of the University the commission made some study of the relations in various states between the State Department (or departments) of Agriculture and the college of agriculture. There was found to be general agreement that these two bodies should be entirely separate, the college directing and conducting all work of instruction, research, and extension, and the department representing the police power of the state and exercising all functions of regulation. The one exception was Indiana, where the opinion was expressed that the logical place for the regulatory functions is with the college of agriculture, and that if a separate department is built up the inevitable result is differences of viewpoint and conflicts of jurisdiction.

The commission found no better working arrangement in any state than the agreement between Director Hecke and Dean Hunt which is set forth below:

The State Department of Agriculture should exercise executive and regulatory powers. The college of agriculture should devote its energies to research and education, both resident and nonresident. It is quite certain that it is not in the interest of the public welfare that it should be charged with police duties. It is the function of the executive branch of the State, whose head is the Governor, to enforce the laws relating to agriculture through the Director of Agriculture and his subordinates, and those relating to forestry through the Commission of Forestry. The functions of the University, and hence of the College of Agriculture, are investigation and teaching. The college should not seek to control the action of any person. Its primary function is to determine the truth and state it accurately. The college should not have placed upon it any commercial, executive or police duties, nor should it be the policy of the State to appropriate money to the State Department of Agriculture for education or investigation, nor should it be the policy of the State to appropriate money to the College of Agriculture for regulatory purposes.

Conclusions of Agricultural Leaders.

At each of the institutions visited the situation facing the College of Agriculture of the University of California was presented in the following series of questions and the frank opinion of the various presidents, deans, and professors solicited:

1. Owing to the fact that adequate provision was not made for experimental and demonstration purposes at Berkeley before the grounds of the University were surrounded by a ring of cities and because of the wide difference which exists between the climate and products of the coast counties and the large interior valleys, the work of the college of agriculture is now divided between the University at Berkeley and a branch of the Agricultural College at Davis, seventy miles distant, and in the interior valley. The plan provisionally adopted is to give the instruction of the freshman and sophomore years at Davis where an adequate area of land for experimental and demonstration work has been secured and with the possible exception of animal husbandry, to give the instruction of the junior and senior years at Berkeley in contact with the broader life of the University. Your opinion of the feasibility of this plan is desired.

2. Do you believe instruction can be given properly in a divided agricultural college under any conditions?

3. Do you believe that agricultural instruction can be given satisfactorily if it is not located on a farm?

4. How important do you consider a unified college with all agricultural students at one place?

5. How important for a college of agriculture do you consider the location at and close affiliation with a great university?

6. If yours is a college of agriculture separate from a university, would you favor union with a university?

7. If your college of agriculture is part of a university would you favor separation?

8. How long has your college been in its present form and is it, in your opinion, successful?

The opinion at Oregon Agricultural College, chiefly expressed by President Kerr, was that the plan of divided instruction upon which the University of California is now embarked is not ideal, because of the isolation of the junior and senior years from the farm, but is probably the best that can be devised and would be immeasurably improved by the acquisition of a small tract of land at Berkeley. The importance of contact between agricultural students and men in other lines of work was held to be of the highest importance, and attention was called to the fact that Oregon Agricultural College has this feature, since it is not an agricultural school but a university of the applied sciences. President Kerr stated unequivocally that despite the great difficulties of the situation it was his opinion that the college of agriculture would lose its prestige and power for accomplishment if wholly separated, either physically or administratively, from the University of California, and that division of the course between Berkeley and Davis would therefore seem to be the best solution.

At the University of Minnesota the faculty of the college of agriculture was unanimously opposed to separation, believing that a university offers a broader opportunity for students both in variety of courses and in opportunity to study under men eminent in lines of work outside of agriculture. Dean Coffey and others were not enthusiastic over the division of instruction between Berkeley and Davis, but stated that if forced to choose between this and complete physical separation from the state university, they would immediately choose the former as the lesser of two evils.

The conviction was strong at Minnesota that consolidated instruction at Berkeley would be by far the best solution of California's problem if about 200 acres of land were available at that place, but that the accomplishments of the junior college in California would indicate success for the plan of divided instruction.

Both President Birge and Dean Russell at the University of Wisconsin stressed the fact that the college of agriculture is so closely knit into that institution that no one in the state would consider the advisability of separation. Dean Russell spoke of the splendid team work between the college of agriculture and the other departments of the University and the great advantage of having men working on a research problem from different points of view. Separation in his opinion not only splits the campus, but also educational effort. President Birge stressed the economy of a united institution and its advantage to agriculture in that funds sorely needed for other purposes are not expended on basic scientific and cultural courses. The reaction of Dean Deavenport and others at the University of Illinois was precisely similar to that expressed at Wisconsin.

The opinion expressed at Purdue was that an agricultural college to achieve its destiny must be connected integrally with a great university, and that while land is also a prime requisite, it need not be of great area adjacent to the campus. Grave doubts were expressed as to the divided course, the opinion of Dean Coulter being that it would not provide the atmosphere necessary to strengthen the intellectual fiber. This opinion was considerably modified after an explanation had been made by the commission of the junior college system in California and the success which it had achieved. The advice of a group of prominent faculty members and trustees was that the state should secure land at Berkeley no matter what it costs rather than to either divide or separate, but that division should be chosen in preference to separation.

According to Dean Curtis of Iowa State College, the plan of divided instruction would have formidable difficulties under any conditions and would be practically impossible without land at Berkeley. Speaking from the experience of Iowa, he stated that taking agriculture wholly away from the state university should be the last alternative considered by the commission, and that the state would find it economical and efficient to condemn city blocks if necessary, in order to maintain the unity of higher instruction.

Dean Mann of Cornell advised strongly that all work be centralized at Berkeley. In his opinion, divided instruction between Berkeley and Davis would inevitably result in two four-year institutions, neither of which could properly meet the needs of agriculture. If this resulted ultimately in all agricultural work being given at Davis, the outcome would be most unfortunate for agriculture, because in the ensuing jealousies and contentions the University, as in all other states, would have the advantage. He pointed out the fact that a separate institution always has a bitter struggle to maintain the liberal work necessary to supplement its technical courses, and as the experience of Iowa State College has shown, can never hope to play its proper part in the field of graduate study. Dean Mann informed the commission that Cornell uses not over two hundred acres of poor farming land for instruction and that with Berkeley conditions he would acquire this area and consolidate the college of agriculture as a whole, with the University of California. Former Dean Bailey strongly confirmed this opinion, stating that with one hundred acres, a college at Berkeley would be superior to any separate institution. "All separate institutions," he said, "are going backward and a state which adopts the policy of separation today dooms its agricultural college to mediocrity."

President Butterfield of Massachusetts Agricultural College saw no reason to believe that divided instruction with a junior college at Davis and a senior college at Berkeley would not succeed. He expressed his own belief in a strictly agricultural college not connected with a university or diluted by mechanic arts or engineering, but admitted that the tendency was all the other way. He concurred with the other members of his staff in the belief that some land at Berkeley would be necessary to the success of the present scheme.

Doctor True, Doctor Allen, and Professor Crosby of the United States Department of Agriculture met with the commission in New York and held a long conference on the whole question of agricultural education. A general outline of the ideas expressed at this conference is as follows: Agricultural education of college and university grade involves four large factors, (1) training managers for ordinary farm operations; (2) training leaders for agricultural enterprises; (3) training leaders in science and teachers of agriculture; (4) research. These require an experiment station and a college of agriculture with a graduate school. Extension work, such as is called for under the Smith-Lever Act, is also a proper function of these institutions. When the separate colleges of agriculture were established there were no state universities and such institutions as did exist were of the old classical type, neither qualified or willing to teach agriculture. This condition has radically changed in the last fifty years, and now the colleges of agriculture united with state universities, are at least as successful as the others. The great advantage they have are the much broader possibilities of research and the finer training they can give for agricultural leadership by reason of the contacts they offer with every phase of professional life. The agricultural student should receive instruction not only about agricultural production and farm management but also about rural economics and sociology, and the relations of agriculture and country life to other occupations and interests. We do not want the leaders of the farm people to cultivate too much class feeling, but rather to be interested in their relations with other people and to get a broad vision of community, national, and world problems. Severance of an agricultural college from a university at this time should not be considered for a moment. It is out of line with all modern ideas. All the science, economics, sociology and other stores of knowledge, all the opportunities of student contact, of a great university should contribute to the broad training of the agricultural student. This does not mean that experiment station work or instruction must be maintained in one location, for diffusion wisely governed may in this field be an advantage. The maintenance of a successful agricultural college at Berkeley or divided instruction between Davis and Berkeley is entirely possible with land for outdoor laboratories at Berkeley and this should be secured as promptly as possible.

The opinions set forth in the preceding paragraphs are those expressed by various educators in response to the questions on page ?? They were unanimous in opposition to separation, either physical or administrative, of a college of agriculture from the State University; doubtful of divided instruction except as an alternative to separation, and generally favorable to the location of the whole college at the site of the State University even if highly expensive land must be condemned to make this possible. The latter two opinions were, however, considerably modified in most cases when the prevalence and success of junior colleges in California were explained and particularly the notable accomplishments in agriculture by the Chaffey Union Junior College. Considering these facts, there was general agreement that divided instruction with the first two years of work in certain courses given at Davis under University direction and backed by the resources of the State would have every prospect of success.

Conclusions of the Commission.

1. Agriculture, from being a simple art, has become one of the most complex of modern occupations and modes of life, and agricultural education must, as a consequence, comprehend the practice, the science, and the business of farming, in order that men may be trained not only as tillers of the soil but as rural leaders, scientific investigators, managers of cooperative enterprises, agricultural teachers and for the many other branches of human endeavor that closely affect farm life and rural progress.

2. To meet all these demands with the highest efficiency and success, two distinct types of institution must be established, one stressing the science and economies of agriculture, the other the actual practice and business of farming.

3. For teaching the economics and science of agriculture, the college of agriculture in contact with the broad life of a university and directed by the same board of trustees is the best agency. It can not be expected to train the great army of farmers any more than the engineering colleges are expected to train the mechanics of the country, but it is the only source from which agricultural leadership can be looked for with confidence.

4. To be at all successful the agricultural college must have more land, live stock, and equipment than the University of California, including Davis, now possesses, that institution being inferior in these regards to the leading institutions of the country.

5. Applying these principles to the California situation the commission recommends:

(a) That the College of Agriculture be maintained as an integral part of the University of California under the President and Board of Regents of that institution.

(b) That for the present, the instruction of the college be divided between Davis and Berkeley in all curricula where such division is necessary to provide the physical facilities incident to a proper agricultural education.

(c) That where such division takes place it be in accordance with the junior college system of the state and provide for the first two years at Davis, Berkeley or elsewhere and the last two years at Berkeley. This arrangement will fit our educational system and at the same time prevent duplication of the highly expensive faculties and equipment needed for upper division work. It will also provide a splendid opportunity for boys desiring two years of scientific agriculture on the farm rather than a complete university course.

(d) That the following additions to the Berkeley plant be made at the earliest possible date, and the first of them immediately, in order that the program of divided instruction may be put on a basis that will make the University of California the equal of any institution in the country:

1. Between one hundred and two hundred acres of tillable land within fifteen minutes of the campus. Such an area is available and aid can be secured from the bay cities in financing its purchase. This land will be used, not as a farm, but as an outdoor laboratory by various departments, and in the opinion of the commission and the faculty of the college, will meet the most imperative need which the institution faces.

2. A large acreage of hill land for the use of the forestry and animal husbandry departments. This is available and can either be leased for a long term of years or bought at a reasonable price.

3. A building similar to Hilgard Hall completing the agricultural group, to house instruction in agricultural economics and to provide meeting places for agricultural associations and for short course classes.

4. Additional class rooms and laboratories for plant and animal nutrition.

5. Greenhouses for researches in plant and animal life.

6. A factory type of building to house investigations in the means of preserving perishable products and the processes by which the products of the farm are changed into forms used in human consumption. This would include operations such as the canning and drying of fruits, preservation of meats, and the manipulations of wool and vegetable fibre products.

7. A laboratory for researches and demonstrations in agricultural engineering. This is needed for upper division and graduate students.

(e) That provision for instruction in domestic science and home economics be made at Davis, in order that recognition may be given to the fact that the farm is a partnership concern, for which women must be trained as well as men.

(f) That, as more fully developed in the chapter on farm schools, the nondegree work at Davis be transferred to other institutions, and that in its place the short courses both at Davis and Berkeley be extended and developed to meet the needs of persons over eighteen who have not availed themselves of the opportunities of the Smith-Hughes high schools and similar institutions.

6. The commission recommends that the college of agriculture be granted the largest measure of autonomy in educational matters compatible with the existence of a unified university policy, and that the decision as to the extent of this autonomy rest with the president and regents rather than with any academic body.

7. The commission recommends that the admission requirements of the College of Agriculture be maintained at the same level as those for the rest of the University, but that the attention of the proper authorities be called to the excellent records of many nonrecommended high school graduates in the University Farm School and to the possibility of a more satisfactory standard for recommendation from the high school to the College of Agriculture.

8. Observations throughout the country convinced the commission of the high character of the Board of Regents of the University of California and of the desirability of long terms and freedom from political interference. The commission is of the opinion, however, that in a state as highly agricultural as California, the interests of the University would be served by the more frequent appointment as regents of men who are leaders in rural life. Also the desire of the farmers to express themselves more fully on the service of their industry might be put to good use for the State and the institution if the regents were to solicit the formation of advisory committees from various phases of the agricultural industry and seek advice from these committees from time to time on the policy of the college and the needs of their field of agriculture.

9. As a result of their investigations the commission has returned to California proud of the experiment station and the extension service in this state which have only one possible equal and no superiors. Despite this fact the commission is of the opinion that the University of California is acting in accordance with the best practice of American universities and agricultural colleges in admitting to academic status only those engaged in research and resident instruction. The overwhelming verdict of the institutions visited is against according academic titles and privileges to the county agents or farm advisers, not because they are considered inferior in any way but because their activities lie outside the academic field.

10. The commission recommends that experiment station work be centralized at Berkeley, Davis and Riverside where there are permanent plants and that work on specific problems characteristic of particular localities be conducted in more or less temporary stations, thus avoiding duplication of expenses for acreage, institutional buildings, and overhead. Moreover, expenses for land and buildings, even under these simple conditions, should be met, at least in part, by the community in which they are situated. This provision will do much to insure the genuineness of the need which is being pressed.

11. The commission recommends that no student be permitted to graduate from the College of Agriculture who has not had at least one year of actual farm experience.

12. The commission is unanimous in the belief that one of the greatest causes of criticism of the College of Agriculture of the University of California has been lack of knowledge amongst the farmers of the State as to its activities and the very notable results of its teaching and research. Some method of organizing and disseminating proper publicity concerning the work of the college and the university is strongly recommended as a means of making available to the people of the State in larger measure the benefits of higher learning. Another reason is the conspicuous absence at Berkeley of land and buildings for agricultural research and instruction. These have such prominence in the teaching equipment of all other first-class institutions (as shown by the illustrations in this report), that their lack at Berkeley can not escape intelligent criticism which will continue until this lack has been supplied.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS.

In summary form the findings and recommendations of the commission are as follows:

Elementary and Secondary Schools.

1. The basis for a sound and practical system of agricultural education in the elementary and secondary schools of California has been provided by the federal and State vocational educational acts of 1917.

2. The principal need of the elementary schools of the State is for a competent corps of instructors. If the regular grade teachers are to instruct pupils upon agricultural subjects they must receive a more thorough preparation for the work, and they should be under the close supervision of a specially trained district director of agricultural education. An alternative plan which holds promise of even better results is to place the actual teaching of agriculture in the grade schools in the hands of the local high school teachers in agriculture. When every high school has an agricultural department this will be a possible and practical solution of the problem of teaching agriculture in the elementary schools.

3. In the high schools the Smith-Hughes work has made a successful beginning and its extension is recommended. The project feature of this type of agricultural instruction has proved particularly valuable. Constant improvement of the high school teaching personnel is distinctly desirable, and is rapidly taking place.

4. Agricultural instruction given in the high schools either now or in the future, should be better correlated with the work given in the College of Agriculture of the University than has been the case in the past. This is a practical possibility under present university requirements and is usually neglected because of unfamiliarity with these requirements.

5. In the opinion of the commission junior colleges of agriculture equivalent to the first two years of the College of Agriculture in a university can not be efficiently conducted or adequately financed except by the state. The brilliant record of Chaffey Union Junior College might seem to indicate that this opinion is erroneous, but we believe that the community in which Chaffey is located is unusually rich and we doubt if even it will always bear easily the constantly mounting cost of scientific agricultural education, research, and extension. Whether it will or not there are certainly few other districts which could copy it, and it is therefore not practical to look in this direction for state development.

6. As a practical substitute for the Chaffey type of school and as a supplement to the College of Agriculture of the University of California and its branches, this commission strongly recommends that consideration be given by the State Board of Education to the extension of agricultural instruction by the project system into the junior colleges. Under this system a reasonable number of junior colleges, strategically located, could without the very heavy expense of land, buildings, live stock, and farm equipment, conduct worth while vocational agricultural courses that would be a very serviceable factor in keeping the boy on the farm and fitting him to make of the farm a profitable business venture.

7. Finally, the commission recommends strongly that support and encouragement be given the branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis where the facilities and staff are such as to guarantee the most successful results in the first two years beyond the high school, both from the point of view of vocational and professional training. This type of school can not be duplicated by any smaller political subdivision than the State, and it should not be duplicated even by the State, which after all has not limitless finances, until the need develops. Neither enrollment nor any other factor indicates that need at the present time, but when such need does appear it would seem logical that similar institutions should be established in central and southern California.

Farm Schools.

1. The educational service of the farm school occupies a narrow field of usefulness between the Smith-Hughes work in the high schools and the collegiate instruction in the university, but within this field is of considerable importance.

2. The farm school should be a vocational training school of secondary grade teaching relatively immature persons the practical handicrafts and the well established principles of agriculture and home-making, with a minimum of general cultural courses. It should prepare young people for farming and homemaking by the shortest route. It should emphasize the practical and, only in a very limited degree, teach the scientific and theoretical aspects of agriculture.

3. The farm schools should be primarily finishing schools, not college preparatory schools. To become the latter denies the premise upon which they were established. To care for the student who, in the farm school, discovers his "career" and wishes further education, some correlation with the University should be effected, so that certain work would be accepted for matriculation and the balance of the requirements met through examinations.

4. The farm school should not conduct research work of any kind. This can be done only by highly trained specialists, a class of men not needed to impart established knowledge to young people of high school age. It is also very expensive and requires special facilities.

5. The farm school should do no extension work. Extension work deals with mature farmers and brings to them methods based on knowledge of recent and often incomplete research. This type of service can not be given advantageously by those who have been chosen primarily for their ability to teach the immature. Reliable extension teaching, which will keep ahead of the demands of the farmers for exact information, can only be done by extension workers who are in close touch with specialized teaching and investigation departments such as exist in the college of agriculture.

6. The farm school should not admit the student over 21 years of age who has discovered too late the need of an education. This student should improve his preparation and enter the University as a special student or should take short course work in the line of his special interest. Experience has shown that the mixing of mature and immature students of varying degrees of preparation and ability is disastrous to the effectiveness of a teaching institution. The type of short course offered at the University of Wisconsin seems to this commission to meet admirably the need of the student who fits neither in the high school, the farm school, or the college of agriculture.

7. The farm school, being a part of the secondary school system, should be under the State Board of Education. This body should insure its rendering its particular service and keep it in proper adjustment with the other units of the school system.

8. The need for farm schools is limited. It is the opinion of the commission that this need in California would be fully met at the present time by the careful, efficient and attractive development of the California Polytechnic School at San Luis Obispo, to which should be transferred all the non-degree work now given at Davis except the short courses for persons beyond high school age.

Universities.

Agriculture, from being a simple art, has become one of the most complex of modern occupations and modes of life, and agricultural education must as a consequence comprehend the practice, the science, and the business of farming, in order that men may be trained not only as tillers of soil but as rural leaders, scientific investigators, managers of cooperative enterprises, agricultural teachers and for the many other branches of human endeavor that closely affect farm life and rural progress.

2. To meet all these demands with the highest efficiency and success, two distinct types of institution must be established, one stressing the science and economics of agriculture, the other the actual practice and business of farming.

3. For teaching the economics and science of agriculture the college of agriculture, in contact with the broad life of a university and directed by the same board of trustees, is the best agency. It cannot be expected to train the great army of farmers any more than the engineering colleges are expected to train the mechanics of the country, but is the only source from which agricultural leadership can be looked for with confidence.

4. To be at all successful the agricultural college must have more land, live stock, and equipment than the University of California including Davis, now possesses, that institution being inferior in these regards to the leading institutions of the country.

5. Applying these principles to the California situation the commission recommends:

(a) That the College of Agriculture be maintained as an integral part of the University of California under the president and board of regents of that institution.

(b) That for the present the instruction of the college be divided between Davis and Berkeley in all curricula where such division is necessary to provide the physical facilities incident to a proper agricultural education.

(c) That where such division takes place it be in accordance with the junior college system of the state and provide for the first two years at Davis, Berkeley or elsewhere and the last two years at Berkeley. This arrangement will fit our educational system and at the same time prevent duplication of the highly expensive facilities and equipment needed for upper division work. It will also provide a splendid opportunity for boys desiring two years of scientific agriculture on the farm rather than a complete university course.

(d) That the following additions to the Berkeley plant be made at the earliest possible date, and the first of them immediately, in order that the program of divided instruction may be put on a basis that will make the University of California the equal of any institution in the country:

1. Between one hundred and two hundred acres of tillable land within fifteen minutes of the campus. Such an area is available and aid can be secured from the bay cities in financing its purchase. This land will be used not as a farm but as an outdoor laboratory by various departments, and in the opinion of the commission and the faculty of the college will meet the most imperative need which the institution faces.

2. A large acreage of hill land for the use of the forestry and animal husbandry departments. This is available and can either be leased for a long term of years or bought at a reasonable price.

3. A building similar to Hilgard Hall completing the agricultural group, to house instruction in agricultural economics and to provide meeting places for agricultural associations and for short course classes.

4. Additional classrooms and laboratories for plant and animal nutrition.

5. Greenhouses for researches in plant and animal life.

6. A factory-type of building to house investigations in the means of preserving perishable products and the processes by which the products of the farm are changed into forms used in human consumption. This would include operations such as the canning and drying of fruits, preservation of meats, and the manipulations of wool and vegetable fibre products.

7. A laboratory for researches and demonstrations in agricultural engineering. This is needed for upper division and graduate students.

(e) That provision for instruction in domestic science and home economics be made at Davis, in order that recognition may be given to the fact that the farm is a partnership concern, for which women must be trained as well as men.

(f) That, as more fully developed in the chapter on farm schools, the non-degree work at Davis be transferred to other institutions, and that in its place the short courses both at Davis and Berkeley be extended and developed to meet the needs of persons over eighteen who have not availed themselves of the opportunities of the Smith-Hughes high schools and similar institutions.

6. The commission recommends that the College of Agriculture be granted the largest measure of autonomy in educational matters compatible with the existence of a unified university policy, and that the decision as to the extent of this autonomy rest with the president and regents rather than with any academic body.

7. The commission recommends that the admission requirements of the College of Agriculture be maintained at the same level as those for the rest of the University, but that the attention of the proper authorities be called to the excellent records of many non-recommended high school graduates in the University Farm School, and to the possibility of a more satisfactory standard for recommendation from the high school to the college of agriculture.

8. Observations throughout the country convinced the commission of the high character of the board of regents of the University of California and of the desirability of long terms and freedom from political interference. The commission is of the opinion, however, that in a state as highly agricultural as California the interests of the university would be served by the more frequent appointment as regents of men who are leaders in rural life. Also the desire of the farmers to express themselves more fully on the service of their industry might be put to good use for the State and the institution if the regents were to solicit the formation of advisory committees from various phases of the agricultural industry and seek advice from these committees from time to time on the policy of the college and the needs of their field of agriculture.

9. As a result of their investigations the commission has returned to California proud of the experiment station and the extension service in this State which have only one possible equal and no superiors. Despite this fact the commission is of the opinion that the University of California is acting in accordance with the best practice of American universities and agricultural colleges in admitting to academic status only those engaged in research and resident instruction. The overwhelming verdict of the institutions visited is against according academic titles and privileges to the county agents or farm advisers, not because they are considered inferior in any way but because their activities lie outside the academic field.

10. The commission recommends that experiment station work be centralized at Berkeley, Davis and Riverside where there are permanent plants and that work on specific problems characteristic of particular localities be conducted in more or less temporary stations, thus avoiding duplication of expenses for acreage, institutional buildings, and overhead. Moreover, expenses for land and buildings even under these simple conditions should be met, at least in part, by the community in which they are situated. This provision will do much to insure the genuineness of the need which is being pressed.

11. The commission recommends that no student be permitted to graduate from the College of Agriculture who has not had at least one year of actual farm experience.

12. The commission is unanimous in the belief that one of the greatest causes of criticism of the college of agriculture of the University of California has been lack of knowledge amongst the farmers of the state as to its activities and the very notable results of its teaching and research. Some method of organizing and disseminating proper publicity concerning the work of the college and the university is strongly recommended as a means of making available to the people of the state in larger measure the benefits of higher learning. Another reason is the conspicuous absence at Berkeley of land and buildings for agricultural research and instruction. These have such prominence in the teaching equipment of all other first class institutions (as shown by the illustrations in this report) that their lack at Berkeley can not escape intelligent criticism which will continue until this lack has been supplied.

PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE IN CHAIR.

At eleven o'clock and fifteen minutes a.m. the President of the Senate called Hon. A. H. Breed, President pro tempore of the Senate, to the chair.

REGULAR ORDER OF BUSINESS.

By direction of the President pro tempore of the Senate, the Secretary of the Senate read sections of the Constitution of the State of California and sections of the Political Code of the State, which provide for the two branches of the Legislature meeting in joint convention for the purpose of canvassing the votes cast for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, as follows:

Constitution:

Section 4. The returns of every election for Governor shall be sealed up and transmitted to the seat of government directed to the Speaker of the Assembly, who shall, during the first week of the session, open and publish them in the presence of both houses of the Legislature. The person having the highest number of votes shall be Governor; but in case any two or more have an equal and highest number of votes, the Legislature shall, by joint vote of both houses, choose one of such persons so having an equal and the highest number of votes for Governor.

Section 15. A Lieutenant Governor shall be elected at the same time and place, and in the same manner, as the Governor, and his term of office and his qualifications shall be the same. He shall be President of the Senate, but shall have only a casting vote therein.

Of the Political Code:

Section 1292. When an election has been held to fill the office of Governor or Lieutenant Governor, the clerk of each county, in addition to the abstract made for transmission to the Secretary of State, must as soon as the statement of the vote of his county is made out and entered upon the records of the boards of supervisors make two certified abstracts of so much thereof as relates to the vote given for such officers.

Section 1293. The clerk must seal up each abstract separately, and indorse thereon "Election Returns for Governor and Lieutenant Governor."

Section 1294. He must at once direct one copy to the Speaker of the Assembly next to meet, address it to Sacramento, California, and deposit it, postpaid, in the postoffice.

Section 1295. The other copy he must direct and address, in the same manner, and at once deliver it to a member-elect of the Legislature, or to a Senator who holds over; and the person to whom it is so delivered must deliver it to the Speaker on or before the second day next after his election.

Section 1296. The returns of election for Governor and Lieutenant Governor must, during the first week of the session, be opened, canvassed, and the result declared by the speaker of the Assembly, in presence of both houses.

Section 1297. No declaration of the result, commission or certificate must be withheld on account of any defect or informality in the return of any election if it can with reasonable certainty be ascertained from such return what office is intended, and who is elected thereto.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Speaker of the Assembly announced that the election returns from all the counties in the State had been received and were now at the desk, and that the joint convention would proceed with the opening of the returns from the recent election for Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

APPOINTMENT OF TELLERS.

The Speaker of the Assembly appointed as tellers, on the part of the Assembly, Messrs. Badham and Erb.

The President pro tempore of the Senate appointed as tellers, on the part of the Senate, Senators Chamberlin and Jones.

Canvass of the returns was thereupon made, and the tellers reported:

COMMUNICATION.

The following communication was received and ordered printed in the Journal.

OFFICE OF SURVEYOR GENERAL AND REGISTER STATE LAND OFFICE.
STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

SACRAMENTO, January 8, 1923.

To the Legislature of the State of California.

Pursuant to the provisions of chapter 800, Statutes of California, 1917, I beg to report that the registrars of titles under "The Torrens Law" in the 17 counties of the State in which registrations of land have been made up to August 1, 1922, advised me as follows:

Alameda County.

"I desire to say that there have been 19 registrations and certificates issued by this office since August, 1921, to date, the total number of certificates issued being 77, several being transfers of owners, and only about 40 of them being original registrations."

Fresno County.

"In regard to the number of registrations or certificates of title issued in this county of land titles, beg to state that up to and including August 1, 1922, we have had only one registered in this office."

Humboldt County.

"The total number of Torrens certificates of title issued in Humboldt County up to August 1, 1922, is 154."

Imperial County.

"The number of Torrens certificates outstanding as of August 1, 1922, is 211."

Kern County.

"Total number of registrations made in Kern County, 2. Total number of certificates of title issued, 29, up to and including July 31, 1922. Of the certificates issued, six have been canceled, so there are today 23 outstanding."

Lassen County.

"Will say there has been one transfer."

Los Angeles County.

"The total number of certificates of title issued by this office up to August 1, 1922, was 17,107, and the total number of documents filed to the same date was 27,558."

Orange County.

"Total number of original registrations to August 1, 1922, 892. Total number of certificates issued, 2342."

Riverside County.

"This office has issued only 95 certificates of title, under the Torrens Title Act, since the same became effective in this county, in 1917."

San Bernardino County.

"Total number of registrations to August 1, 1922, by decrees, 420. Total number of certificates of title issued, caused by transfer of title, 831."

San Diego County.

"The total number of certificates of title issued by me up to August 1, 1922, is 1724."

San Francisco County.

"In the entire life of the act but five original decrees have been filed in this department."

Santa Barbara County.

"Total number of certificates issued, 42. Number of parties whose property is registered (including wives and husbands), 17. Total number of documents filed (including two decrees), 5."

Santa Cruz County.

"We have issued two certificates of title to date."

Sonoma County.

"Up to August 1, 1922, there had been 149 certificates issued, 114 documents filed, and 78 parcels of land registered."

Tulare County.

"Total number of certificates of title issued since operations commenced in Tulare County, 31."

Ventura County.

"In regard to Torrens registrations in this county, we have issued only one certificate."

The Torrens Act provides that upon the original registration of any land, a sum equal to one-tenth of 1 per cent of the assessed value of the land, including permanent improvements thereon as the same were valued for county taxation the last time said land and permanent improvements or either thereof were assessed for county taxes next preceding the filing of the petition, shall be collected by the registrar and paid to the State Treasurer to be credited to the "Torrens Title Assurance Fund." The books of the State Treasurer show that on July 20, 1922, the

"Torrans Title Assurance Fund" contained $20,414.88, and that on July 21, 1922, State of California Harbor Insurance Fund 4 per cent bonds having a face value of $20,000 were purchased for the benefit of said fund, for the sum of $19,356.53, and that the amount of cash in said fund on August 1, 1922, was $1,058.35.

Respectfully submitted.

W. S. KINGSBURY, Surveyor General.

11. Consideration of Daily File.
12. Unfinished Business.
13. Special Orders of the Day.
14. Announcement of Committee Meetings.
15. Adjournment.

Presiding Officers of the Senate—The President.

4. The rooms, passages, and buildings set apart for the use of the Senate shall be under the control and direction of the President of the Senate, and he shall have the control and direction of the journals, papers, and bills of the Senate. The President shall preside over the sessions of the Senate. He shall see that all officers of the Senate perform their respective duties, and may assign places to properly accredited newspaper representatives.

The President Pro Tempore.

5. The President pro tempore shall, in the absence of the President, take the chair and call the Senate to order at the hour of the meetings of the Senate, and have the same power as the President; but the President pro tempore shall vote only as any other member of the Senate.

Presiding by Senators.

6. The President or President pro tempore, in the absence of the President, shall have the right to name any Senator to perform the duties of the chair, who shall be vested, during such time, with all the powers of the President; but such substitute shall not lose the right of voting on any question while so presiding.

Committees of the Senate—Appointment of Committees.

7. All standing committees of the Senate shall be named by the President of the Senate unless otherwise ordered, and the first named shall be the chairman thereof. All other committees shall be appointed in such manner as the Senate shall determine.

LIST OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

8. The following standing committees shall be appointed by the President of the Senate:

1. Agriculture and Livestock, eleven members.

39. Rules, five members.
40. Universities and Teachers' Colleges, nine members.

Schedules for Committee Meetings.

9. The President shall be empowered to propose to the Senate such schedules for regular meetings of the standing committees as shall permit a full attendance of their members without conflict of committee engagements.

Quorum of Standing Committees.

10. Each standing committee shall determine (a) its own quorum, and (b) the number of votes necessary to take any action upon any bill, resolution, or other matter referred to it.

The vote by the number of ayes and noes on each bill reported back on all committee reports shall be noted in such reports and recorded in the Journal. When a committee report is signed out, the Journal shall note such fact.

No Committee Expenditures Permitted.

11. No member of any committee shall, except by resolution of the Senate, be permitted to incur any expense by visiting any part of the State on official business, except that the chairman of the Committee on Finance shall, during the Constitutional Recess, be permitted to visit State institutions for which appropriations are asked and shall be allowed his actual expenses while on such business.

SPECIAL DUTIES OF CERTAIN COMMITTEES.

Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment.

12. All Senate bills, constitutional amendments, and joint or concurrent resolutions shall be engrossed before final action is taken on them in the Senate. The indications of new matter, omissions, or amendments appearing upon the printed bill shall be omitted from the engrossed copy of the bill. All such bills, amendments, and resolutions, after being engrossed, in pursuance of the order of the Senate, shall be carefully examined and reported back by the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment; the engrossed copy to be transmitted to the Assembly with proper endorsements; and the original retained by the Senate. It shall be in order for the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment to report at any time.

Engrossing and Enrolling Bills.

13. All bills ordered engrossed shall be delivered by the Secretary of the Senate to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment or to the clerk of that committee and a receipt in writing taken therefor, and all said bills shall be engrossed in the order of their receipt by that committee or its clerk. All Senate bills shall, after their final passage by, and receipt from the Assembly, be delivered by the Secretary of the Senate in the order of their receipt from the Assembly, to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment or its clerk and a receipt in writing taken therefor, and said bills shall be enrolled in the order of their receipt from the Secretary of the Senate.

Committee on Rules.

14. The Committee on Rules shall have the general duty of proposing or of presenting recommendations as to the Standing Rules of the Senate. The President pro tempore shall be the chairman of this committee, and the President shall be an ex officio nonvoting member. When executive communication of nominations shall be sent by the Governor to the Senate, the bills concerning the same shall be referred to the Committee on Rules, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate, whose action shall be announced without debate.

Committee on Contingent Expenses.

15. No money shall be expended out of the contingent fund of the Senate unless the same shall have been referred to and reported on by the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Committee on Revision and Printing.

16. The Committee on Revision and Printing shall have general charge of matters connected with all printing done for the Senate. It shall have the specific duties prescribed for it in the Joint Rules of Senate and Assembly.

OTHER SENATE OFFICERS.

Secretary of the Senate.

17. 1. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Senate to attend every session, call the roll, read all bills, amendments, resolutions, and all papers ordered read by the Senate or the presiding officer.

2. To superintend all copying and work to be done for the Senate. To have supervision over all attaches and employees of the Senate. To assign, reassign or transfer all attaches or employees to their respective duties. To certify to and transmit to the Assembly all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, constitutional amendments and papers requiring the concurrence of the Assembly, immediately after their passage or adoption by the Senate.

3. To keep a correct Journal of the proceedings of the Senate.

4. To notify the Assembly of the action by the Senate on all matters originating in the Assembly, and requiring action on the part of the Senate.

5. To permit no papers or records belonging to the Senate to be taken out of its custody otherwise than in the regular course of business.

Custody of Bills and Papers.

18. The Secretary of the Senate shall not permit any records or papers to be taken from the desk, or out of his custody, by any person except a chairman of a committee; but he shall deliver any bill or paper to be printed to the Superintendent of State Printing, and all bills ordered engrossed or enrolled to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment, and take receipts therefor.

Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate.

19. A Sergeant-at-Arms shall be elected, to hold his office during the pleasure of the Senate, whose duty it shall be to attend the Senate during all of its sittings, to execute the commands of the Senate from time to time, together with all such process issued by authority thereof, as shall be directed to him by the President. The Sergeant-at-Arms is authorized to arrest for contempt all persons outside the bar, or in the gallery, found in loud conversation or otherwise making a noise to the disturbance of the Senate. The actual expenses of the Sergeant-at-Arms for every arrest, for each day's custody and release, and the traveling expenses for himself and special messenger going and returning shall be paid out of the contingent fund, and no other fees shall be paid him beyond his per diem. It shall also be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to keep the accounts for pay and mileage of Senators.

Distribution of Printed Matter.

20. The Sergeant-at-Arms shall place copies of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, constitutional amendments, and journals and histories, when printed, on the desks of Senators, at least one hour previous to the opening of session.

PREPARATION AND INTRODUCTION OF BILLS.

Introduction and First Reading.

21. Any Senator desiring to introduce a bill shall rise in his seat and address the President, and upon being recognized shall present the same. The title shall be announced by the Secretary, the bill shall be read the first time and thereupon referred by the President to a standing committee.

Joint and Concurrent Resolutions and Constitutional Amendments.

22. Joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall be treated the same as bills; provided, that they shall have but one reading, which reading shall occur after they have been reported by committee.

Introduction of Bills by a Committee.

23. Any committee may introduce a bill germane to any subject within the proper consideration of such committee, whereupon the bill shall immediately be read the first time, ordered to print and placed upon the second-reading file.

Introduction of Bills after the Constitutional Recess.

24. The Committee on Rules shall constitute a standing committee on introduction of bills to serve after the constitutional recess. All motions for leave to introduce bills after the constitutional recess shall be sent to the desk in writing, under the order of "Introduction of Bills." The motion shall give the title of the bill and shall be accompanied by the bill. The bill shall thereupon be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills.

The committee shall examine bills referred to it with particular reference to the question as to whether there is already any bill in either house of the same character which might be amended to effect the result sought and generally as to the advisability of introducing the measure.

No bill shall be introduced without the consent of three-fourths of the members after report thereupon by the Committee on Introduction of Bills, nor shall more than two bills be introduced by any one member after the constitutional recess.

Joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall not be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills, and shall not require a vote to authorize their introduction, nor shall the number to be introduced by any one member be limited.

BILLS IN COMMITTEES.

Reference of Senate Bills.

25. At the time of introduction the President shall first indicate to what committee a bill or resolution should be referred, and it shall be so referred, unless upon a motion, without debate, the Senate by a majority vote refer it to some other committee. No debate shall be allowed on any motion to refer a bill or resolution to a committee.

Order of Reference.

26. When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion made to refer any subject and a different committee shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order:

1. The Committee of the Whole Senate.
2. A Standing Committee.
3. A Select Committee.

Reference with Special Instructions.

27. No amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of such bill, to move its reference to a select committee under special instructions to amend.

Reference of Assembly Bills.

28. When an Assembly bill has been received by the Senate, with a message announcing that it has passed the Assembly, such bill shall be read the first time and be referred by the President to a standing committee; provided, however, that when an Assembly bill is received, the text of which is stated by a member to be identical with that of a Senate bill which has already been considered and reported by a standing committee of the Senate, such Assembly bill shall be referred to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment for comparison, which committee shall report without delay, whether or not such bill is identical with the Senate bill. If reported identical, such Assembly bill shall be substituted for the Senate bill, shall take its place on the second-reading file and be considered as having received the same committee recommendation as the Senate bill; provided, that the fact that the bills are identical shall be entered in the Journal. Such Senate bill shall thereupon be placed upon the file of unfinished business.

Reference of Appropriation Bills.

29. All bills appropriating money from any fund shall be referred to the Committee on Finance before being read the second time. Concurrent resolutions for adjournment sine die shall in all cases whether originating in the Senate or coming from the Assembly be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Notice to Author of Bill.

30. The chairman or clerk of each committee of the Senate shall notify the author of any bill or resolution pending before such committee of the hour and place of hearing or acting upon such bill or proceeding.

Committee Amendments to Bills.

31. When amendments to a bill are reported by a committee, the clerk of such committee shall prepare three copies of each amendment, one to go with the bill to the Superintendent of State Printing, one to the Minute Clerk, and one to the Secretary of the Senate.

Reports of Committees.

32. All committees shall act upon bills referred to them as soon as practicable, and when acted upon each bill shall be reported back to the Senate forthwith, and the chairman of each committee is charged with the observance of this rule; provided, that the Senate may at any time, by a majority vote, recall a bill from any committee.

ORDER OF CONSIDERING BILLS.

Order of Making File.

33. When bills are reported from committees they shall be placed upon the General File, to be kept by the Secretary as follows: All bills when reported to the Senate by the committees shall be placed at the foot of the second-reading file, in the order in which the reports are made, and after the second reading they shall be placed at the foot of the third-reading file, in the order of reading, and precedence shall be given in the consideration of bills in the following order: Second-reading file and third-reading file, unless otherwise ordered by unanimous consent or by a two-thirds vote of the Senate. The bills upon third reading shall be considered in the order in which they appear upon the file, unless otherwise ordered by unanimous consent or by vote of majority of the members present; such vote to be taken by roll call; provided, that if a bill is passed on file for any reason, other than absence of the author by leave of the Senate, note of the fact shall be made in the General File, and when passed on file a second time, the bill shall be ordered at the foot of the file, and notice of the fact of the bill having been passed on file prior to the order placing it at the foot of the file shall be omitted from the General File.

The General File.

34. The General File shall be the special order for each day between such hours as the Senate may determine, unless sooner disposed of; but no bill shall lose its place upon the file by expiration of the time or by adjournment of the Senate while it is under consideration.

Special Order.

35. Any subject may, by vote of a majority of those voting, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate.

Three Readings of Bills.

36. Every bill shall be read on three several days previous to its passage (unless in case of urgency, two-thirds of the membership of the Senate in which it is being considered shall by vote of the ayes and noes dispense with this provision).

Ordering Bills to Third Reading.

37. After being read the second time bills shall be ordered by the President to third reading (or, in the case of Senate bills, to engrossment and third reading). When any member makes objection to any bill thus being ordered to third reading, the final question for such bill shall be, "Shall the bill be ordered to third reading?"

Bills Considered During Last Seven Days

38. No Senate bill shall be passed by the Senate within seven days of the time set for adjournment sine die of the two houses of the Legislature unless permission to vote on such a bill be granted by a three-fourths vote of the entire membership of the Senate, voting by roll-call.

QUESTIONS AND MOTIONS.

39. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but the following privileged questions, which shall have precedence in the following order:

1. To adjourn.
2. For a call of the Senate.
3. To lay on the table.
4. To postpone to a day certain.
5. To commit.
6. To amend.
7. To postpone indefinitely.

Provided, however, that during a call of the Senate, it may consider and transact any matter or business that the Senators then present shall unanimously decide to consider, but no call of the Senate shall be had, during a call of the Senate, on any matter so taken up or considered while the Senate is under call. When a call of the Senate is ordered, pending the completion of a roll call, the pending roll call shall become unfinished business, the consideration of which shall be continued until further proceedings under the call of the Senate are dispensed with, when it will forthwith become the order of business before the Senate.

Amendment or Division of Questions.

40. An amendment may be laid on the table without prejudice to the bill. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

If the question in debate contains several propositions, any Senator may have the same divided; except a motion to strike out and insert shall not be divided. The rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition, nor shall it prevent a motion to simply strike out, nor shall the rejection of a motion to strike out prevent a motion to strike out and insert; but pending a motion to strike out and insert, the part to be stricken out and the part to be inserted shall each be regarded, for the purpose of amendment, as a question. Motions to amend the part to be stricken out shall have precedence.

Restriction as to Amendments.

41. A substitute or amendment must relate to the same subject as the original bill, resolution or constitutional amendment under consideration.

Vote Required for Amendments.

42. A constitutional amendment or bill requiring a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to the Senate for final adoption or passage may be amended by a majority of those voting.

PROCEDURE OF DEBATE.

Seconding and Announcement of Motion.

43. No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President or any Senator, and read by the Secretary, before the same shall be debated.

Regulation as to Speaking.

44. 1. When a Senator desires to address the Senate he shall rise in his place, address the President, and when recognized he shall proceed to speak.

2. No Senator shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill, without leave; and Senators who have once spoken shall not again be entitled to the floor (except for explanation) so long as any Senator who has not spoken desires to speak.

3. No Senator shall be interrupted when speaking, and no question shall be asked him except those through the presiding officer.

4. The author of a bill, motion, or resolution shall have the privilege of closing the debate.

Securing of the Floor.

45. When two or more Senators arise at the same time to address the Senate, the presiding officer shall designate the Senator who is entitled to the floor.

Order in Debate.

46. When a Senator shall be called to order he shall sit down until the President shall have determined whether he is in order or not; and every question of order shall be decided by the President, subject to an appeal to the Senate by any Senator. If a Senator be called to order for words spoken, the objectionable language shall immediately be taken down in writing by the Secretary of the Senate.

The Previous Question.

47. The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall be admitted only when demanded by a majority of the Senators present upon division; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate except that the author of the bill or the amendments shall have the right to close, and the question under discussion shall thereupon be immediately put to a vote. On a motion for the previous question prior to a vote being taken by the Senate, a call of the Senate shall be in order.

Executive Session.

48. When a motion is adopted to close the doors of the Senate, on the discussion of any business, which may, in the opinion of the Senate, require an executive session, the President shall require all persons, except the Senators, President of the Senate, Secretary, Minute Clerk, and Sergeant-at-Arms, to withdraw, and during the discussion of said business the doors shall remain closed. Every Senator and officer present shall keep secret all matters and proceedings concerning which secrecy shall be enjoined by order of the Senate.

VOTING BY SENATE.

Calling Ayes and Noes.

49. When the ayes and noes shall be called for by three members present, every member within the bar of the Senate at the time the question was put shall declare openly, and without debate, assent or dissent to the question. In taking the ayes and noes, and upon the call of the Senate, the names of the Senators shall be taken alphabetically. When the ayes and noes shall be taken upon any question in pursuance of this rule, no Senator shall be permitted, under any circumstances whatever, to vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

Excuse from Voting.

50. When a Senator declines to vote on a call of his name he shall be required to assign his reasons therefor, and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the Senate: "Shall the Senator, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which shall be decided without debate. And these proceedings shall be had after the roll call and before the result is announced, and any further proceedings in reference thereto shall be after such announcement.

Reconsideration of Vote.

51. On the day succeeding that on which a final vote on any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment has been taken, said vote may be reconsidered on motion of any Senator: provided, notice of intention to move such reconsideration shall have been given on the day on which such final vote was taken, by a Senator voting with the prevailing side; and it shall not be in order to reconsider on the day on which such final vote was taken. Said motion for reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn. It shall require twenty-one votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, has been passed or defeated, fourteen votes to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been passed, and twenty-seven votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been defeated. Notice of reconsideration of the vote by which a Senate bill was passed, or a Senate joint resolution, Senate concurrent resolution or Senate constitutional amendment adopted, shall not be in order on or after the eighth day preceding the last day of the session. No notice of reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day of the session.

When Bill Is Held for Reconsideration.

52. If a Senator gives notice that he intends to move a reconsideration, the Secretary shall not transmit the bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment to the Assembly till the reconsideration is disposed of, or the time for moving the same has expired, unless the bill or resolution has already been transmitted to the Assembly.

When Bill Is Recalled for Reconsideration.

53. When a bill, resolution, amendment, order or message upon which a vote has been taken shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate and been communicated to the Assembly, a motion to reconsider shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the same, which last-named motion shall be acted upon immediately and without debate, and if determined in the negative shall be a final disposition of the motion to reconsider.

Debate on Motion to Reconsider.

54. A Senator, after a notice to reconsider is given, as provided in Rule 53, shall, at the reconsideration thereof, present the main question in his argument thereon, and the same shall be debated by the Senate, provided that the subject matter is debatable, and the vote on reconsideration shall be on the merits of the main question.

MESSAGES AND OTHER PAPERS.

Messengers from the Governor.

55. Messengers from the Governor may be introduced at any stage of business except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, while ballots are being counted, or while a Senator is addressing the Senate.

Messengers from the Assembly.

56. Messengers from the Assembly may be introduced at any stage of business, except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, while ballots are being counted, or while a member is addressing the Senate.

Consideration of Assembly Messages.

57. Messages from the Assembly may be considered when indicated by the Order of Business, or at any other time, by unanimous consent, or by vote of the Senate.

Reading of Papers.

58. When the reading of a paper (except a petition) is called for, and the same is objected to by any Senator, the question shall be determined by a vote of the Senate.

CONTENTS OF SENATE JOURNAL.

Proceedings to be Printed.

59. The proceedings of the Senate, when not acting as a Committee of the Whole, shall be entered in the Journal as concisely as possible, care being taken to record a true and accurate account of the proceedings.

Titles of Bills to be Printed.

60. The titles of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions, and constitutional amendments introduced shall be printed in the Journal.

STATEMENT OF PETITIONS TO BE PRINTED.

61. Every vote and a brief statement of the contents of each petition, memorial, or paper presented to the Senate shall be entered in the Journal, such petition, memorial, or resolution to be presented only by a Senator in regular session, and to be briefly explained by him.

Other Matter to Be Printed.

62. Messages from the Governor (other than biennial messages and inaugural addresses), joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments, when adopted, and the titles of all bills, joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments, when acted upon by the Senate, shall be printed in the Journal in full; provided, that in case of a concurrent resolution offering the adoption of a charter or charter amendments of any kind, the text of such charter or charter amendments shall not be printed in the Journal.

LEGISLATIVE PRINTING.

Number of Bills Printed.

63. Fifteen hundred copies of all bills shall be printed; and the Sergeant-at-Arms shall be required to certify to the reception by the Senate of all printed matter, and the quantity. One copy of each bill or paper printed by order of the Senate shall be delivered to each Senator at his desk, and the balance shall be distributed according to law.

NUMBER OF JOURNALS PRINTED.

64. The Superintendent of State Printing shall print one thousand copies of the Journal of each day's proceedings of the Senate, and one copy of the same shall be placed upon each Senator's desk, and a sufficient number sent to the Assembly to supply each Assemblyman with one copy; he shall also print a sufficient number of copies, properly pagged, to bind in book form as the Journal of the Senate, at the end of the session, as required by law.

Number of Other Documents Printed.

65. Seven hundred fifty copies shall be printed of each document or other matter ordered, unless the Senate especially directs a different number.

Excess Printing Only on Written Order.

66. The Superintendent of State Printing shall not print for the use of the Senate any matter other than provided by law, unless upon a written order signed by the Secretary. The Secretary may, when necessity requires it, order from the State Printer such printing as he deems necessary to be printed in advance of the regular order of business, under a specially prepared written order, to be known as a "Rush Order."

Form of Printing Amendments.

67. All bills amended shall immediately be reprinted; the new matter added by any amendments to be enclosed in heavy brackets, and the omission of any matter to be indicated by the insertion of heavy parentheses.

PERSONS ADMITTED TO THE FLOOR.

68. No persons except Assemblymen, state officers, Governors and ex-Governors of the states, members of Congress, Judges of the Supreme, Appellate and Superior Courts, ex-Senators and ex-Assemblymen, members of the press when accredited by their respective journals, attaches when actually engaged in work for the Senate or a member thereof, and the wife or child of a member, shall be admitted within the Senate Chamber, except in the gallery, during the sessions of the Senate; provided, however, any other guest of any member may be admitted to the floor of the Senate, but to no other part of the floor than to a seat in the row of seats in front of the rail or to a seat at the desk of said member; and provided, also, that such admission of said guest shall be only by written permission of said member, countersigned by the President or President pro tempore, such permission being good only for the sessions of the day on which it is given, the names of such member and guest to be entered in the Journal when specifically requested by such member. At the convening of the Senate in the morning, or after recess, all present except those covered by this rule shall retire from the floor of the Senate. No one except the Sergeant-at-Arms or his deputies shall be allowed to remain in the lobby behind the rail at any time.

No Lolling in Senate Chamber.

69. No person engaged in presenting to the Senate or any of its committees any business, claim, or legislation, shall be permitted to engage in such business in the Senate Chamber or be permitted on the floor of the Senate at any time while the Senate is in session. Any person transgressing this rule shall be removed from the floor of the Senate and shall be debarred from the privilege of the floor during the remainder of the entire session. The President and President pro tempore are charged with the enforcement of this rule, and this rule can not be suspended except by a two-thirds vote of the entire Senate.

Maintaining of Order.

70. In cases of a disturbance or disorderly conduct in the lobbies, the President (or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole) shall have the power to order the same cleared.

Smoking Within Senate Chamber.

71. No smoking shall be allowed within the Senate Chamber when objected to by the presiding officer or by any five members.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

Duties of Members.

72. No Senator shall absent himself from attendance upon the Senate without leave first obtained. A less number than a quorum of the Senate is hereby authorized to send the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person, for any and all absent Senators at the expense of such absent Senators, respectively, unless such excuse for nonattendance as shall be made to the Senate, when a quorum is convened, shall be judged sufficient, and in that case the expense shall be paid out of the Contingent Fund of the Senate; and this rule shall apply as well to the first convention of the Senate, at the legal time of meeting, as to each day of the session after the hour has arrived to which the Senate stood adjourned. The President or Acting President of the Senate, or less than a quorum present, shall have the power to issue process directed to the Sergeant-at-Arms, or to any other person, to compel the attendance of Senators absent without leave. Any Senator who shall refuse to obey such process unless sick or unable to attend, shall be deemed guilty of contempt of the Senate, and the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person, to whom such process may be directed, shall have the power to use such force as may be necessary to compel the attendance of such absent Senator, and for this purpose he may command the force of the county, or of any county in the State.

Parliamentary Rules.

73. In all cases not provided for by these rules, or by the Joint Rules of Senate and Assembly, the authority shall be Robert's Rules of Order.

Suspension or Change of Rules.

74. No standing rules or order of the Senate shall be rescinded or changed without a vote of two-thirds of the entire Senate, and one day's notice being given of the motion therefor; but a rule or order may be suspended temporarily by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the Senate, except that portion of Rule 13, relating to the order of enrolling bills. All proposed amendments to these rules shall, upon presentation, be referred to the Committee on Rules without debate.

Senator Breed moved that the report and the proposed Standing Rules of the Senate be adopted.

The question being upon the adoption of the report and rules.

The roll was called, and the report and rules adopted by the following vote:

RESIGNATION OF MINUTE CLERK.

SACRAMENTO, January 12, 1923.

To the Members of the Senate of the State of California.

GENTLEMEN: I hereby respectfully tender my resignation as Minute Clerk of the Senate, in order to return to my law practice in San Francisco.

In doing so I want to say to your honorable body and to each member thereof individually, how sincerely I regret to leave your service, after having been so closely identified with you every session of the Senate, beginning with that of the year 1913.

My resignation is tendered pursuant to my request made prior to my recent election that I be permitted to resign at the earliest possible moment.

Sincerely yours,

JAMES A. MILLER.

Remarks of Hon. A. H. Breed, President pro tempore of the Senate:

I can not let this occasion pass without saying something for Jimmie Miller. It would be impossible for any one to serve the state any better than has Jimmie Miller. The position he has occupied has been one of extreme exactness and one that has required a great deal of time and attention. I know over and over again, particularly during the latter part of the session, that Jimmie Miller has stayed at the desk until two or three o'clock in the morning to finish the minutes, and then has walked through the Capitol grounds to the State Printing Department so that that office could have the minutes out in time for us next morning. The devotion of Jimmie Miller to that work has been very refreshing and delightful, and I do wish this Senate to know of the services of Miller and I know that I speak for all when I say, "Jimmie, we wish you all possible success."

Remarks of Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young, President of the Senate:

I want to add a few words to what Senator Breed has said, as I had the pleasure of serving with Jimmie Miller two years earlier than Senator Breed, in the Assembly, beginning in 1911. He was devotedly attached to his work at the desk. We are mighty sorry to lose him.

MOTION.

On motion of Senator Slater, seconded by Senator Jones, the foregoing remarks were ordered printed in the Journal.

RESOLUTION.

The following resolution was offered:

By Senator Breed:

Resolved, That the following named persons be stricken from the list of Senate attaches, and their names be stricken from the pay roll of the Senate at the termination of this legislative day:

James A. Miller, Minute Clerk	$9 00 per day
John P. Rice, Assistant Minute Clerk	7 00 per day

Resolution read.

Senator Breed moved the adoption of the resolution.

The question being on the adoption of the resolution.

AYES—Senators Allen, Arbuckle, Boggs, Breed, Burnett, Canepa, Chamberlin, Creighton, Dennett, Eden, Gates, W. F., Gates, E. J., Godsil, Gray, Handy, Harris, Hurley, Inman, Johnson, A. B., Johnson, M. B., Jones, Lewis, McDonald, Murphy, Osborne, Powers, Rush, Sample, Slater, Swing, and West—32.
 NOES—None.

NOMINATIONS FOR ELECTION OF MINUTE CLERK OF THE SENATE.

The President declared nominations for Minute Clerk of the Senate in order.

Senator Godsil placed the name of John P. Rice of San Francisco in nomination for Minute Clerk of the Senate, effective on January 13, 1923.

Senator Breed seconded the nomination of John P. Rice for Minute Clerk.

The President put the question, "Are there any other nomination for the office of Minute Clerk of the Senate?"

There being no response, nominations were declared closed.

The President directed the Secretary to call the roll.

The roll was called, with the following result:

AYES—Senators Allen, Arbuckle, Boggs, Breed, Burnett, Canepa, Creighton, Crowley, Dennett, Eden, Gates, W. F., Gates, E. J., Godsil, Gray, Handy, Harris, Hurley, Inman, Johnson, A. B., Johnson, M. B., Lewis, McDonald, Murphy, Osborne, Powers, Rush, Sample, Sharkey, Slater, Swing, and West—31.
 NOES—None.

Whereupon the President declared John P. Rice duly and unanimously elected Minute Clerk of the Senate for the forty-fifth session of the California Legislature, effective January 13, 1923.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were offered:

By Senator Breed:

Resolved, That the following named persons be and they are hereby appointed to the respective positions hereinafter set forth as provided by law, with the compensation set opposite their names, payable weekly, and the Controller is hereby directed to draw his warrants for the said respective amounts, and the Treasurer is directed to pay the same:

Mrs. Ruth Fuller, Assistant Engrossing and Enrolling Clerk	$5 00 per day
Gertrude Thompson, Stenographer	5 00 per day

By Senator Jones:

WHEREAS, The laws of California, in a statute enacted at the session of 1921, specifically provide for publicity of contributions and expenditures made for the purpose of influencing electors for or against any proposition voted upon throughout the State, and require the filing with the Secretary of State by all persons, committees, firms, associations, corporations or other groups of persons, receiving in excess of $1,000 for campaign expenses, of itemized, detailed and verified statements of receipts and expenditures, and

WHEREAS, Said laws are based upon wise, sound and salutary public policy in enabling the citizens of California to know what associations, organizations, persons and agencies influence the passage or defeat of direct legislation by means of the expenditure of money, there being no greater menace in the government or political life of California than the influencing of legislation through the hidden, secret and concealed expenditures of large sums of money, and

WHEREAS, No statements of receipts and expenses have been filed with the Secretary of State as required by law in the case of numerous propositions voted upon by the electors of the State in the last general election, held on November 7, 1922, and

WHEREAS, It is currently charged that large sums of money, greatly in excess of said limit of $1,000, were received and expended by persons, committees, firms, associations, corporations and groups of persons to secure the passage or defeat of such propositions; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California. That a special committee of five (5) members of the Senate be appointed by the President of the Senate to investigate the receipts and expenses of such persons, committees, firms, associations, corporations and groups of persons, and upon the conclusion of such investigation to report to the Senate the results thereof, together with such recommendations as the committee shall deem proper.

Resolved, further, That said committee be, and it hereby is, authorized and empowered to do any and all things necessary to make a full and complete investigation of the matters and subjects hereinbefore enumerated or recited, and to that end to employ all necessary clerical, expert and legal assistants, and said committee is hereby authorized and empowered to summon witnesses, require the production of persons, books, accounts, agreements, documents, records and papers of every kind, to issue subpoenas, and to take all necessary means to compel the attendance of witnesses and to procure testimony; and the members of said committee are, and each of them is, hereby authorized to administer oaths; and all the provisions of article VIII of chapter II, title I, part III of the Political Code of this State, relative to the attendance and examination of witnesses before the Legislature and committees thereof, shall apply to the committee appointed under this resolution; and the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate is hereby authorized and directed to serve any and all subpoenas and orders or other process that may be issued by said committee, when directed so to do by the chairman thereof; that said committee be given leave to sit during sessions of the Senate and during the recess; that it report as speedily as possible the results of its investigation to the Senate, with such recommendations as it may deem proper, relative to abuses or wilful violation, if any of said law, and the particulars, if any, wherein said law should be strengthened providing for publicity of such contributions and expenditures.

Resolved. That the sum of three thousand dollars ($3,000.00) be and the same hereby is made available for the purpose of defraying the expenses of such committee in said investigation, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, and the State Controller is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrants in favor of the chairman of said committee for such expenditures as may be certified to him from time to time by the chairman of said committee, and the State Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to pay the same.

RESOLUTIONS BY GRAPE GROWERS OF MENDOCINO COUNTY.

UKIAH, CALIFORNIA, January 15, 1923.

Resolved, That the welfare and interest of the grape growers of Mendocino County demand that the Viticultural Division of the State Department of Agriculture be retained as it is.

Therefore, at a mass meeting of the Mendocino County grape growers it was unanimously voted that this resolution of sentiment be forwarded to Governor Richardson, members of the Legislature, Director Hecke, as well as to Senator F. C. Handy, and Assemblyman P. Connolly, and that they be requested to use their best influence to retain the same.

(Signed)

C. L. CRAWFORD, Chairman.

HOPLAND, CALIFORNIA, January 17, 1923.

Resolved, That it is the consensus of opinion of the Grape Growers of Hopland, in mass meeting assembled, that any change or transfer of the Viticultural Division of the State Department of Agriculture be opposed, and that resolution of this sentiment be sent to Governor Richardson, members of the Legislature, Director Hecke, as well as to Senator F. C. Handy and Assemblyman Pat Connolly.

(Signed)

T. L. HATT, President.

P. H. HOPPER, Secretary.

PETITION.

The following petition was presented, and ordered printed in the Journal:

By Senator Rush:

WHEREAS, The production of improved live stock is of prime importance to the cattle industry; and,

WHEREAS, Breeders of pedigreed live stock, and other live stock producers, have heretofore organized the California National Live Stock Show, and have held two annual shows, in tents, in the city of San Francisco, at great loss to themselves; and,

WHEREAS, Such shows are necessary to stimulate the production of more and better live stock, and are, therefore, of great importance, not only to the cattle industry, but to the welfare of all the people; and,

WHEREAS, Such shows are assisted by appropriations in other states, the last legislature in Oregon having appropriated for the Portland Live Stock Show the sum of $75,000 for premiums and $100,000 for buildings; and,

WHEREAS, The city and people of San Francisco have determined upon the purchase of twenty (20) acres of land and the construction of a building at a total cost in excess of $1,000,000 in order that the California National Live Stock Show may hereafter be adequately housed; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the California Cattlemen's Association, in convention assembled, do hereby commend the efforts of the California National Live Stock Show, and of the city and people of San Francisco, in the establishment of a permanent Live Stock Show in that city; and be it

Resolved, That we urge an adequate appropriation for premiums for the California National Live Stock Show by the State Legislature, and its approval by the Governor, in order that the greatest good in the production of improved live stock may result therefrom; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Honorable W. D. Stephens, Governor; to the Honorable Friend W. Richardson, Governor-elect; to the Honorable James Rolph, Jr., Mayor of San Francisco; and to the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the Assembly, and to the Chairman of the State Board of Control.

RESOLUTION.

The following resolution was offered:

By Senator Sample:

WHEREAS, Pursuant to a resolution passed on January 18, 1923, a special committee of five members was appointed by the President of the Senate on the following day to investigate the contributions and expenditures of money for and against the various initiative and referendum measures submitted to the voters of California, at the last general election and reported violations of chapter 583, Statutes of 1921, and

WHEREAS, Said committee did on the twenty-fourth day of January, 1923, in the exercise of purported powers under the resolutions authorizing its appointment, pass and adopt a resolution employing one William Kehoe as special attorney and counsel to represent said committee in its authorized investigation, and

WHEREAS, It is currently reported and charged that the said William Kehoe is now or has been the personal representative and paid attorney of an individual who is recognized as one of the well known advocates and financial sponsors of the so called Water and Power Act defeated at the last general election and whose large financial contributions to the campaign fund expended in its behalf is within the scope of the investigation, and

WHEREAS, The employment of the said William Kehoe will cause to arise in the minds of the many a feeling and conviction that the investigation to be conducted will not be surrounded by that degree of impartiality and disinterestedness that should attend each and every act of said committee, and

WHEREAS, It is wholly unnecessary and an extravagant use of money for said committee to employ or retain any legal assistance by reason of the fact that said special committee is composed of five lawyers and that in the event said committee deems it necessary in its investigation to require legal assistance outside the scope of learning and experience of its own members, or the other ten lawyers who are members of the Senate, the services of the Attorney General could, if requested, be secured; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the employment of said William Kehoe by said committee be, and it is hereby repudiated, and any power on the part of the said committee to employ legal counsel or assistants heretofore granted be, and the same is hereby withdrawn and revoked, and it is further

Resolved, That in the event that the said committee deems it necessary to employ or requires legal assistance or counsel, it is hereby instructed and authorized to call upon the Attorney General, who is hereby requested to furnish the same.

QUESTIONNAIRE.

Senator Sharkey requested and was granted unanimous consent to have the following questionnaire of the Committee on Motor Vehicles printed in the Journal:

SENATE CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO, January 25, 1923.

*To the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, and District Attorney,
Sacramento, California.*

GENTLEMEN: For the purpose of securing information of particular value to the State at this time, we are addressing to you, herewith, under authority of a resolution by the Senate of the State of California, a questionnaire relative to inspection and enforcement of State and County Highway Laws by officers in the employ of and under the control of your county.

It is extremely important that the State be advised at this time as to just what measures are being taken for the enforcement of laws governing the use of our highways and whether county officers are enforcing these laws equally on State built roads and county built highways.

We wish this information to be used in connection with the legislation that is coming before us during the present session.

If these traffic officers do not come under your jurisdiction or in your department please refer this questionnaire, immediately, to the official under whom the traffic officer operates.

We are sending this by special delivery in order to get the answer back at the earliest possible moment and would ask that you do all in your power to hurry it along, as it may prove of distinct value to the State as a whole and to your county individually.

QUESTIONNAIRE.

1. How many county officers do you maintain in your county, whose special duty it is to act as traffic officers?

Answer: -----

2. (a) Do you enforce the traffic laws through the use of these officers on county highways?

Answer: -----

(b) On the State built highways?

Answer: -----

3. (a) Do you inspect for and enforce the maximum weight load laws on county highways?

Answer: -----

(b) On State highways?

Answer: -----

4. (a) Do you inspect for and enforce the laws governing lights on county highways?

Answer: -----

(b) On State highways?

Answer: -----

5. (a) Do you inspect for and enforce the use of license plates and chauffeurs' licenses?

Answer: -----

6. (a) Do you inspect for and enforce the rate of speed on trucks on county highways?

Answer: -----

(b) On State highways?

Answer: -----

7. (a) What do you pay your traffic officers, whose special duty it is to enforce these laws?

Answer: -----

8. (a) Do your traffic inspectors get good results in the enforcement of these laws in your county?

Answer: -----

9. (a) Do you consider it necessary for the State to maintain inspectors or traffic officers under control of the State, for the proper enforcement of these laws, on the State highways?

Answer: -----

10. (a) If you consider it necessary for the State to maintain such officers, how many such officers do you think it would be necessary for the State to maintain to enforce such laws, in your county?

Answer: -----

11. (a) Have the State inspectors, or traffic officers that have been employed during the past been of particular benefit in your county in helping to enforce these laws on the State highways?

Answer: -----

12. (a) Will it be necessary for you to employ additional traffic officers, or inspectors, in your county, if the State discontinues its traffic officers or inspectors?

Answer: -----

Very respectfully yours,

Chairman Motor Vehicle Committee.

PETITION.

The following petition was presented by Senator Boggs, and ordered printed in the Journal:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA.
COUNTY OF AMADOR.

To Frank S. Boggs, Senator, to F. G. Sternot, Assemblyman, and to Frank M. Newbert, President Fish and Game Commission.

HONORABLE SIR: We, residents of Amador County, do hereby register our objection to any law having in effect the prohibition of the use of one dog in trailing deer as contemplated by an amendment to be introduced by the cattlemen or stock-raisers at the coming meet of the Legislature of this State.

The proposed inhibition is a stockmen's measure, who have joined with the timber men in seeking changes in the game laws, the timber men desiring legislation looking to the prevention of fires, and they are not interested in the dog question.

With any measure that will prevent fire waste, we are in full sympathy, but we protest any attempt to prevent our use of one dog in hunting deer for the following reasons:

Cattlemen and sheepmen have always hunted deer with their cattle dogs, dogs with which they herd and drive cattle, and if dog hunting is prevented, they will have a monopoly of hunting deer with dogs, and so will their herders.

Cattle will not stampede from sight of our deer hound any more than they will from a still hunter sneaking through the timber.

Our dogs assist in the destruction of the very animals that prey on the stockman's herd.

Stockmen have grazing permits only on the forest reserved land, and the whole world is invited there by the government to fish and hunt.

Let the cattleman enjoy his rights without asking that the rights of others be hampered.

Still hunting causes the loss of a great many deer to the hunter who has wounded them; the dog brings them into camp.

The old foxhound of the long ago has long since been discarded and the deerhound of today is a cross fox and beagle, a short run dog, and he has no use for cattle, sheep, hogs, goats or poultry, nor even domesticated deer.

We trust that when the smoke clears away, we will find that we have been permitted the use of one dog as at present, and we will ever pray.

VERNE WHEELER,
And 47 others.

RESOLUTION WITHDRAWN FROM PRINTER.

Senator Hurley asked for and was granted unanimous consent to have Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11 withdrawn from the Printer.

RESOLUTION.

The following resolution was offered:

By Senator Lewis:

Resolved, That the Senate investigate the advisability or possibility, of using the tract of land near Pomona, owned by the State, comprising some eight hundred acres and known as the Pacific Colony, as a site for the new Norwalk State institution, it being known that the colony has been abandoned by the administration as an active State enterprise.

If such use is possible it would save the State a large appropriation to purchase a tract of land for the homeless Norwalk asylum, thus leaving a greater sum for building.

Resolution read, and referred to the Committee on Hospitals and Asylums.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

By Senator Slater:

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE SENATOR ELMER S. RIGDON, IN REPLY TO HIS LONG AND ABLE SERVICE TO THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

True to his home, his State and country, somewhat beyond the threshold of life and apparently in the full possession of vigor and manhood, Senator Elmer S. Rigdon passed from life. His death occurred right in the prime of his usefulness but not before he had given evidence of a well grounded and truthful belief in the knowledge of the public welfare and the common good as evidenced during his years of service as a member of the Assembly and the Senate of the State of California. To ascribe to his memory a tribute such as his life work would justify would recompense him nothing, now that the silver cord has been loosed. Yet we, as his fellow members of the Senate of the State of California, agree that as the last earthly sunset waned for him that he left along life's pathway many shining remembrances and bright inscriptions that neither time nor death can efface, and such as merit not only the approval of his fellows and the citizenry of his beloved State of California, but certainly suggest a permanent reward promised by Him who first set the pattern of right living, so our hope is now that he fully realizes the ecstasies of the joys that mingle at the end of a perfect day; therefore, be it

Resolved by his fellows composing the Senate of the State of California, That we, in forty-fifth session assembled, in the Senate Chamber in the city of Sacramento, State of California, this thirtieth day of January, 1923, do most sincerely regret the death of Elmer S. Rigdon, of Cambria, San Luis Obispo County, and that we heartily concur in the foregoing sentiments as expressing our appreciation of his worth; and, be it further

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to his beloved wife and son, and others near and dear to him, and that the Secretary of this Senate is hereby directed to forward to the bereaved family, a copy of these resolutions and that the same be spread upon the pages of the Journal of this Senate.

HERBERT W. SLATER,
Chairman Senate Committee.
HERBERT C. JONES,
JOHN JOSEPH CROWLEY.

Resolutions adopted, and ordered printed in the Journal.

RESOLUTION.

By Senator Breed:

Resolved, That the following named person be stricken from the list of Senate attaches, and her name be stricken from the payroll of the Senate:

Mrs. Frank Linnem, Stenographer $5 00 per day

Resolution adopted.

APPROVAL OF JOURNALS.

On motion of Senator Breed, the Senate Journals of January 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12, also January 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19, and also January 22, 23, 24 and 25, all of 1923, were approved as corrected.

Title read and approved.

Assembly Bill No. 357 ordered transmitted to the Assembly.

COMMUNICATION.

The following communication was presented by Senator Jones, and ordered printed in the Journal:

550 SOUTH SIXTH STREET,

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA, January, 31, 1923.

To the Members of the Senate of the State of California, Sacramento, California.

GENTLEMEN: You are cordially invited to be the guests of the Child Welfare Research Station organization at a luncheon to be given on Saturday, February 17, at 12.30 o'clock at the Hotel Bellevue, San Francisco.

A fine luncheon and splendid program with nationally known speakers have been arranged for, and the honor of your presence is earnestly desired.

Will those who can accept kindly notify the undersigned?

(Mrs.) JOSEPHINE RAND ROGERS,

San Jose, California.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were offered:

By Senator McDonald:

WHEREAS, The consumption of narcotic drugs in the United States now amounts to 36 grains per capita as against 1 to 3 grains per capita for European countries; and

WHEREAS, The federal statistics show that the traffic in morphine, cocaine, heroin and prepared opium has nearly trebled in volume in this country within the past two years; and

WHEREAS, Drug addiction now has been proven to exist in large cities and small towns alike and in all sections of the United States and in many walks of life; and

WHEREAS, These facts powerfully demonstrate the need for prompt education of the American people, young and old, to the terrible results of the narcotic habit upon health and morals and the growth of crime; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the President of the United States be respectfully requested and urged to proclaim an Anti-Narcotic Week early in 1923, as a means of mobilizing this organization and all public-spirited bodies for the work of arousing the American people to the gravity of this menace, and aligning public opinion behind the task of narcotic suppression.

Also:

WHEREAS, Customs seizures of narcotic drugs at the port of San Francisco have increased from a wholesale valuation of $78,571 in 1920 to that of $205,679 in 1922, indicating a tremendous increase in smuggling activities from foreign sources; and

WHEREAS, The persistence of this illicit traffic, despite the large seizures made, indicates the huge profits that arise from the recent grave increase of drug addiction in the United States; and

WHEREAS, This is a truly international problem, since the supplies of opium, morphine, cocaine, heroin and marijuana come entirely from foreign sources and can only be controlled at the source of supply; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the President of the United States be respectfully but urgently petitioned to bring about an international conference on the narcotic problem, with a view to securing the limitation by treaty of the basic production of poisonous drugs which constitute a major menace to American life; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, the Governor of California, the United States Senators from California, the Congressman and State Senator and Assemblyman from this district, and the press.

Resolutions referred to Committee on Public Morals.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message from the Governor was received and read:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

To the Members of the Senate and Assembly.

In accordance with the requirements of section 34 of article IV of the constitution as amended at the recent general election I submit herewith to you a budget containing a complete plan and itemized statement of all proposed expenditures of the State provided by existing laws or recommended by me, and of all institutions, departments, boards, bureaus, commissions, officers, employees, and other agencies, and of all estimated revenue, for each fiscal year of the ensuing biennial period, being from July 1, 1923, to June 30, 1925; together with a comparison as to each item of revenue and expenditure for the first fiscal year of the present biennial period, being the period from July 1, 1921, to June 30, 1922; and the actual and estimated revenues and expenditures for the second fiscal year of the present biennial period, being the period from July 1, 1922, to June 30, 1923.

The budget herewith submitted does not exceed the estimated revenues for the ensuing biennial period and hence it is unnecessary for me to recommend the source from which additional revenue shall be provided.

The budget presented herewith totals $78,974,628.55, and the estimated revenues are $85,237,000 of which $5,200,000 is not available on account of litigation. In preparing this budget I have been aided by the members of the Board of Control who have worked strenuously to complete it in the very short time allowed by law. The members of the board are entitled to great credit for their efficient service to the State. The new members of the board took office on the tenth instant and have had barely three weeks to complete a task which should have consumed three months. The convening of the Legislature, the induction of a new administration into office, and the going into effect of the new budget amendment, all at the same time, have made it impossible to present a budget sooner. It has not been possible to make a full survey of the various State departments as desired. The constitution provides that the Governor may at any time amend or supplement the budget, and during your recess the board proposes to make further investigations and recommendations to me. That there should be further cuts will probably be shown on closer examination. Many of the departments are in charge of hostile officials who have handicapped us in every way.

The budget presented is complete in detail giving as many as one hundred items in a department, and is in striking contrast with former unofficial budgets which frequently contained only two items. It also covers all of the so-called self-supporting boards and commissions, not included in previous budgets. While it has been a laborious task to prepare all of this detail, it will provide invaluable information to you when you come to analyze and consider it. You will undoubtedly find that many other economies can be effected.

In preparing this budget I have used every endeavor to live up to the mandate of the people as expressed at the primary election last August and at the general election in November. The people expressed themselves strongly in favor of economy and efficiency in State government, of eliminating unnecessary expense, of cutting out useless boards and commissions, of taking off the payroll political parasites, and the wrecking of the political machine which in the past few years has squandered millions of dollars of the people's money. I have heeded the voice of the people and made my cuts regardless of any political consequences to myself. I have hewed to the line, letting the political chips fall where they may. The advocates of the "pork barrel" idea in appropriations have been given no consideration, as I have tried to consider the State as a whole and the general needs of the people. My chief purpose has been to relieve the people of their great burden of taxation.

The people ultimately pay every dollar of tax whether it be direct or indirect. While the State derives most of its revenue from a franchise tax on corporations this tax is passed on to the people with an added burden. The Railroad Commission has ruled that taxes are part of the operating expense of corporations and must be added in fixing rates. After the increase of rates on public utility corporations at the last session of the Legislature, the Railroad Commission increased the rates on fares, light, water, gas, telephone, and the people found they did pay the tax. The much heralded and misnamed King Bill not only increased the burden upon the people, but it failed to materially increase the revenue of the State because the railroad corporations appealed to the courts, which permitted them to settle with the State at the old rate of $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent instead of the new rate of 7 per cent while the suit is pending. To attempt to still further increase the rates on public utility companies in view of present litigation would be futile.

So while I am faced with the duty of obeying the mandate of the people as expressed in the recent election, I am also faced with the necessity of keeping State expenses below the State income. You are faced with the same mandate and the same necessity. The State should live within its income and limit its needs. Every citizen of California finds himself confronted with the necessity of curbing his financial desires and cutting down his needs. As soon as the boy becomes a man he finds he must spend less than he earns or bankruptcy faces him. The State must practice the same philosophy.

Because a given appropriation has merit is not a sufficient reason for its passage. If this were the guide the budget would exceed all bounds of reason. The total expenses and the total revenue of the State must always be borne in mind. The State must hold itself in check and keep within the bounds of sane economy. Every dollar which has been cut from the demands of the various State departments and reductions made over the former budget will result in benefit to the people. The adoption of this budget will not only save the people many millions of dollars but will afford a wholesome lesson to cities and counties and may save the people many millions more.

The rapid increase of the budget during recent years has resulted in an era of extravagance. In 1915 the budget in round numbers was $35,000,000; in 1917 it reached $47,000,000; in 1919 it rose to $52,000,000, but in 1921 it mounted to $51,000,000. If this rate of increase had been kept up the budget of 1923 would have been $150,000,000, so the present budget not only represents a reduction of $12,000,000 over the total appropriations of 1921, but the stopping of $71,000,000 which might have been piled on the people had the orgy of political extravagance continued.

The budget presented to you takes care of every State need and is liberal in comparison with actual needs and the budgets previous to 1921.

While the net budget total is $78,974,628.55, it contains $700,000 for emergencies, and $1,200,000 for flood control. With these items eliminated the budget would be $77,974,828.55. The great sum of $49,788,415.10 is provided for education, in short more than sixty per cent of the budget is for education. A total of $10,329,670 in the budget is to pay interest and principal on State highway bonds. The fixed charges provided by law total $59,624,226.75 as compared with $44,909,749.15 as submitted in the budget two years ago. The budget has been reduced from 1921 despite the fact that the fixed charges have increased $14,714,477.60.

This budget contains flood control items aggregating $1,200,000 of which $600,000 is for reclamation work in the Sacramento Valley and $600,000 for flood control in Los Angeles County. The Legislatures of 1919 and 1921 appropriated $6,000,000 for these two projects and spread the payments out over ten years. Continuing appropriations of this kind are unfair to future administrations and are of doubtful propriety. Both of these projects are sectional in character and such a policy pursued all over the State would cost many millions. As the credit of the State has been pledged, however, the amount is included in the budget.

If the State taxes were used solely for State purposes the budget could be greatly decreased. The greater part of this budget is for money for county and district purposes. The State will pay to the counties $37,261,860 for elementary and secondary schools for the coming biennial period; $673,914.60 for salaries of superior judges; $576,983.33 for school books; $2,600,000 for aid of county orphans; and this budget shows $10,329,670 to pay interest and principal on bond money used in building roads in the counties. The policy of unloading county functions upon the State has helped increase the budget.

The recommendations made for the schools are undoubtedly greater than they should be, but it has been my purpose to be liberal in the matter of education. Extravagance in educational matters has run riot during the past few years. This budget shows an increase of $8,618,627.60, or 23 per cent in the past two years. Politicians in the guise of educators have squandered the people's money with a lavish hand and have denounced advocates of thrift as enemies of education.

A great political organization has been built up which has cost the people an immense sum but has added little to the value of education given school children. The laws have been cunningly amended so that supervisors, school boards and boards of education have little control over the expenditures of school money and hence can not check extravagance. The people are loud in their protest as indicated by hundreds of complaints received by me, but they are unorganized and unable to cope with the schemes of certain political educators.

The expenditure of school money in this State must be put on a business basis and the schools must not only teach but practice thrift. Educators should be left in control of educational matters, but sound business men should be in control of expenditures.

INDUSTRIAL FARM FOR WOMEN.

The Director of Institutions has reported that a large percentage of the women committed to the Industrial Farm for Women are narcotic or alcoholic addicts and are the same class as have for years been taken care of in the six State hospitals of this State; that the history of moral delinquency in the inmates of the farm is not more marked than it is in the State hospital inmates; that the State is not justified in maintaining two different departments attempting to meet the same problem; that in the hospitals this class can be cared for at an expense of $21.90 per month per patient, whereas the cost at the farm for the past six months was $80.46 a month per patient. The Board of Control joins with the present Director of Institutions, and the former Director of Institutions, in the belief that this institution should be closed and the property turned over to the Sonoma State Home for the care of epileptics. The Sonoma Home is only a few miles away from this farm.

The problem of delinquent women is an age-old one and attempts to solve it have been made throughout the centuries without success. That should not discourage us in the attempt to do something for this unfortunate class of women, and I have therefore included an appropriation in the budget for this institution so that it can be conducted for at least two years longer. This institution should be given not only a fair but sympathetic trial. I make this recommendation in spite of the fact that a majority of the people seem to be opposed to its purposes, and that the bill in the first place is reported to have become a law by mistake.

CALIFORNIA POLYTECHNIC SCHOOL.

This institution is located at San Luis Obispo and was created in 1901 as an Industrial School before the time when but a very few high schools and elementary schools carried on industrial work. Last year there were 183 students enrolled in this school, 92 of whom lived in San Luis Obispo, most of whom were young boys of high school age. The State at the present time is paying to the school districts of the State money with which to educate this very class of students. As the majority of the students are of high school age, it would seem that the many high schools giving manual instruction would answer the requirements. It is proposed by the Department of Education to build this school up as an agricultural college, to be available for the southern part of the State for students over high school age.

This school seems to be entirely out of joint with the whole educational system of the State, and if the State is to go into the business of educating students of high school age, it would have to establish scores of similar institutions throughout California.

A small appropriation has been included in the budget for the continuance of this school until such time as it can be changed into some other line or used for some other State institution.

BOARD OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS.

The principal activities of the State Board of Charities and Corrections and all the activities of the child agents of the Board of Control are concerned with the supervision of orphanages and other homes caring for dependent children, which are required to submit financial and statistical reports, identical in character, to both agencies. Agents and inspectors from both agencies visit the same institutions. Before any money is paid by the State for the aid of orphans, the county must first make an investigation of the particular case and make a recommendation. The institutions located in the counties of Los Angeles, San Francisco and Alameda are under the inspection of county boards of public welfare, boards of health, and in some instances two or more State agencies. So when these same institutions are also inspected by the child agents of the Board of Control, and by the Board of Charities and Corrections, there is a duplication of effort.

The supervision exercised by the Board of Charities and Corrections over the three State reform schools, the six hospitals, and the Sonoma Home, has proved of value in a number of cases, but is merely advisory. The Board has performed some effective work in encouraging various counties to systematize their form of charities, and to improve the character of their county hospitals, poor farms and county jails. I believe that the Board of Charities and Corrections has functions which should be maintained and which are of value to the State. Instead of having it a separate and overlapping body, I suggest that it be made a division of the Department of Finance. Provision has been made in the budget of the Department of Finance for this work.

IMMIGRATION AND HOUSING.

The functions of the Commission of Immigration and Housing are twofold, consisting of the enforcement of labor laws relative to immigrants and of State housing laws. A large part of the work of this commission is a duplication of the work of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The housing laws refer for the most part to conditions existing in large cities and labor camps. In the cities there also exist local agencies charged with the duty of enforcing these laws. The State Board of Health has jurisdiction over certain housing laws and inspection of the condition of automobile camps, and has authority to inspect labor camps as well. Both the Commission of Immigration and Housing and the Board of Health inspect factories. This has caused overlapping functions and a conflict of authority. The Americanization work of this commission has been voluntarily surrendered to the Board of Education and is now in that department budget.

In order to prevent duplication and to centralize the work of this department, I recommend that the function of this commission be transferred to the State Bureau of Labor Statistics. Provision has been made in the budget for the bureau for their work.

HUMBOLDT TEACHERS COLLEGE.

The per capita cost of this institution for 1921-22 was $964 a year. This cost is greatly in excess of the cost of any other Teachers College in California. The Board of Control has recommended that this college be combined with the Chico School in order to cut down expenses and to afford the pupils of the Arcata School better facilities for training. With the completion of the highway between the Sacramento Valley and Humboldt Counties, the means of communication between Chico and Humboldt will be made much more easy than at present.

I have included in the budget an appropriation for maintaining the Humboldt School, and suggest that you give serious consideration to the recommendation of the State Board of Control.

STATE MINING BUREAU.

This bureau has functions which overlap with other departments. In mining inspection the work of this bureau and the Industrial Accident Commission overlap. The oil work does not properly belong to this bureau. The mining exhibit should be made available for students at the University of California. I recommend that the oil department be turned over to the Surveyor General, that the inspection work be placed in the hands of the Industrial Accident Commission, that the mining exhibit be turned over to the University of California and that the bureau be abolished. Provision has been made in the Surveyor General's and Industrial Accident Commission's budget for these added duties.

ESTIMATED REVENUE.

The State Board of Equalization has estimated the net revenue for the ensuing biennial period to be $80,037,000, itemized as follows:

	1923	1924
Corporation Franchise Tax	$34,700,000	$35,400,000
Inheritance Tax	4,800,000	5,400,000
License Tax	990,000	1,000,000
Fees, Secretary of State	260,000	265,000
Interest on deposits in banks	450,000	450,000
Punitive and Reformatory School Collections	500,000	520,000
Fees, Supreme and Appellate courts	11,000	11,000
Miscellaneous receipts	230,000	250,000
	<hr/> $41,941,000	<hr/> $43,296,000
		<hr/> $41,941,000
For biennium		$85,237,000
Amount not available (litigation)		5,200,000
Total available revenue		<hr/> $80,037,000

Respectfully submitted,

F. W. RICHARDSON,
Governor of California.

February 1, 1923.

PETITIONS - (OUT OF ORDER).

The following petition was presented by Senator Dennett, and ordered printed in the Journal:

OAKDALE, CALIFORNIA, January 29, 1923.

*Hon. L. L. Dennett, State Senator,
State Capitol, Sacramento, California.*

DEAR SIR: We, the undersigned citizens of Stanislaus County, who have been in the practice of annually procuring hunting licenses and who hunt either ducks or deer or both, respectfully petition you to use your best efforts when a new game law is adopted to bring about the following results:

To open the duck shooting season later and close it later, say February 1st.

To prohibit the hunting of shooting and hunting preserves during the open season.

To allow the ducks to settle all over the country and not be kept in a few baited places on private preserves.

To permit the continuance of the use of dogs in deer hunting, thereby permitting wounded deer to be recovered, which would otherwise die and the meat spoil.

To allow the deer hunting season in this district to open September 1st as at present. Proper regulation of campers and hunters by game wardens and forest employees would prevent fires if opened at this date and a later opening would doubtless mean the killing of far more does being mistaken for bucks than at present.

H. A. SCHADLISH,

And 22 others.

RECESS.

At twelve o'clock and fifty minutes p.m., on motion of Senator Breed, the President declared the Senate at recess until the hour of two o'clock and thirty minutes p.m.

RECONVENED.

At two o'clock and thirty minutes p.m., the Senate reconvened. Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young, President of the Senate, in the chair.

Joseph A. Beek, Secretary of the Senate, at the desk.

COMMUNICATIONS—(OUT OF ORDER).

The following communications were presented and ordered printed in the Journal:

By Senator Breed:

CALIFORNIA ALUMNI ASSOCIATION,
BERKELEY, CALIFORNIA, January 10, 1923.

Honorable C. C. Young,
Lieutenant Governor,
State of California.

MY DEAR MR. YOUNG: The California Alumni Association, which as you know represents twenty-five thousand leading men and women of California, is extremely desirous that the Senate and Assembly of the California Legislature visit the university campus again this year as it did two years ago, in order that our Senators and Assemblymen may get first hand knowledge on the needs of this great institution.

This letter is as a consequence written to you to ask you to issue to the members of the California Senate an invitation to be the guest of the California Alumni Association on March 16, spending the forenoon and afternoon upon the university campus in inspection and being the guest of honor at our Henry Morse Stephens Memorial banquet to be held in the Court Room of the Palace Hotel on the evening of March 16.

This invitation includes also the wives and families of the Legislators and provision is being made for their special entertainment by the ladies of the Alumni Association and the women students of the university on the afternoon and evening of March 16.

Very sincerely yours,

ROBERT LIBBY,
Executive Manager.

Also:

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA,
BERKELEY, CALIFORNIA, January 12, 1923.

The Honorable C. C. Young,
Lieutenant Governor of the State of California,
Sacramento, California.

MY DEAR MR. YOUNG: It is my pleasure to extend to you and to the members of the Legislature of the State an invitation to spend the day of March 16 on the campus of the University of California, as guests of the students. At this time the Henry Morse Stephens Memorial, a large and beautiful structure, will be dedicated. Henry Morse Stephens was a man who delighted in his contact with the students, and was a constant inspiration and incentive in student life and activities. So, in dedicating this building to him, we of the student body feel that the day of March 16 should be one of activity, life, and exposition of student work. In pursuance of this idea, we have arranged that all the departments and colleges of the university shall give exhibitions in their respective lines of work. Also a university meeting has been scheduled on that date, which, incidentally, corresponds with the date set for the annual Engineers' Day.

In addition to this, we have extended an invitation to some twenty-five thousand alumni of the university, who are now out in the business world, to visit us and renew their contact with us.

The plans in regard to the program are not complete at the present time, but we have the assured backing of the alumni, and we earnestly desire your presence and the presence of the members of the Legislature. I confidently feel that it will be the will of those who administer the affairs of the State to visit us at this time and get in closer contact with the needs and the running of an institution on which some nine millions of dollars are expended each year.

Furthermore, some ten thousand of us who in a short time will become the active, or at least interested, citizens of the State desire, if possible, to meet those who administer the State's affairs, and it is my earnest hope that you may see your way clear to being our guest on that day, March 16, 1923.

Respectfully yours,

EARL G. STEEL,

President, Associated Students, University of California.

COMMUNICATION.

The following communication was presented and ordered printed in the Journal:

By Senator Lyon:

LOS ANGELES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

WHEREAS, Government statistics show an appalling and constantly increasing use of narcotics in the United States, and

WHEREAS, Experts declare that seven-tenths of the crimes of violence committed in this country are by addicts, and

WHEREAS, The illegal use of drugs is becoming a most serious menace and the habit is making giant strides over the world generally, and

WHEREAS, It has now become a world problem and must be dealt with as such, and

WHEREAS, It is evident that concerted action must be taken by the nations if lives and homes are to be preserved from the growing menace of this evil, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, that the President of the United States be, and hereby is, respectfully urged to give thought to a plan of international scope and effect to the end that only sufficient of the drug producing plants, trees, vines or flowers be grown to fill actual, legitimate needs; and that the problem may be dealt with in all its ramifications so that this peril may be ended once and for all, and that dope buying, selling, or dealing in any illicit manner may be permanently prevented and thus the young manhood and young womanhood of all races be removed from the danger of narcotic enslavement and ruin. And further, be it

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to our Senators and Representatives in Congress; to the Governor of the State of California, and to our State Senators and Representatives from this district.

I hereby certify that the above is a true and correct copy of resolution adopted by the Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, at the regular meeting on Thursday, January 25, 1923.

Attest: FRANK WIGGINS, Secretary.

W. T. BISHOP, President.

RESOLUTION.

The following resolution was offered:

By Senator Eden:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to deliver to the Secretary of State, to be deposited in the archives, the certified copy of the Colorado River Compact heretofore transmitted by the Department of State of the United States to the Governor of California under date of December 16, 1922; also the letter from the Department of State accompanying the same.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

WASHINGTON, December 16, 1922.

The Honorable The Governor of California, Sacramento.

Sir: I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of a letter dated December 13, 1922, from Mr. Clarence C. Stetson, Executive Secretary of the Colorado River Commission, and a certified copy of the Colorado River Compact, signed November 24, 1922, by representatives of the States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, and approved by the Honorable Herbert Hoover, who represented the interests of the United States in the negotiation of the compact.

This certified copy of the instrument is being sent to you pursuant to the request contained in Mr. Stetson's letter and the provisions of article XI of the compact, which provide that the original shall be deposited in the archives of this department, and that certified copies thereof shall be sent to the governors of the signatory states.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

No. 6036.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

To all to whom these presents shall come, Greeting:

I certify that the document hereunto annexed is a true copy from the original in the archives of this Department. [Colorado River Compact signed November 24, 1922, at the city of Santa Fe, New Mexico.]

In testimony whereof I, Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State, have hereunto caused the seal of the Department of State to be affixed and my name subscribed by the Chief Clerk of the said department, in the District of Columbia, this fifteenth day of December, 1922.

CHARLES E. HUGHES,
Secretary of State.

By BEN G. DAVIS,
Chief Clerk.

COLORADO RIVER COMPACT.

The states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, having resolved to enter into a compact under the act of the Congress of the United States of America approved August 19, 1921 (42 Statutes at Large, page 171), and the acts of the legislatures of the said states, have through their governors appointed as their commissioners:

W. S. Norviel, for the State of Arizona
W. F. McClure, for the State of California
Delph E. Carpenter, for the State of Colorado
J. G. Scrugham, for the State of Nevada
Stephen B. Davis, Jr., for the State of New Mexico
R. E. Caldwell, for the State of Utah
Frank C. Emerson, for the State of Wyoming

who, after negotiations participated in by Herbert Hoover appointed by the President as the representative of the United States of America, have agreed upon the following articles:

Article I.

The major purposes of this compact are to provide for the equitable division and apportionment of the use of the waters of the Colorado River System; to establish the relative importance of different beneficial uses of water; to promote interstate comity; to remove causes of present and future controversies; and to secure the expeditious agricultural and industrial development of the Colorado River Basin, the storage of its waters and the protection of life and property from floods. To these ends the Colorado River Basin is divided into two basins, and an apportionment of the use of part of the water of the Colorado River System is made to each of them with the provision that further equitable apportionments may be made.

Article II.

As used in this compact:

(a) The term "Colorado River System" means that portion of the Colorado River and its tributaries within the United States of America.

(b) The term "Colorado River Basin" means all of the drainage area of the Colorado River System and all other territory within the United States of America to which the waters of the Colorado River System shall be beneficially applied.

(c) The term "states of the Upper Division" means the states of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming.

(d) The term "states of the Lower Division" means the states of Arizona, California and Nevada.

(e) The term "Lee Ferry" means a point in the main stream of the Colorado River one mile below the mouth of the Paria River.

(f) The term "Upper Basin" means those parts of the states of Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming within and from which waters naturally drain into the Colorado River System above Lee Ferry, and also all parts of said states located without the drainage area of the Colorado River System which are now or shall hereafter be beneficially served by waters diverted from the system above Lee Ferry.

(g) The term "Lower Basin" means those parts of the states of Arizona, California, Nevada, New Mexico and Utah within and from which waters naturally drain into the Colorado River System below Lee Ferry, and also all parts of said states located without the drainage area of the Colorado River System which are now or shall hereafter be beneficially served by waters diverted from the system below Lee Ferry.

(h) The term "domestic use" shall include the use of water for household, stock, municipal, mining, milling, industrial and other like purposes, but shall exclude the generation of electrical power.

Article III.

(a) There is hereby apportioned from the Colorado River System in perpetuity to the Upper Basin and to the Lower Basin respectively the exclusive beneficial consumptive use of 7,500,000 acre-feet of water per annum, which shall include all water necessary for the supply of any rights which may now exist.

(b) In addition to the apportionment in paragraph (a), the Lower Basin is hereby given the right to increase its beneficial consumptive use of such waters by one million acre-feet per annum.

(c) If, as a matter of international comity, the United States of America shall hereafter recognize in the United States of Mexico any right to the use of any waters of the Colorado River System, such waters shall be supplied first from the waters which are surplus over and above the aggregate of the quantities specified in paragraphs (a) and (b); and if such surplus shall prove insufficient for this purpose, then, the burden of such deficiency shall be equally borne by the Upper Basin and the Lower Basin, and whenever necessary the states of the Upper Division shall deliver at Lee Ferry water to supply one-half of the deficiency so recognized in addition to that provided in paragraph (d).

(d) The states of the Upper Division will not cause the flow of the river at Lee Ferry to be depleted below an aggregate of 75,000,000 acre-feet for any period of ten consecutive years reckoned in continuing progressive series beginning with the first day of October next succeeding the ratification of this compact.

(e) The states of the Upper Division shall not withhold water, and the states of the Lower Division shall not require the delivery of water, which can not reasonably be applied to domestic and agricultural uses.

(f) Further equitable apportionment of the beneficial uses of the waters of the Colorado River System unapportioned by paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) may be made in the manner provided in paragraph (g) at any time after October first, 1923, if and when either basin shall have reached its total beneficial consumptive use as set out in paragraphs (a) and (b).

(g) In the event of a desire for a further apportionment as provided in paragraph (f) any two signatory states, acting through their governors, may give joint notice of such desire to the governors of the other signatory states and to the President of the United States of America, and it shall be the duty of the governors of the signatory states and of the President of the United States of America forthwith to appoint representatives, whose duty it shall be to divide and apportion equitably between the Upper Basin and Lower Basin the beneficial use of the unapportioned water of the Colorado River System as mentioned in paragraph (f), subject to the legislative ratification of the signatory states and the Congress of the United States of America.

Article IV.

(a) Inasmuch as the Colorado River has ceased to be navigable for commerce and the reservation of its waters for navigation would seriously limit the development of its basin, the use of its waters for purposes of navigation shall be subservient to the uses of such waters for domestic, agricultural and power purposes. If the Congress shall not consent to this paragraph, the other provisions of this compact shall nevertheless remain binding.

(b) Subject to the provisions of this compact, water of the Colorado River System may be impounded and used for the generation of electrical power, but such impounding and use shall be subservient to the use and consumption of such water for agricultural and domestic purposes and shall not interfere with or prevent use for such dominant purposes.

(c) The provisions of this article shall not apply to or interfere with the regulation and control by any state within its boundaries of the appropriation, use and distribution of water.

Article V.

The chief official of each signatory state charged with the administration of water rights, together with the Director of the United States Reclamation Service and the Director of the United States Geological Survey shall cooperate, ex officio:

(a) To promote the systematic determination and coordination of the facts as to flow, appropriation, consumption and use of water in the Colorado River Basin, and the interchange of available information in such matters.

(b) To secure the ascertainment and publication of the annual flow of the Colorado River at Lee Ferry.

(c) To perform such other duties as may be assigned by mutual consent of the signatories from time to time.

Article VI.

Should any claim or controversy arise between any two or more of the signatory states; (a) with respect to the waters of the Colorado River System not covered by the terms of this compact; (b) over the meaning or performance of any of the terms of this compact; (c) as to the allocation of the burdens incident to the performance of any article of this compact or the delivery of waters as herein provided; (d) as to the construction or operation of works within the Colorado River Basin to be situated in two or more states, or to be constructed in one state for the benefit of another state; or (e) as to the diversion of water in one state for the benefit of another state; the governors of the states affected, upon the request of one of them, shall forthwith appoint commissioners with power to consider and adjust such claim or controversy, subject to ratification by the legislatures of the states so affected.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the adjustment of any such claim or controversy by any present method or by direct future legislative action of the interested states.

Article VII.

Nothing in this compact shall be construed as affecting the obligations of the United States of America to Indian tribes.

Article VIII.

Present perfected rights to the beneficial use of waters of the Colorado River System are unimpaired by this compact. Whenever storage capacity of 5,000,000 acre-feet shall have been provided on the main Colorado River within or for the benefit of the Lower Basin, then claims of such rights, if any, by appropriators or users of water in the Lower Basin against appropriators or users of water in the Upper Basin shall attach to and be satisfied from water that may be stored not in conflict with article III.

All other rights to beneficial use of waters of the Colorado River System shall be satisfied solely from the water apportioned to that basin in which they are situated.

Article IX.

Nothing in this compact shall be construed to limit or prevent any state from instituting or maintaining any action or proceeding, legal or equitable, for the protection of any right under this compact or the enforcement of any of its provisions.

Article X.

This compact may be terminated at any time by the unanimous agreement of the signatory states. In the event of such termination all rights established under it shall continue unimpaired.

Article XI.

This compact shall become binding and obligatory when it shall have been approved by the legislatures of each of the signatory states and by the Congress of the United States. Notice of approval by the legislatures shall be given by the governor of each signatory state to the governors of the other signatory states and to the President of the United States, and the President of the United States is requested to give notice to the governors of the signatory states of approval by the Congress of the United States.

In witness whereof, the commissioners have signed this compact in a single original which shall be deposited in the archives of the Department of State of the United States of America and of which a duly certified copy shall be forwarded to the governor of each of the signatory states.

Done at the city of Santa Fe, New Mexico, this twenty-fourth day of November, A. D. 1922.

COMMUNICATION—(OUT OF ORDER).

The following communication was presented:

By Senator Inman:

OLYMPUS PARLOR No. 189, N. S. G. W.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, January 24, 1923.

Hon. C. C. Young,
Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate,
Sacramento, California.

DEAR SIR: We beg to advise that on Wednesday, the twenty-fourth day of January, 1923, Olympus Parlor No. 189, N. S. G. W., adopted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, There has been in California a constant growth of so-called Japanese language schools and they have grown to such proportions as to be a menace to our institutions and it now appears that the creation and maintenance of such schools is designedly fostered and encouraged by Japanese of perverted national feeling, both officially and privately, to provide centers of Japanese culture and defences against Americanization, and that every such school is a hostile outpost of the Orient;

Resolved, That Olympus Parlor No. 189, N. S. G. W., record its sense that such Japanese language schools be abolished by law and that it memorialize, and it hereby does memorialize the Legislature of the State of California to adopt a legislation necessary to put an end to the menace of Japanese language schools in California.

Very respectfully,
[SEAL]

OLYMPUS PARLOR No. 189, N. S. G. W.,

HON. GEORGE C. PERKINS

Served his country as Governor of this State, and as United States Senator for twenty-two years, typifying all that was good and great in public life, and when Death, the friend of the aged, encompasses all that is mortal in his last embrace, though it be expected, yet the shock to the public and to his friends is severe; the vacuum the more bewildering, the regret the more lasting. That others may not forget, the Senate of the State of California this day

Resolved, to adjourn in honor of his memory, and dedicate this brief memoria upon the pages of its history to the loving memory of a loyal, genial and devoted American; therefore, be it

Resolved, That when the Senate this day adjourns, it adjourn out of respect to the memory of the Honorable George C. Perkins; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be and is hereby instructed to engross certain copies of these resolutions and transmit them to the bereaved family.

Resolution read, and unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

ADDRESS TO SENATE.

Upon invitation of the President, Senator Slater addressed the Senate:

ADDRESS IN HONOR OF LUTHER BURBANK.

By Herbert W. Slater, Senator Eighth Senatorial District.

Once again I am privileged to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that this day, March 7th, by legislative enactment, is "Bied and Arbor Day," particularly so specified as a compliment to Luther Burbank, great man of California and of the world, whose birthday it is. Nothing could be more fitting than the setting apart of a day in Spring for the planting of trees and flowers to commemorate the great service Mr. Burbank has rendered mankind in the creation of so many new fruits, flowers, cereals, vegetables, trees and other forms of nature. In honoring him on this day we honor ourselves.

This is Mr. Burbank's seventy-fourth birthday and incidentally this year he attains his Golden Jubilee in his chosen work which has manifestly been of so much importance to the world. He is still at work. Recently he stated that in order to be a success a man must work, and in this connection he asserted that it is unwise to give a youth an easy berth at the outset of life, because in the after years he would lack the development mentally and physically which he would otherwise have attained if he had begun to work honestly and sincerely at the start.

Emissaries from different parts of the world are coming to Mr. Burbank's home in Santa Rosa this year to extend the felicitations of the nations benefited, such as we have been by many of his offerings, and to congratulate him upon the attainment of his fiftieth year as a creator and moulder of plant life. Surely this great and sincere man is worthy of grateful acknowledgement. He has added enriched color tint and perfume to many of the choicest blossoms. He has intensified and in many instances given richer flavor to our fruits. He has increased the yield of many now world famed cereals. He has produced and caused to tower aloft the majestic trees whose roots he first pressed into the soil. He has gone farther with nature in undreamed of ways until the world long since proclaimed him one of her foremost and most useful citizens.

His interest in little children and in the schools has caused him to be considered their benefactor and by his encouragement and kindness in many ways he has shaped the stately edifice of a soul which in the attainment of manhood and womanhood will mean the reaping of a golden reward in the full sense of citizenship.

I am sure that I voice the sentiment of the Senate of the State of California when I express the hope that Mr. Burbank will be spared for many more years to carry on the work that has been so eminently successful and so rich and perfect in result.

MOTION.

Senator Slater moved that the Senate telegraph congratulations to the Honorable Luther Burbank.

Senator Gates, E. J., seconded Senator Slater's motion.

Motion unanimously carried.

At eleven o'clock and fifty-five minutes a.m., on motion of Senator Breed, the President declared the Senate adjourned.

Senate Bill No. 447—An act creating the Peninsula Development District, conferring certain powers thereon and providing for the exercise thereof.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENTS.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendments were offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

In the title of the printed bill, insert after the word "district" the following: "Comprising the city and county of San Francisco and a portion of San Mateo County,".

Amendment adopted.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

On page 1 of the printed bill, strike out lines 1 to 13, inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"SECTION 1. It is hereby recognized by the legislature of the State of California that there exists along the southwesterly side of San Francisco bay, within the limits of the city and county of Francisco and the county of San Mateo, a large area of marsh, swamp, overflowed and submerged tide lands that serve but little useful purpose; that, were the same to be reclaimed, such area would be made available and adaptable as sites for manufacturing and other industrial purposes, for railway lines and terminals and that, by the improvement of the water front contiguous to such

For the purpose of providing money necessary to meet such estimated expenditures said board of directors may impose and levy a tax upon all the taxable property within the district as the same appears upon the assessment rolls of the counties wholly or partly within said district. Such tax shall not exceed fifteen cents upon each one hundred dollars of such assessed value. A notice of its intention to levy said tax, on a day and place to be stated in such notice, shall be published in a daily newspaper published in the district at least ten days prior to such designated day and at such time and place any person shall have the right to make objections and be heard in respect to such proposed tax.

A certified copy of the resolution or order imposing such tax shall be transmitted to the auditors of the counties herein named, and upon receipt thereof it shall be the duty of said auditors to compute such tax and enter the amount thereof upon the assessment rolls against each parcel of land and property as the same appears thereon. The tax collectors of said counties shall collect said tax at the time and manner required by law for the collection of the first installment of other taxes and subject to the same penalties for non-payment and conditions for the sale thereof for delinquencies. Upon the collection of said tax, the tax collector shall deposit the same with the treasurer or depository of the district. The cost of computing and collecting such tax shall be a charge upon the district.

In the event of property being located partly within and partly without the district and the valuation thereof is in one sum, the assessor shall furnish to the auditor an apportionment of such sum, with the valuation separately stated and applicable to the respective portions within and without the district. The auditor shall compute the tax only upon the valuation of the property within the district.

SEC. 7. Whenever it is necessary to meet the cost of any project or improvement which will require a greater sum than that which is to be realized from the annual tax the board of directors may issue certificates of indebtedness, payable out of the revenues of succeeding years. Such certificates shall not bear interest in excess of six per cent per annum. The amount of such certificates payable out of any year's revenue, shall not be in excess of two thirds of the estimated revenue of such year to result from the maximum tax authorized in section six hereof, and no such certificates shall be issued for a term longer than five years. Upon the collection of each year's tax a sum sufficient shall be set aside expressly for the payment of any outstanding certificate that will become due during the year for which the tax was levied, together with interest on all certificates outstanding. In no year shall a tax be levied that shall be less than that which will be required to pay any outstanding certificates, together with interest thereon to become due during the next succeeding year.

SEC. 8. Whenever any public improvement is to be made which will result in a special benefit to land in private ownership, the whole or a part of the cost thereof may be assessed upon the land so to be benefited in manner following:

Prior to the commencement of the work of improvement the board of directors shall publish a notice of its intention to make the same, giving a general description of its character, a description of the district or districts which will be benefited thereby and which are liable to be assessed for the whole or a part of the cost thereof and a statement of the sum to be assessed upon such land within the district or districts by reason of such improvement. The resolution shall also fix a time and place when and where any person may appear and be heard in respect to any objection which he may have to any recital in such resolution. Such resolution shall be published five times in a daily newspaper published in the district and the date of hearing shall not be less than ten days from the completion of such publication. The directors shall attend at such hearing and consider all objections offered. At the conclusion thereof such objections may be sustained in whole or in part or may be denied. The resolution may be modified as to any recital therein contained, but no enlargement shall be made of the district to be benefited nor of the sum proposed to be assessed. At the conclusion of the hearing the board of directors may proceed to do the work of improvement, or declare that the same shall be done.

At any time thereafter the board of directors may cause a report to be made and filed showing the extent of the district or districts to be benefited by the improvement and the various subdivisions thereof and making an apportionment and proposed assessment of the sum theretofore determined to be the amount to be assessed, or so much thereof as may be deemed necessary or expedient, to such several subdivisions according to the benefits to accrue by reason of such improvement.

Notice of the filing of such report shall be published for five days in a daily newspaper published in the district and such notice shall fix a time and place when and where any interested person may appear and be heard in respect to any objection which he may have to the imposition of an assessment to the amount apportioned to the several subdivisions of land as shown by said report. The time fixed for such hearing shall not be less than ten days from the completion of the publication herein required.

At such hearing, which may be continued from time to time, the board of directors shall hear all objections and may confirm said report or may modify and confirm the same as modified, but no increase of any proposed assessment shall be made. The confirmation of such report shall be deemed to be the imposition of an assessment upon the several subdivisions or parcels of land described therein and to the amount apportioned or assessed thereto as shall appear in said report.

The board of directors may determine that the assessments may be paid in annual installments, in which event interest shall be paid thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from a date to be then fixed until the same are paid. An assessment list describing the several parcels or subdivisions, with the amount of the assessment imposed thereon and the annual interest charge thereon, if such interest charge there be, shall be filed with the auditor of the county wherein such land is situated, and the auditor shall enter the same upon the assessment roll for the year in which such assessment is payable, and the tax collector shall collect the same at the time of the collection of the first installment of county taxes and pay the same to the district treasurer or depository. Liens for assessments imposed as herein provided and to the amount thereof and interest thereon shall exist in favor of the district from the date of their imposition and shall continue until the same are fully paid. Such liens may be foreclosed in the event of nonpayment of the assessment or any installment thereof and the property liable thereof and the property liable therefor may be sold in a proceeding brought in the name of the district for that purpose. The board of directors may issue certificates of indebtedness against the assessment to the amount thereof and payable from the moneys collected therefor.

The owners of land within an assessment district or which may be benefited by the improvement may make agreements with the board of directors respecting of any assessment and its time and manner of payment and may waive a compliance with any provision herein contained, or may agree to contribute to the cost of any improvement in lieu of or in addition to an assessment.

When deemed expedient several assessments may be imposed in manner herein set forth, provided that the aggregate thereof shall not exceed the amount first determined.

In lieu of the procedure herein set forth for imposing an assessment to cover the cost of an improvement, the board of directors may adopt the provisions of the "Local Improvement Act of 1911," and the amendments thereto and the act known as the "Improvement Bond Act of 1915" and amendments thereto, but the requirements of the first named act respecting the posting of notices shall be dispensed with. The board of directors of the district may designate any officer, employer or person to perform any duty required to be performed under the provisions of said acts.

SEC. 9. All constructive work in excess of one thousand dollars shall be done by contract after advertisement and receipt of bids therefor. The bid most favorable to the district shall be accepted and the directors shall require such security for the performance of contracts and for the payment of labor and materials as they shall deem adequate. In the event that no bid for doing any public work shall be deemed satisfactory the board may, in its discretion, re-advertise for the same or may proceed to do the work in some manner other than by contract.

SEC. 10. Any director may be recalled at any general election and the laws in respect to recall of counties officers shall apply to the proceedings therefor, so far as the same are applicable, except that petitions for such recall shall be filed in each county comprising the district. No successor to the director sought to be recalled shall be voted for, and in the event of the recall of any director, the election board herein provided for shall be convened forthwith and his successor chosen for the unexpired term.

SEC. 11. If, within thirty days after the taking effect of this act there shall be filed with the board of directors of the district a petition asking that it be submitted to referendum vote of the electors of the district, which petition shall have been signed by five per cent of the registered voters of the district, it shall be the duty of the board of directors to order the same submitted at an election to be held on the sixth day of November, 1923, and it shall be the duty of officers having charge of elections in San Francisco to place the proposition on the ballot to be used at the municipal election on said day. Upon being notified of the fact that a referendum has been duly petitioned for, the board of supervisors of San Mateo county shall provide for an election in that portion of the county embraced in the district on said day mentioned. Special election precincts may be established for such election, but in other respects the conduct of such election shall be in accordance with the law providing for special elections within counties. The referendum petition shall conform to the general law respecting such petitions in counties. The votes cast shall be cast, counted, canvassed and the results determined as provided by law in such cases. The clerk of the board of supervisors in San Mateo county shall certify to the board of election commissioners of the city and county of San Francisco the result of the election in such county and said board shall add the total votes so certified as having been cast for and against the act to the total so cast in the city and county of San Francisco and shall certify the total votes for and against the act cast in both counties to the secretary of state. If a majority of the votes cast on the question are against the act then the same shall be without effect and all acts done pursuant to its provisions shall be null and void; otherwise said act shall remain in full force and effect.

Amendment adopted.

CLARA M. PAINTER.

And 1000 others.

By Senator Gray:

*To the President and Members of the Senate of the State of California,
State Capitol, Sacramento, California.*

GENTLEMEN: We, the undersigned, do hereby lend our hearty support to petition submitted your honorable body as "An act to amend section 628a of the Penal Code, relating to the protection of fish and game," whereby netting or seining of striped bass in the creeks, rivers, bays and waters of the State of California will be prohibited for a period of six years, commencing on the first day of August, 1923, and ending on the first day of August, 1929.

In the event the bill is passed, we support the strict enforcement of the law, and for violations, more severe penalties than the bill contemplates.

R. B. LEECH.

And 2006 others.

By Senator Slater:

WHEREAS, It is a matter of common knowledge to those charged with the administration of highway affairs, both State and county, as well as by those who use the highways, that pavements are damaged from motor truck operation where excessive loads are carried; and

WHEREAS, This damage to the State and county highways, due to the excessive loads carried at extreme speeds is, by reason of such loads and speeds, far greater than the economics of that form of transportation will justify; and

WHEREAS, The engineers of the California Highway Commission, both past and present, supported by able, competent, independent and unbiased engineers of the two State automobile associations, recommend that motor trucks be limited to a gross weight of 22,000 pounds, in order to prevent further excessive damage and to protect the inadequate and comparatively thin State and county highways that now exist; therefore be it

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce at its regular meeting of Tuesday, March 6, 1923, that we urge the California Legislature, now in session at Sacramento, to pass such legislation as will adequately protect our State and county highways from such excessive damages, by rigidly limiting motor trucks to 22,000 pounds gross weight and to reasonable rates of speed in truck operation; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Governor of the State of California, to the California Legislature now in session at Sacramento, to the California Highway Commission, to all the county boards of supervisors in the seven north of bay counties, and to all civic-commercial organizations and newspapers in the seven north of bay counties.

DAN H. LAFFERTY.

Attest: JAMES G. STAFFORD, Secretary.

Also:

WHEREAS, The depleted condition of the State Highway Fund threatens the continued construction, maintenance and reconstruction of State highways, as provided for in the bond issues of 1909, 1915 and 1919; and

WHEREAS, The investment already made of nearly $73,000,000 in State highways is seriously endangered, because of a lack of adequate funds with which to maintain or reconstruct them, to prevent their total loss; and

WHEREAS, An equitable distribution of the costs of highway maintenance and reconstruction, should be based upon the relative use each motor vehicle makes of the highways of the State; therefore be it

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce at its meeting of Tuesday, March 6, 1923, that we urge the California Legislature, now in session at Sacramento, to adopt suitable legislation for a fuel consumption tax of not less than two (2) cents per gallon used by each and every motor vehicle using the State highways; and that the fund so derived be used by the California Highway Commission for maintenance and reconstruction only; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Governor of the State of California, to our representatives in the Senate and Assembly, the California Highway Commission, the county boards of supervisors of the seven north of bay counties and to all civic-commercial organizations and newspapers in the seven north of bay counties.

By Senator Handy:

UKIAH, CALIFORNIA, February 15, 1923.

We, the committee appointed to take up the matter of the communication from the Grand Jury of Santa Clara County, with reference to the law pertaining to the possession of narcotics, and the penalty therefor, submit as follows:

WHEREAS, The present law and the penalty that can be imposed for violations of the law is inadequate and not in keeping with the magnitude of the crime; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Grand Jury, being fully persuaded of the necessity of a change in the law to make the penalty of the violation commensurate with the crime, recommend that the representatives of Mendocino County in the law-making bodies of this State be requested to assist and cooperate in any and all legislation to the end that a law may be enacted that shall, in its operation and enforcement, reduce to the minimum the terrible effects of this menace to our State, particularly the youth of our State and nation.

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, March 6, 1923.

The Board met in regular session. Present, Supervisors T. B. Talbert, Chairman, S. H. Finley, Wm. Schumacher, Leon O. Whitsell, George Jeffrey and the Clerk.

In re Senate Bill No. 503—

On motion of Supervisor Whitsell, duly seconded and carried, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Senate Bill No. 503 would empower the City of Los Angeles to condemn to its own uses water and power rights now dedicated to the service of interior communities; and

WHEREAS, Said bill was introduced at the instance of the Attorneys for the Public Service Commission of the city of Los Angeles after the Federal Court of Appeals dismissed the condemnation suit of the city of Los Angeles against land and water rights of the Southern Sierras Power Company in Owens River gorge now in the service of the people of this county, and

WHEREAS, Enactment of this measure into law would make Los Angeles the autocratic dictator of the agricultural and industrial growth of the interior counties, by vesting in that city the right summarily to give, withhold or apportion to them the water and power on which they are now and must in the future be dependent, be it

Resolved, That we protest against the passage of this bill, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Senator and Assemblyman representing this district. State of California, County of Orange, ss.

I, J. M. Backs, County Clerk and ex-Officio Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, do hereby certify the foregoing to be a full, true and correct copy of the minute entry on record in my office.

ON OIL INDUSTRIES.

SENATE CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO, March 13, 1923.

MR. PRESIDENT: Your Committee on Oil Industries, to which was referred Senate Bill No. 188—An act to authorize the State Board of Control to lease certain land belonging to the State of California, situate in the county of Los Angeles, and providing for the disposition of the moneys received under said leases—has had the same under consideration, and respectfully reports the same back with amendments, and recommends that it do pass as amended.

Committee membership—9; committee vote: Ayes—7; absent—2.

LYON, Chairman.

Senate Bill No. 188 ordered on file for second reading.

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

The following report of Special Committee was received and read, and ordered printed in the Journal:

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON NORWALK.

Your Committee appointed under Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 6 to investigate the oil possibilities on the property occupied by the State Hospital at Norwalk, and report back to the Assembly and Senate with recommendations, submit the following report for your consideration:

We find that such oil as may be under the surface of the property can be extracted by a proper location of wells, so as not to disturb or seriously limit the usefulness or growth of the institution, and that there is no necessity of moving the institution or of curtailing its normal growth.

We find that the development of oil in the immediate vicinity of the institution indicates that the State may by leasing for oil and gas derive a substantial cash bonus, and if oil is produced on the property, should obtain a considerable monthly income as long as oil in paying quantities may be produced therefrom.

It is the recommendation of the Committee that the Legislature pass a general law that will permit the Board of Control in conjunction with the Attorney General and the Surveyor General to lease any lands for the production of oil, gas and other hydrocarbons belonging to the State not included in the lease law now on the statute books. It is a further recommendation of the Committee in reference to the Norwalk property that a lease or leases be made by competitive bidding with one or more financially responsible individuals or companies doing business in California for the development of oil, gas and other hydrocarbons along such lines as will not interfere with the requisite activities and expansion of the Hospital, but that will nevertheless conserve to the State its oil and gas values underlying the property, and it is the judgment of the Committee that the best results to the State will be obtained in this instance by leasing the north half of the property or portions thereof at this time to one or more financially responsible individuals or companies on the basis of a cash bonus per acre, and a royalty on all oil, gas or other hydrocarbons produced and saved.

By Senator Allen:

LOS ANGELES, March 3, 1923.

Mr. Newton M. Allen,
333 Grandview.

DEAR MR. ALLEN: WHEREAS, The proposed budget would reduce the appropriation for the teachers college in spite of an enrollment of 200 per cent increase:

WHEREAS, This reduction will seriously impair the work of the elementary schools in California for a generation;

WHEREAS, The proposed budget would eliminate all State supervision of physical education, Americanization and home economics and curtail the distribution of texts and other important State functions; be it

Resolved, That the Governor and legislators revise this budget to make adequate provision for all these items commensurate with the growth of the school population and appropriate for public education the sum which the Department of Education can show to be needed to keep the schools up to their present first place among all states of the Union.

Respectfully,

MRS. H. A. UNGAR,
And 100 others.

By Senator McDonald:

We favor the new pension law as presented by the San Francisco Teachers' Association, and endorsed by the Legislative Committee of the California Teachers' Association—Senate Bill No. 127.

COMMUNICATION.

The following communication was presented by Senator E. J. Gates:

OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12, 1923.

Hon. Egbert J. Gates,

Chairman, Finance Committee State Senate,
Sacramento, California.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of yours of the ninth inst., with which you enclose and ask a reply to a question of the Joint Committee of the Assembly and the Senate now considering the budget. The question submitted is as follows:

"Does Constitutional Amendment No. 12 passed by the people in the general election of November, 1922, either expressly or by inference direct or divert into the general fund of the State the funds, and revenues of the so-called self-supporting institutions, commissions, and boards for which special funds have been created by provision of the codes and statutes of the State?"

Directly answering your question, I am of the view that the constitutional amendment referred to in your resolution does not "either expressly or by inference direct or divert into the general fund of the State the funds, and revenues of the so-called self-supporting institutions, commissions, and boards for which special funds have been created" and the use of which is directed by existing law.

While the statement just made answers the question which you have submitted, my desire to be helpful in the understanding of this constitutional provision, the construction of which is not without difficulty, will perhaps justify additional statement.

The various commissions and boards to which you refer are undoubtedly State agencies and the moneys collected by them are moneys belonging to the State and subject to legislative disposition. If at the time of their collection existing law did not otherwise provide for their disposition, these moneys would find their way into the general fund of the State Treasury. In those instances where existing law provides for another disposition of the funds so collected, the provisions of such law will continue until changed by the Legislature. The constitutional amendment, without doubt, contemplates that the revenues of the State collected in this fashion, together with revenues derived from all other sources, will make up the total of revenue available for State purposes, and the expenditure of which, except where otherwise directed by existing law, is to be provided for by the budget bill. This will require that before the revenues collected by many, if not by all, of these boards and commissions can be paid into the general fund and made subject to disposition of the budget bill for general purposes, the existing law controlling the funds of such boards and commissions will have to be changed.

Very truly yours,

U. S. WEBB, Attorney General.

RESOLUTION.

The following resolution was offered:

By Senators McDonald, Godsil, Gray, Murphy and Crowley:

WHEREAS, All Americans agree that the main end of all of our educational endeavor is to produce good Americans rooted and founded on the basic doctrines of Americanism as formulated in the Declaration of Independence, as organized in our national constitution and as achieved in our national history; and,

WHEREAS, The University of California is the capstone of our system of educational endeavor in this State; and,

WHEREAS, That University should be the tower of strength in the cause of Americanism and a lamp to the feet of our young men and women on the paths of true patriotism; and,

WHEREAS, William S. Sims has shown by deed and by word a disrespect for the traditions of this republic and disloyalty to its purposes and has ridiculed the efforts of its executives and its soldiers and its sailors in the late world conflict; and,

WHEREAS, One President of the United States, United States Senators, members of Congress, editors of newspapers and two secretaries of the Navy Department have been called upon to rebuke his intemperate aspersions upon American naval and military prowess as indicated by the following:

From San Francisco Examiner, June 9, 1921:

"Sims Publicly Rebuked by Taft Administration.

"Washington, June 8. Navy Dept. records reveal that Commander (now Rear Admiral) William S. Sims was publicly reprimanded eleven years ago for a pro-British speech at Guild Hall, London."

The offending portion of Sims' speech, President Taft's demand for a reprimand, and the reprimand itself, as set forth in the navy records follows:

Sims' speech: 'If the time ever comes when the British Empire is seriously menaced by an external enemy, it is my opinion that you may count upon every man, every dollar, every drop of blood of your kindred across the sea.'

"President Taft's letter: 'Commander Sims can not escape censure on the ground that what he said was a mere expression of his personal opinion. Under the circumstances he must speak as an official representative,

For these reasons I direct that a public reprimand be given Commander Sims."

"Secretary von Meyer's order: 'A public reprimand is hereby administered to Commander W. S. Sims, U. S. Navy, and will be entered upon his official record. The gravity of the offense is so clearly set forth in the above quoted communication from the President that no additional remarks appear necessary to indicate to the naval service the lack of tact and knowledge of the plain duty of an officer of the navy exhibited by Commander Sims upon the occasion mentioned and to prevent a repetition of such a regrettable occurrence.'"

From San Francisco Examiner, January 27, 1920:

"Rear Admiral Denounced as Pro-British.

"Democratic Congressman Demands Sims Be Ousted for Revealing Secrets of Navy.

"Bitterly Excoriated As 'Hero of Drawing Room' and Victim of Pure Anglomaniac.

"Washington, Jan. 27 (By Universal Service). In making public the admonition, 'Don't let the British pull the wool over your eyes,' Rear Admiral William S. Sims, violated confidential instructions and should be dishonorably discharged. Representative James E. Byrnes, Democrat of South Carolina, declared in a speech in the House today.

"Byrnes denounced the former commander of the American naval activities in European waters in the most bitter terms."

From San Francisco Examiner, January 24, 1920:

The following is from the pen of James Connolly, who spent eight months in the naval forces abroad in the World War, and whose comments on Admiral Sims are based on personal observation:

"Noted Author, with Fleet in War, Says Admiral More British Than Britons.

"James M. Connolly says Sims is attempting to make Secretary Daniels ridiculous in British Eyes; American Officer was Completely Under Dominance of English Admiralty. He Charges.

"Boston, Jan. 24th—Our navy, according to Admiral Sims was something of a slacker during the war. Too bad, of course, and yet, as a British born, shouldn't Sims be more grateful. Only for that slacker navy of ours there would be no British empire today and with no British empire and its dire needs there would be no Sims.

"Sims is a natural development.

"First, he is colonial born and colonials of English descent will fight for empire and royalty long after such things have become a joke in the old country.

"Secondly, he is a politician, and thirdly, he is a publicity man—publicity for Sims. He is an admiral today, one of what they call the indoor admirals; yes, but is the other three that are and have been the working influences with him.

"It was at a banquet in London in 1910 that Sims arose and said that he a captain in the United States Navy could assure all present that in the event of that war which could not be much longer postponed, England's great backer would be the United States. They need have no fear when the time comes, America's last man, last dollar, last pound of steel, would be at England's call.

"Sims was disloyal to Secretary Daniels in war time, and he is disloyal to him now. His Admiralty Headquarters in London were rotten with the backcapping of Daniels."

Under the heading "March of Events" June 17, 1921, the following is an excerpt of editorial, San Francisco Examiner:

"In the British House of Commons last Thursday, Admiral Sims was the recipient of a tremendous ovation. Members cheered themselves hoarse, while the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Austen Chamberlain, welcomed Sims and declared him to be 'the first and foremost citizen and patriot of his country.'

"At most identically the same hour the American Senate passed without a dissenting vote, a resolution calling for an investigation of Sims' conduct and public speeches in England, and the American House of Representatives entertained a resolution to call Sims to account, while members of both Houses of the Congress denounced his conduct, some speakers going so far as to demand his dismissal from the naval service of the United States.

"Rear Admiral Sims has chosen the British point of view as the right one. That is natural as he has always been loyal Briton and never an American—not even by birth.

"Since this officer is at heart a Briton, and a Tory Briton, at that he should not wear an American Naval uniform."

From the San Francisco Chronicle, November 14, 1922:

"Toronto, Nov. 13.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. Navy, retired was heartily cheered when in an address before the Canadian Club today, he said that he favored the British 'because the British are good sports.'

"'I am pro-British,' Admiral Sims said. 'In fact I am characterized by some newspapers as the most popular British Admiral in the American Navy. I like the British because they are good sports and will stand the gaff without whimpering at all.'"

WHEREAS, The authorities of the University of California have invited the said William S. Sims to address the students of the University on Charter Day, March 23 next, thus placing their seal of approval upon the conduct and utterances of said Sims, and exposing the young men and women of the University to the contagion of the kind of propaganda above noted; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature of the State of California has authority and supervision over all of those departments or institutions for which it must provide funds for their maintenance; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate. This fifteenth day of March in session assembled, that we believe the invitation extended to the said William S. Sims is not in harmony with American ideals and we demand that the authorities of the State University cancel the invitation.

(49) In counties of the forty-eighth class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of two thousand dollars per annum; provided, that in counties of this class, there shall be and there is hereby allowed to the commissioner the following positions, inspectors and clerk, to be appointed by said commissioner, which positions are hereby created, and the salaries are hereby fixed as follows, to wit:

(a) One deputy county horticultural commissioner at a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum.

(b) The commissioner is also authorized and empowered to appoint not to exceed two inspectors at a compensation of five dollars per diem each, during the time actually employed, but the aggregate amount which may be expended in any year for all such inspectors is one thousand five hundred dollars.

(c) The commissioner is also authorized and empowered to appoint not to exceed one clerk at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum, but the aggregate amount which may be expended in any year for such clerk shall not exceed one thousand five hundred dollars.

(50) In counties of the forty-ninth class, the commissioner shall receive a compensation of six dollars per diem, during the time actually employed; provided, that in counties of this class, there shall be and there is hereby allowed to the commissioner the following inspectors and clerk to be appointed by said commissioner, which positions are hereby created and the salaries are hereby fixed as follows, to wit:

(a) The commissioner is also authorized and empowered to appoint not to exceed three inspectors at a compensation of five dollars per diem each, during the time actually employed, but the aggregate amount which may be expended in any year for all such inspectors shall not exceed five hundred dollars.

(b) The said commissioner is also authorized and empowered to appoint not to exceed one clerk at a compensation of two dollars per diem during the time actually employed, but the aggregate amount which may be expended in any year for such clerk shall not exceed three hundred fifty dollars.

(51) In counties of the fiftieth class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one dollar per annum.

(52) In counties of the fifty-first class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; provided, that in counties of this class, there shall be and there is hereby allowed to the commissioner the following inspectors to be appointed by said commissioner, which positions are hereby created, and the salaries are hereby fixed as follows, to wit:

(a) Two inspectors at a compensation of five dollars per diem each, during the time actually employed, and four inspectors at a compensation of four dollars and a half per diem each, during the time actually employed, but the aggregate amount which may be expended in any year for all such inspectors shall not exceed one thousand three hundred dollars per annum.

(53) In counties of the fifty-second class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; provided, that in counties of this class, there shall be and there is hereby allowed to the commissioner the following inspectors, to be appointed by said commissioner, which positions are hereby created, and the salaries are hereby fixed as follows, to wit:

(a) Four inspectors at a compensation of three dollars and a half per diem each, during the time actually employed, but the aggregate amount which may be expended in any year for all such inspectors shall not exceed four thousand eight hundred dollars.

(54) In counties of the fifty-third class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one dollar per annum.

(55) In counties of the fifty-fourth class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one dollar per annum.

(56) In counties of the fifty-fifth class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one dollar per annum.

(57) In counties of the fifty-sixth class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one dollar per annum.

(58) In counties of the fifty-seventh class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one dollar per annum.

(59) In counties of the fifty-eighth class, the commissioner shall receive a salary of one dollar per annum.

(60) The salary and compensation herein provided for the commissioner and deputy commissioner shall be paid out of the county treasury in equal monthly installments, where the employment is by the year, and monthly as earned in other cases, in the same manner and at the same time as other county officers are paid. In addition to the salaries and compensations herein provided, said commissioner, deputy commissioners and inspectors shall each be entitled to receive their personal and traveling expenses necessarily incurred in the performance of their said duties and said expenses so incurred and all compensation earned by such officers or employees as shall not be employed by the year, shall be a county charge and the board of supervisors shall allow and pay the same out of the general fund of the county in the same manner as other claims against said fund are allowed and paid.

(61) If for any reason the board of supervisors refuse or neglect to appoint a commissioner at the expiration of the thirty days referred to in section two thousand three hundred twenty-two hereof or at the expiration of the term of office, or if it refuse or neglect to appoint a commissioner to fill a vacancy in the office of county horticultural commissioner, as elsewhere provided for in this act, then the director of agriculture shall select and appoint a commissioner from the said list of eligible persons. Whenever the director of agriculture shall appoint a commissioner as herein provided, then the board of supervisors must provide for the payment of such appointee's compensation and expenses in the same manner as if such appointment had been made by the board of supervisors.

(62) In case of vacancy in the office of said commissioner it shall be the duty of the director of agriculture to furnish the board of supervisors of the county in which such vacancy shall have occurred with a list of names of all persons eligible to the office of county horticultural commissioner and from such list and within thirty days after receipt thereof, the said board of supervisors shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy. No person shall be eligible to the office of county horticultural commissioner unless, prior to his appointment, he has received and holds from the director of agriculture a valid certificate of eligibility to the office. If the position cannot be filled from said list of eligibles, then such vacancy may be temporarily filled for a period not exceeding three months by a person who has not received a certificate of eligibility but who is recommended to the board of supervisors in writing by the director of agriculture.

(63) The director of agriculture shall, by examination, pass upon the qualifications of all persons desiring to become county horticultural commissioners and may, in writing, adopt rules and regulations governing such examinations not inconsistent with law for carrying out the purposes of this act. Certificates of eligibility issued by the director of agriculture shall be good for five years from the date of certification or until revoked as hereinafter provided, and in the case of incumbents, shall be renewed by the director of agriculture without further examination. At the time of his appointment a commissioner need not be a resident of the county.

The director of agriculture shall also, by himself or his authorized agent or agents, pass upon the qualifications of all persons desiring to become a county horticultural inspector, as provided for under subdivision two of this section, and shall issue valid certificates of eligibility to such persons as shall have been found qualified to serve as such, and no person shall be entitled to serve as such county horticultural inspector for a longer term than three months unless there shall have been issued to him a valid certificate of eligibility to such office by the state director of agriculture. Neither deputy county horticultural commissioners nor inspectors need be residents of the county or counties for which they may be chosen. In all counties having charters providing for civil service examination of county horticultural inspectors, the director of agriculture shall issue a certificate of eligibility without other examination than that required by the civil service provisions of the county charters, and upon the presentation to him of a certificate of the civil service board of said county showing the candidate for county horticultural inspector had passed such civil service examination.

(64) Upon the petition of twenty-five resident freeholders of any county, each of whom is possessed of an orchard, greenhouse or nursery, or upon evidence being presented to the director of agriculture that the county horticultural commissioner of such county is guilty of neglect of duty, incompetence or misconduct in office, which evidence in the opinion of the director of agriculture shall warrant a hearing or hearings upon the matter, the county horticultural commissioners' trial board hereinafter provided shall thereupon hold such a hearing or hearings at such times and places as it shall provide.

(65) The state director of agriculture and the president of the state association of county horticultural commissioners shall thereupon select an impartial third person who with the said director of agriculture and said president of the state association of county horticultural commissioners shall compose a trial board to determine whether said commissioner is guilty of the charges as presented. Said board as thus created, shall be known as the county horticultural commissioners' trial board, and at such hearing or hearings the trial board shall hear such evidence as is offered and thereafter, within thirty days, make an order either dismissing the charges as untrue or an order disqualifying the accused. The said director of agriculture shall give notice in writing to the said commissioner, of the time and place of such hearing and such information as to the nature of the charges as will enable him to make a defense thereto, at least ten days prior to the date of the hearing or hearings. In case the order made by said trial board disqualifies said commissioner the director of agriculture shall forthwith revoke said commissioner's certificate of eligibility and a copy of such order shall be immediately transmitted in writing by the director of agriculture to the board of supervisors and auditor of said county.

(66) The said board of supervisors shall provide a suitable office for the said commissioner, and shall furnish and equip the said office with all necessary furniture, supplies and effects for the proper discharge of the commissioner's duties. The said board of supervisors may also provide the commissioner with all necessary field equipment for the proper discharge of the duties of his office. All expenses ordered by the board of supervisors for such office, furniture, supplies, effects and equipment shall be a county charge and the board of supervisors shall allow and pay the same out of the general fund of the county.

Sec. 2. Section two thousand three hundred twenty-two a of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows.

2322*a*. (1) The said commissioner, deputy horticultural commissioners and inspectors have full authority to enter into any orchard, nursery or premises where trees, plants, fruits or vegetables are kept or offered for sale or otherwise, or into any house, storeroom, sales room, depot or any other such place in their jurisdiction, to inspect the same, or any part thereof.

It shall be the duty of said commissioner in each county, whenever he shall deem it necessary, to cause an inspection to be made of any premises, orchards or nurseries, or trees, plants, vegetables, vines or fruits, or any fruit-packing house, storeroom, salesroom, or any other place or article in his jurisdiction, and if found infested or infested with plant diseases, insect or other animal pests injurious to fruits, plants, vegetables, trees, or vines, or if there is found growing thereon noxious weeds, he may in writing notify the record owner or owners, or person or persons in charge or in possession of the said premises, articles or things, that the same are infested or infested with said plant diseases, insect or other animal pests, or any of them, or that noxious weeds are growing thereon, and require such person or persons, to that eradicate or destroy or to control to the satisfaction of the said commissioner the said plant diseases, insect or other animal pests or noxious weeds within a certain time to be therein specified. Said notices may be served upon the person or persons or either of them owning as of record or having charge or having possession of such infested or infested premises, articles or things, or premises where noxious weeds are found, or upon the agents of either, by said commissioner, or by any person deputed by the said commissioner for that purpose in the same manner as a summons in a civil action; provided, however, that if any such infested or infested articles, property or premises as hereinabove specified belong to any person who is not a resident of the county, and there is no person in control or possession thereof; and there is no tenant, bailer, depository or agent of such nonresident person upon whom service can be had, who can after diligent search be found; or if the said owner or owners of any such articles, property or premises can not after due diligence be found, then such notice may be served by posting copies of the same in three conspicuous places upon such property or premises, and by mailing a copy thereof to the said owner thereof at his last known place of residence, if the same is known, or can by the exercise of reasonable diligence be ascertained; or if not known then to the county seat of the county wherein said property is situated.

In the case of nursery stock found to be actually infested with any of the diseases known as crown gall, hairy root, root knot or nematodes, the commissioner may hold such infested nursery stock giving notice in writing to the owner thereof and thereafter it shall be unlawful to move such infested nursery stock, excepting under written permission of said commissioner; provided, that this shall in no wise affect the authority of said commissioner as set forth in Sections 2322*f* and 2322*h* of this Act.

(2) When any such notice of eradication, or of control, or of destruction is served concerning any property, said commissioner may cause a copy thereof to be filed for record in the office of the county recorder of the county within which said property is situated, and may cause a copy thereof to be mailed to the person or persons who appear of record to be the owners of any mortgage, trust deed, lien, contract, option, bond, or other incumbrance on said property, at the last known place of residence of said incumbrancer, and if the place of residence of said incumbrancer be unknown to said commissioner, then said fact shall be stated in said copy so mailed and it shall be addressed to the county seat of the county wherein said property is situated.

(3) In case any such plant diseases, insect, or other animal pests injurious to fruit, plants, vegetables, trees, or vines, are found to exist in public parks or along streets, highways, or other property subject to the control of a city or county government, or if there is found in any public park, street, highway, or on other property subject to the control of a city or county government any noxious weeds, then said notice in writing shall be served on the chairman of the governing body of said city or county, and in case the work of eradication, or of control, or of destruction of the said plant diseases, insect or other animal pests, or noxious weeds in the said public parks, streets, highways, or other public property shall be performed by the said commissioner, then the cost thereof shall become a city or county charge, as the case may be, and shall be paid from the general fund of said city or county.

(4) In case plant diseases, insect or other animal pests injurious to fruit, plants, vegetables, trees or vines, or any noxious weeds are found to exist upon any canal or ditch or levee or other property or premises subject to the control of any irrigation, drainage, flood control, reclamation or levee district, or other political subdivision of the state then said notice in writing shall be served on the chairman of the governing body of said district or political subdivision, or in case said chairman be absent from the county, or for any reason cannot be served, on some other member of said governing body, and in case the work of eradication or control or of destruction of the said plant diseases, insect or other animal pests or noxious weeds upon said canal or ditch or levee or other property or premises shall be performed by the said commissioner, then the cost thereof shall become a legal charge and shall be paid from the general maintenance or operating fund, as the case may be, of said district or political subdivision.

(5) Any and all premises, articles or things mentioned in this act, infested or infested with plant diseases, insect or other animal pests, or premises where noxious weeds are found are hereby expressly declared to be a public nuisance, and shall be prosecuted as such in all actions and proceedings whatever and all remedies which are or may be given by law for the prevention and abatement of nuisance shall apply thereto, and it shall be unlawful to maintain the same. The remedies hereinabove provided shall be in addition to the remedy by way of abatement hereinafter provided.

(6) Whenever any such nuisance shall exist at any place within a county, and the proper notice thereof shall have been served as hereinbefore provided, and such nuisance shall not have been abated within the time specified in such notice, it shall be the duty of the said commissioner to cause said nuisance to be at once abated by eradicating or by controlling, or by destroying said plant diseases, insect or other animal pests, or said noxious weeds.

(7) The expense thereof shall be a county charge, and the board of supervisors shall allow and pay the same out of the general fund of the county; and all sums so paid from the date of payment shall be and become a lien on the property and premises from which said nuisance has been removed or abated in pursuance of this chapter. Notice of such lien shall be filed and recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the said property is situated within thirty days after the right to the said lien has accrued and a copy of said notice of lien shall be mailed to the person or persons who appear of record to be the owners of any mortgage, trust deed, lien, contract, option, bond, or other incumbrance on said property at the last known place of residence of said incumbrancer and if the place of residence of said incumbrancer be unknown to said commissioner, then said fact shall be stated in said copy so mailed and it shall be addressed to the county seat of the county wherein said property is situated. Such lien shall take precedence over and be paramount to all mortgages, trust deeds, liens, contracts, options, bonds, or other incumbrances upon the land excepting only the lien of taxes provided a copy of the notice of eradication, or control or destruction shall have been filed for record and a copy shall have been mailed to the holder of any such incumbrance in the manner hereinbefore in subdivision (2) provided. If said sum secured by such lien be not repaid to said county within eighty days from the filing of said notice of lien, then and there shall be added to the same and secured by such lien a penalty of fifteen per cent of the amount of said lien. An action to foreclose said lien shall be commenced within ninety days after the filing and recording of said notice of lien, which action shall be brought in the proper court by the district attorney of the county in the name and for the benefit of the county making such payment or payments, and when the property is sold, enough of the proceeds shall be paid into the county treasury of such county to satisfy the lien and costs; and the overplus, if any there be, shall be paid to the owner of the property, if he be known, and if not, into the court for his use when ascertained.

(8) The said commissioner shall have power and authority to prescribe and enforce rules for the qualification of any person, persons, firm or corporation, who desires to engage for hire in the business of eradicating or controlling plant diseases, insect or other animal pests or noxious weeds injurious to the plant industry of the state, and to issue certificates to all persons whom he shall find by examination or otherwise to be duly qualified for engaging in such work. Such certificate shall be revocable whenever the said commissioner shall deem such revocation necessary. No person, persons, firm or corporation shall be permitted to engage for hire in the business of eradicating or controlling plant diseases, insect or other animal pests or noxious weeds injurious to the plant industry of the state, who has not first secured a certificate in the manner herein provided.

SEC. 3. Section two thousand three hundred twenty-two b of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

2322*b*. This act shall in no wise affect any other act or acts providing for the destruction of ground squirrels or other animal pests, or applying to the proceedings thereunder, but it is intended to and does provide the alternative system of proceedings for the extermination or control of ground squirrels or other animal pests referred to in this act; and it shall be within the discretion of the governing body of each county, city and county, city or town, to provide for the extermination or control of ground squirrels or other animal pests, whether under the provisions of this act or under the provisions of such other act or acts; but when any proceedings are commenced under this act, the provisions of this act and of such amendments as colus arvensis), star thistle (Centaurea species), Russian knapweed (Centaurea repens), Canada thistle (Cirsium arvense), bull thistle (Cirsium lanceolatum), milk thistle (Silbum marianum), creeping sow thistle (Sonchus oleraceus), hardhack (Verum species), cocklebur (Xanthum species), white horse nettle (Sabium cheirifolium), also, any other species of plant which, after practical survey and investigation, are found by the director of agriculture to be noxious and a menace to agriculture, shall by said director, through proclamation, be declared a noxious weed. Such proclamation shall be made under the seal of the department of agriculture and shall be published once a week for two successive weeks in a newspaper or farm journal of general circulation published and circulated in the county or counties where the said plant is known to exist. A copy of such proclamation shall also be posted in a public place in or near the area to be affected thereby.

(d) The term "insect or other animal pests" shall mean any form of animal life which is or may be detrimental to agriculture in any of its phases, and shall include the eggs, larvae, pupae, or other immature stages thereof.

(e) The term "plant diseases" shall mean any unhealthy condition of plants or parts thereof caused by the parasite organisms known as fungi, bacteria and slime molds.

(f) The term "seeds" shall be construed to include any reproductive or propagative part of a plant.

(g) The term "nursery stock" shall mean any trees, shrubs, plants, vines, bulbs, cuttings, grafts, scions or buds.

SEC. 7. Section two thousand three hundred twenty-two of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

2322f. Any person, persons, firm or corporation receiving, bringing or causing to be brought into any county or locality of the State of California from another county or locality within said state any nursery stock, fruit pits, fruit, vegetables or seed, for the purpose of planting or propagating the same or any or all shipments of nursery stock, fruit pits, fruit, vegetables or seed or containers thereof, or other orchard appliances which the county horticultural commissioner or the state director of agriculture may consider liable to be infected or infested with plant diseases, insect or other animal pests or noxious weed seeds and which if so infected or infested would constitute a dangerous menace to the orchards, farms and gardens of the county, locality, or state, shall immediately after the arrival thereof notify the said commissioner, his deputy, or nearest inspector of the county in which such nursery stock, or fruit or vegetables, or seeds are received, of their arrival, and hold the same without unnecessarily moving or placing such articles where they may be harmful, for immediate inspection by such county horticultural commissioner, his deputy, inspector or deputy quarantine officer or guardian.

SEC. 8. Section two thousand three hundred twenty-two of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

2322g. Each shipment of nursery stock, fruit pits, fruit, vegetables, or seed imported or brought into any county of the State of California from another county within said state for planting or propagating purposes, shall have plainly and legibly marked thereon in a conspicuous manner and place, the name and address of the shipper, owner or owners, or person forwarding or shipping same, and also the name of the person, firm or corporation to whom the same is forwarded or shipped, or his or its responsible agents.

Each shipment of nursery stock sold, delivered or transported, within the State of California, shall have affixed thereto in a conspicuous place by the person or persons, firm or corporation making such sale or delivery or transportation, a tag or shipping permit issued by the commissioner having jurisdiction at the point from which such sale, delivery or transportation is made.

A manifest showing the contents of each shipment, also the name of the locality where the contents were grown and a statement of the contents therein shall be made to the commissioner having jurisdiction at the point of destination when shipment is made.

SEC. 9. Section two thousand three hundred twenty-two of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

2322h. When any shipment of nursery stock, fruit pits, fruit, vegetables or seed or their containers or orchard appliances or farm implements imported or brought into any county or locality of the State of California from another county or locality of the State of California from another county or locality within said state or brought into any locality of any county from another locality within said county is found to be infected or infested with plant diseases, insect or other animal pests or noxious weed seeds, not known to exist in the county or locality into which such shipment is brought and which pests, diseases or noxious weed seeds are determined by said commissioner to be of such a nature that said shipment constitutes a menace to the orchards, vineyards, gardens or farms of California through imminent danger of the escape of said pests, or noxious weed seeds or infection by said diseases, the entire shipment shall be refused delivery and shall be immediately destroyed by said commissioner or under his direction by his deputy or inspector; provided however, that if said shipment is found to be infected or infested with plant diseases, insect or other animal pests, or noxious weed seed not known to exist in the county or locality into which said shipment is brought, and if it shall be determined by said commissioner that the nature of the plant disease, insect or other animal pests, or noxious weed seeds, be such that there is no imminent danger of escape of said pests, or noxious weed seeds, or infection by such plant diseases, or if there is reasonable cause to presume that said shipment may be so infected or infested, said commissioner, or deputy or inspector, who shall make the inspection, shall notify the owner, or person, firm or corporation, having possession or control of said articles, to return the same to point of shipment within forty-eight hours after such notification, and it shall be the duty of such owner, person, firm or corporation to so ship said articles. Such shipment shall be under the direction and control of said commissioner and the expense thereof, including packing, shall be paid by the owner or owners of said shipment. It is further provided, however, that if any shipment is found to be infected or infested with plant diseases, insect or other animal pests or noxious weed seeds, which are of common occurrence in the county or locality into which said shipment is brought and said pests, or diseases, or noxious weed seeds, may be exterminated or controlled by such treatment as may be prescribed by, or under authority of, the commissioner of the county into which it is brought, said shipment may be disinfected or cleaned at the expense of the owner or owners, his or their responsible agents, in a manner and within a time satisfactory to the commissioner, deputy or inspector, and after such treatment the shipment may be delivered to the consignee.

Sec. 10. Section two thousand three hundred twenty-two i of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

2322i. Any person, persons, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this act or refusing or neglecting to comply with the requirements of any legal notices issued under the authority and provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding six months or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 11. Section two thousand three hundred twenty-two j of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

2322j. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act. The legislature hereby declares that it would have passed this act, and each section, subsection, sentence, clause, or phrase thereof irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared unconstitutional."

11. Superintendent of schools. The superintendent of schools, two thousand one hundred eighty dollars per annum, and his actual traveling expenses necessarily incurred in the performance of his duties. The compensation herein provided shall be in full for all services including attendance on the county board of education.

12. Surveyor. The surveyor, three thousand dollars per annum, and actual, reasonable and necessary expenses when engaged in the field or in the office in the discharge of his official duties.

13. Supervisors. The chairman of the board of supervisors shall receive three thousand dollars per annum, and the other members of the board of supervisors shall each receive the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum, and in addition thereto each supervisor shall receive his actual traveling expenses not to exceed five hundred dollars for each, in any one year; provided, that the board of supervisors may authorize any one or more of its members to attend the annual State convention or conventions of county boards of supervisors, and may allow to such members of its board so authorized and attending such convention or conventions the actual expenses incurred in so doing.

14. Justices of the peace. Justices of the peace shall receive the following salaries for all services rendered by them, payable in the same manner as county officers are paid, viz: In townships having a population of twenty thousand or more, two thousand one hundred dollars per annum; in townships having a population of not less than five thousand nor more than twenty thousand, one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; in townships having a population of not less than three thousand nor more than five thousand, one thousand five hundred dollars per annum; in townships having a population of not less than two thousand nor more than three thousand, one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; in townships having a population of not less than one thousand four hundred nor more than two thousand six hundred dollars per annum; in all townships having a population of less than one thousand four hundred, three hundred dollars per annum; provided, that for the purposes of this section the population of the several townships shall be ascertained by multiplying the number of registered voters at the last general election by three. The compensation herein fixed for justices of the peace shall be in full for all services rendered, and all fees collected by them shall be paid into the county treasury to the credit of the general fund.

15. Constables. Constables shall receive the following salaries for all services rendered by them in criminal cases, payable monthly in the same manner as county officers are paid, viz.: In townships having a population of fourteen thousand or more, one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; in townships having a population of not less than five thousand and not more than fourteen thousand, one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; in townships having a population of not less than three thousand nor more than five thousand, nine hundred dollars per annum; in townships having a population of not less than two thousand nor more than three thousand, six hundred dollars per annum; in townships having a population of not less than one thousand four hundred nor more than two thousand, four hundred twenty dollars per annum; in townships having a population of less than one thousand four hundred, two hundred forty dollars per annum; they shall also receive and retain all fees permitted by law for serving of civil processes.

16. Bonds. The board of supervisors shall from time to time fix the amount of bonds to be executed by each of the officers aforesaid, and such bonds shall be furnished by the officers in the amount fixed by said board; all bonds of county officers shall be executed by reliable surety companies to be approved by the board of supervisors and the cost of bonds of county officers and members of the board of supervisors, when such bonds shall have been approved, shall be a charge against the county and paid out of the general fund.

17. Deputies. (a) The county clerk shall have one chief deputy at a salary of one thousand nine hundred twenty dollars per annum; two court room deputies at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum each; one deputy who shall act as the clerk of the board of supervisors at a salary of one thousand nine hundred twenty dollars per annum; one deputy who shall act as assistant to the clerk of the board of supervisors at a salary of one thousand six hundred eighty dollars per annum; three office deputies at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum each; and in the event the departments of the Superior Court are increased, then the county clerk shall have an additional deputy for each of such additional departments of said court, at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum each; the county clerk shall have a deputy or deputies not to exceed twenty in number for the purpose of registering electors, who shall be paid not to exceed eight cents for each elector registered, which compensation shall be in full for all services rendered by such deputy or deputies in registering such electors; in addition to the other deputies herein provided for; the county clerk shall have one emergency deputy, who shall receive one hundred dollars per month; the emergency deputy, however, shall not be employed except and only when the board of supervisors shall determine that the business of the clerk's office requires the assistance of such emergency deputy.

(b) The county recorder shall have one chief deputy at a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum, and two deputies at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum each, and in addition thereto is authorized to employ such number of copyists and assistants as may from time to time be necessary to properly perform the duties of such office, which copyists and assistants shall receive five cent per folio for copying documents required by law to be recorded, to be paid out of the salary fund; all fees paid to or collected by or coming into the hands of the county recorder shall be paid by said county recorder to the treasurer of said county and by said treasurer deposited into the salary fund.

(c) The county auditor shall have one chief deputy at a salary of two thousand four hundred dollars per annum; two deputies at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum each; one general bookkeeper at a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; one assistant bookkeeper at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; one voucher clerk at a salary of one thousand six hundred eighty dollars per annum; provided, however, that the board of supervisors may authorize the employment of emergency assistants for the purpose of extending taxes or in the event of other emergencies; the compensation of such assistants shall be four dollars per day and the total amount expended for such assistants during any one year shall not exceed one thousand dollars.

(d) The district attorney shall have one deputy at a salary of two thousand four hundred dollars per annum; one deputy at a salary of two thousand one hundred dollars per annum; one deputy at a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; one reporter at a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; one stenographer at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum; provided, however, that the board of supervisors may, when the affairs of such county require it, employ additional legal help, either in civil or criminal cases, and shall fix the compensation to be paid for such help.

(c) The superintendent of schools shall have one chief deputy at a salary of two thousand one hundred dollars per annum and one deputy at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

(f) The sheriff shall have the following deputies: an under sheriff at a salary of two thousand four hundred dollars per annum; two deputies at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum each; two deputies at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum each; two jailors at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum each; one clerk at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum; one finger print expert at a salary of one thousand nine hundred two dollars per annum; one stenographer at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; two court room bailiffs at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum each; provided, that if the number of departments of the superior court shall be increased then the sheriff shall have an additional court room bailiff for each additional department of the said court at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; provided further, that the board of supervisors may in cases of emergency authorize the sheriff to employ and appoint additional deputies at a compensation of not to exceed five dollars per day, such additional deputies however, shall not be employed except and only when and during such time as the board of supervisors shall from time to time determine, the total amount to be expended for such emergency deputies, during any one year shall not exceed the sum of two thousand dollars.

(g) The county surveyor shall have one chief deputy at a salary of two thousand one hundred dollars per annum; one stenographer at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; one draftsman at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum; one assistant surveyor at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; the board of supervisors may authorize the employment of chain men, rod men and other assistants for the county engineer, when in the opinion of said board such assistants are necessary, and said board shall fix the compensation to be paid for such assistants.

(h) The coroner shall have authority to appoint one deputy who shall be paid by the coroner out of his fees.

(i) The assessor shall have one chief deputy at a salary of two thousand nine hundred dollars per annum; one draftsman at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum; one stenographer and copyist at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; one office deputy at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum; one office deputy at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; two emergency deputies, neither of which to be employed to exceed one hundred twenty days during each year, who shall receive four dollars per day while employed; fifteen field deputies none of whom shall serve to exceed eighty days in any one year, each of such field deputies shall receive five dollars per day while employed; in case of emergency the board of supervisors may authorize the county assessor to employ additional emergency deputies at a compensation not to exceed five dollars per day while employed, the total to be expended for such emergency deputies shall not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars during any one year.

(j) The treasurer shall have one chief deputy at a salary of two thousand one hundred dollars per annum; one clerk and stenographer at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; in addition to the other deputies herein provided for, the treasurer shall have one emergency deputy who shall receive one hundred dollars per month and only when the board of supervisors shall determine that the business of the treasurer's office requires the assistance of such emergency deputy.

(k) The tax collector shall have one chief deputy at a salary of two thousand one hundred dollars per annum; one clerk and stenographer at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum; in addition to the other deputies herein provided for, the tax collector shall have one emergency deputy who shall receive one hundred dollars per month; the emergency deputy however shall not be employed except and only when the board of supervisors shall determine that the business of the tax collector's office requires the assistance of such emergency deputy.

18. Fees, mileage, etc. Each of the officers hereinbefore mentioned and their deputies, except as herein otherwise provided, shall in addition to their compensations herein fixed be allowed the actual traveling expenses when traveling is necessary in the performance of their respective duties; the salary, fees, mileage and compensation herein fixed and provided shall be in full for all official services rendered or performed and no county, district or township official shall receive from the county any salary, compensation, fees, commission or mileage except as herein provided; all fees and money, including mileage, paid to or collected by any of the officers or deputies or assistants for any services required of them, except that collected or received by the coroner and public administrator or by constables as herein provided, shall be paid into the county treasury to the credit of the general fund, except as herein otherwise provided, and it shall be the duty of each officer herein mentioned to collect all fees provided by law to be collected by him or in his office, and each officer shall be responsible to the county for the collection of the fees which he is now or may hereafter be authorized by law to collect and no salary shall be paid any county, district or township officer until he shall have collected and paid into the county treasury the fees, moneys and mileage required of him to be collected and paid into such treasury, as herein provided.

19. Salaries. All salaries shall be paid monthly in equal payments."

Amendment adopted.

Bill read second time, and ordered to print, engrossment, and on file for third reading.

Senate Bill No. 274—An act to amend section 4264 of the Political Code, relating to the compensation of officers of counties of the thirty-fifth class.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENTS.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendments were offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

On page 6, line 38, of the printed bill, strike out the word "four" and in lieu thereof insert the word "three".

Amendment adopted.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

On page 6 of the printed bill, strike out all of lines 46 to 52, both inclusive, and on page 7 of the printed bill strike out all of lines 1 to 19, both inclusive, and in lieu thereof insert the following:

"19. In counties of this class the official phonographic reporter of the superior court shall receive the sum of two thousand four hundred dollars per annum as compensation for the reporting of both civil and criminal cases in the superior court, for preliminary examinations in the justice court, for proceedings on coroner's inquests and for all other county work; in addition thereto for transcribing his notes when ordered or required by law he shall receive such fees as are now or may hereafter be provided by law. The reporter's compensation for transcribing notes in criminal cases shall be paid by the county, and in civil cases by the parties to the action. In civil cases the parties to the action shall pay a fee of ten dollars per day for the services of the reporter, which money shall be paid into the salary fund of the county treasury. The salary of the reporter shall be paid out of the county treasury in the same manner as other county officers are paid.

20. The provisions of subdivisions 12, 18 and 19 of this section shall become operative ninety days after the final adjournment of the present session of this legislature. It is hereby found as a fact that the changes provided for in subdivisions 19 and 20 of this section do not work an increase in compensation and it is intended that the same shall apply immediately to the present incumbents."

Amendment adopted.

Bill read second time, and ordered to print, engrossment, and on file for third reading.

PRESENTATION OF MEMORIAL.

The following Memorial was offered by Senators McDonald and Murphy, read by the Secretary of the Senate and, on request of Senator McDonald, ordered printed in the Journal:

ST. PATRICK'S DAY MEMORIAL.

The birthday of St. Patrick, patron saint of Ireland, has just passed, and in passing we may note that in company with us throughout the civilized world, wherever the sons of the Gael may wander, the praises of St. Patrick are sung and the story of his life and teachings are told.

The 17th day of March is a day that will ever be celebrated by the sons of Erin whether under the open dome of Ireland's sky, in the dark recesses of her glens and caves, or in the temples and halls of fame of foreign lands. The 17th day of March is Ireland's great national holiday. It is a day that has a tender significance to every Irish heart. It is a day that has come to indicate and suggest to the Irish mind the time when Ireland and her people were freed from the bonds of paganism and superstition; the time when Ireland was one of the great centers of intellectual activity in Europe; the time when Ireland was called the "land of saints and scholars"; the time when the sons of Erin were happy, contented and free. It is a day that suggests and recalls to the Irish mind the time when Ireland was the "Niobe of nations." It suggests the tear-stained, blood-stained tragedy of the Irish race—the long, sad struggle of a people for liberty and independence; the long, sad struggle of a people to maintain the faith that St. Patrick implanted within their breasts. Yes, it is a day that has come to serve as an inspiration for the future and it gives rise to the fond hope in the breast of every Irish heart that Ireland may soon again become a free and independent nation.

We celebrate St. Patrick's Day above all other days because St. Patrick reared the cross of God on Erin's soil; because he lit the fire of the Christian faith in the Irish breast never to flicker or die out; because St. Patrick symbolizes the Irish ideal of true manhood; his lowly birth and beginning, his life, his humility, his works and his teachings have served and will ever serve as an inspiration for devotion, fidelity, courage and true Christian charity to the Irish race.

There is also another reason why we celebrate St. Patrick's Day, and why we recall the part that Ireland and her sons have played in the world's history; to tell the story of Ireland to the people of the civilized world in order that they may appreciate and have before them the injustice Ireland has suffered in order that Banquo's ghost may not down and in order that England in this enlightened age, bowed in sorrow and shame, may at last repent and endeavor to make at least a partial reparation for her sins against the Irish people.

History tells us that St. Patrick in about the year 400 A.D. came to Ireland as a slave; that he was employed as a shepherd herding sheep on her mountain sides; that he learned to love her cheerful, true and simple people; that he escaped to the continent where he prepared himself and returned to Erin as an apostle of Christ to convert the people, whom he had learned to love, to Christianity without shedding a drop of blood.

At the time St. Patrick came to Ireland, she was a pagan nation, though her people were possessed of a certain loftiness of mind and worship, and had reached a high state of culture and civilization. St. Patrick indeed found a fertile soil in the keen, sharp and receptive mind of the Celt in which to sow the seeds of the true Christian faith. The result of St. Patrick's fruitful mission to Ireland is too familiar to you to warrant repetition. You remember how he Christianized her people, how he met the Druids, the learned priests of Paganism, and the King of Ireland on Tara's Hill and here explained to them the true Christian faith, and expounded to them the doctrine of the Trinity, using as an illustration the three-leaf Shamrock, which was ever afterward to be a sacred emblem of the Irish people; how he then lit the flame of Christianity upon the altar of God which has remained burning steadily throughout the centuries, dispelling the surrounding darkness and sending its civilizing beams to the uttermost parts of the earth.

The centuries immediately following the advent of St. Patrick to Erin were prosperous ones for her people. She was known as the land of saints and scholars. Her schools and colleges were famed the world over. She was in fact one of the great centers of intellectual activity. Her learned monks carried the celestial banner of Christianity to the continent and to her sister island, England. Her teachers were sought in the leading institutions of learning of the time. Charlemagne, who had reared his great empire on the ruins of mighty Rome, sought out the Irish scholars and teachers and appointed them to positions of honor and responsibility in his court.

While her people were quietly engaged in peaceful educational pursuits and in furtherance of the arts and sciences, when the pen had supplanted the sword, the Danes, a band of marauders and barbarians of the north, like the Huns of old, crushed down upon her like a mighty avenging fury; destroyed, sacked and pillaged her churches and her temples, laid waste her fields and impaired her industries. But her people were undaunted, and with the faith of St. Patrick in their heart and the determination to be free, a united Irish people rose up in their might and drove the enemy from their borders in the year 1014 on the field of Clontarf, under the leadership of the mighty Brian Boru. But the influence of the Danes left its traces on Irish civilization, and in her weakened condition Ireland, with her life blood sapped, her institutions of learning in ruins, her fields laid bare, began slowly to recoup her lost fortunes. Her people, somewhat disunited but filled with sincerity, simplicity and truth, unaccustomed to the treachery, deceit, intrigue and bad faith of her Briton brethren, fell a prey to the siren guile and serpent guile of Henry II, their pretended friend, in the year 1171. Then followed the tear-stained, blood-stained tragedy of Erin's sons—the terrible slaughter by Cromwell at Drogheda. Her very hills and valleys echoed with the wails and moans of a starved, dying and depressed people. Her very soil reeked with the innocent blood of her sons.

During these dark days in Erin there appeared on the scene of action heroes, priests, patriots, statesmen and martyrs whose loyalty, bravery and courage astounded the world: her Hugh O'Neils, her Patrick Sarsfields, her Father Murphys, her Wolf Tones, her Lord Fitzgeralds, her Edmund Burkes, her Robert Emmets, her Daniel O'Connells, her William Smith O'Briens, her Thomas Francis Meaghers, her Michael Davitts and her Charles Stuart Parnells.

The history of the dark days of Erin are doubtless familiar to you all. Her penal laws; how her representatives of God were hunted like wolves; her lands taken from her sons; oppression unbearable, tyranny unspeakable. Ireland oppressed by her brethren of Briton without right or reason; robbed of her lands and possessions; robbed of her homes and her firesides. Ireland, who had a glorious history "ere England had emerged from the British barbarism." Her sons forbidden by law to wear the green shamrock, their sacred emblem; with unselfish devotion to a principle and to the faith of their fathers, and with that courage, sacrifice and fidelity symbolized to the Irish mind by St. Patrick, began their march westward.

In the words of the poet:

"But if at last our color should be torn from Ireland's heart,
Her sons with shame and sorrow from the dear old Isle will part:
I've heard a whisper of a country that lies beyond the sea,
Where rich and poor stand equal in the light of equality."

COMMITTEE AMENDMENT.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendment was offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

On page 1, line 6, of the printed bill, after the period, insert the following: "Said board of directors shall tentatively fix the route of the proposed district highway, determine the approximate total cost thereof, and the portion thereof that should be borne by each county respectively. The board shall make and file a copy of said report with the board of supervisors of each of the counties affected. Within ninety days of the receipt of such report, each board of supervisors shall adopt or reject the proposal for formation of the joint highway district. Failure of a board of supervisors to act within said time shall be deemed a rejection. A certified copy of each such ordinance shall be forthwith transmitted to the board which initiated the proceedings, whereupon the latter board shall make a finding as to the final approval or disapproval of the formation of the district, and notify the clerks of the several counties as to the result. In case the several boards vote in favor of formation of the district, a certified copy of such notice of finding shall be filed with the Secretary of State, whereupon the said joint highway district shall be deemed created and organized, and shall exercise all the powers granted by this act, and shall be a public corporation under the designation of "Joint highway district No. of the State of California." Districts shall be numbered in the order of their creation."

Amendment adopted.

CONSIDERATION OF DAILY FILE—SECOND READING OF SENATE BILLS.

Senate Bill No. 272—An act providing for the organization, operation, maintenance, and government of water conservation districts, and for the acquisition, appropriation, diversion, storage, conservation, and distribution of water for irrigation of lands in such districts, for drainage and reclamation connected therewith; and for the generation, disposition, and sale of hydro-electric energy developed incidental to such storage and distribution; and for the acquisition of lands or rights therein and the acquisition, construction, operation, and maintenance of works to carry into effect the provisions of this act; and creating a State board to be known as the "State Irrigation Board," and defining its powers and duties, and the methods and procedure of exercising such powers and duties.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENT.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendment was offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

On page 2, line 4, of the printed bill, strike out all of said line, and all of the rest of said bill, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"One of said executive directors shall have at least five years practical experience in irrigation, and the other of whom shall have at least five years experience in administration and both of whom shall be residents of this state and continue to be such residents during the term of their office.

The office of the state irrigation board herein created shall be at the city of Sacramento, in the State of California.

Each executive director shall receive as compensation the sum of twenty (20) dollars per day for each day actually employed in the performance of duties under this act and shall receive actual traveling expenses when engaged in the performance of such duties, which shall be charged as a part of the cost of the project of the proposed water conservation district for which such duties are performed.

SEC. 2. The state engineer shall be the chairman of the state irrigation board herein created and said board shall employ a secretary and such attorneys, engineers and other employees and assistants as it may require and shall fix the term of their employment and compensation.

SEC. 3. The state irrigation board shall have the power to unite into single districts in the manner and for the purposes provided in this act, irrigation districts, water storage districts, reclamation districts, drainage districts and other political subdivisions of the state, organized to promote irrigation, reclamation or drainage, which united districts shall be known and are herein referred to, as water conservation districts; and the purposes of the formation of such districts being primarily to provide for the storage of waters and the development of hydro-electric energy in conjunction therewith and incidental thereto, to promote the irrigation of the lands therein, and in connection therewith and incidental thereto the reclamation and drainage and flood control of such lands. The legislature hereby declares that every such water conservation district, formed as herein provided, is and shall be an irrigation district within the meaning of section thirteen of article eleven of the constitution of the State of California, and within the meaning of every other provision of said constitution relating to irrigation districts. Such water conservation districts shall be composed of three or more units, all or any of which units shall be irrigation districts, water storage districts, reclamation districts, drainage districts, or other political subdivisions of the state organized to promote irrigation, reclamation or drainage or flood control.

SEC. 4. Whenever three or more of such units, all or any of which units shall be irrigation districts, reclamation districts, drainage districts, water storage districts or other political subdivisions of the state organized to promote irrigation, reclamation or drainage or flood control now or hereafter to be formed, can use a common system of works and all the land situated therein be benefited by such works, the governing boards of any three or more of said units may present a petition to the state irrigation board herein created for the purpose and object of creating a water conservation district. Said petition shall designate by name or otherwise the units joined in such petition and the water to be stored, used or acquired and shall outline generally the character and location of the proposed works and pray that said units be united in pursuance of the provisions of this act so as to create a water conservation district.

Said petition shall be signed by the presiding officers and the secretary or clerk of the governing board of each of said units under seal of said units so petitioning said state irrigation board to form a water conservation district as herein provided.

Said petition may be contained in separate instruments presented by each unit or may be contained in one or more instruments presented by any or all of said units. Such petition must be accompanied by a certified copy of a resolution of the governing boards of each petitioning unit, authorizing the presiding officer and the secretary or clerk to execute the same.

Said petition must be accompanied with a good and sufficient undertaking or agreement to be approved by the state irrigation board herein created, conditioned that the sureties or signers shall pay all of the costs and expenses in connection with the investigation herein provided for in case said organization shall not be finally effected, and said state irrigation board herein created shall have power to require the furnishing of any additional undertaking, or undertakings, or payments of money in case they should deem the same necessary; provided, however, that the cost thereof shall not in the aggregate exceed in amount in dollars one-fourth the number of acres in such proposed water conservation district and shall be deemed a part of the expense of said project, and said state irrigation board herein created may require the same to be paid by the proponents of said district, and the sum so collected and expended by said state irrigation board shall be considered and treated as a proper and legal charge against the water conservation district and which shall be payable out of the funds of said water conservation district when the organization thereof has been completed.

If said district for any reason be not organized as hereinafter provided for, any money remaining in the hands of said state irrigation board shall be returned to petitioners.

Upon presentation to it of a petition or petitions, as aforesaid praying for the formation of a conservation district, the state irrigation board herein created shall fix a time and place, which place shall be within the county in which the lands of said proposed water conservation district are situated and if the lands of such water conservation district are situated in more than one county, then in any one of said counties, at which it shall hear said petition, which time shall be not less than twenty-five (25) days, nor more than thirty (30) days, after the first publication of the notice hereinafter provided for in section five (5) of this act.

SEC. 5. Said petition together with a notice stating the time and place of the hearing so fixed by said state irrigation board shall be published in each county in which any of the lands of said proposed district are situated in a newspaper of general circulation, published in such county, at least once a week for three successive weeks before the date of said hearing: said notice shall be issued by the said state irrigation board herein created, shall refer to said petition and shall be directed to the petitioners therein, and to each of the units petitioning to form said water conservation district, and to all persons holding title or evidences of title to any lands included within the water conservation district proposed in said petition, and to all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in and to the waters proposed to be stored, acquired or used, as set out in said petition, and to all other persons who may be interested in or affected by the project contemplated in said petition, and to all or any persons in any way interested in or affected by said petition or the formation of said water conservation district, and shall be substantially in the following form:

To the petitioners in the foregoing petition and to each of the units petitioning to form said water conservation district, and to all persons holding title or evidence of title to any lands included within the water conservation district proposed in said petition, and to all persons having or claiming any rights, title or interest in and to the waters proposed to be stored, acquired or used as set out in said petition, and to all other persons who may be interested in or affected by the project contemplated in said petition, and to all or any persons in any way interested in or affected by said petition or the formation of said water conservation district:

You and each of you are hereby notified that the foregoing petition was filed with the state irrigation board on the _____ day of _____ 19____, and will be heard by said state irrigation board at _____ on the _____ day of _____ 19____, at the hour of _____ o'clock _____ m. of said day, at which time and place said state irrigation board will hear and receive evidence in support of said petition and any objections which may be presented thereto.

This notice is given pursuant to the provisions of an act approved _____ and known as California water conservation district act, to which said act particular reference is hereby made.

STATE IRRIGATION BOARD,

By _____ Chairman

By _____ Secretary

Dated _____

When contained in more than one instrument only one copy of said petition need be published but the name attached to all of said instruments must appear in such publication.

Sec. 6. At the time and place fixed in said notice the state irrigation board shall proceed to hear said petition and to determine whether or not the same complies with the requirements hereinbefore set forth and whether or not the notice filed herein has been published as required and must hear all competent and relevant testimony offered in support of or in opposition thereto.

Said hearing or any adjournment thereof may be conducted and heard by any one or more of the members of said state irrigation board. Said hearing may be adjourned from time to time as the state irrigation board or any member or members thereof conducting the same may determine.

For the purpose of performing any duty under this act the chairman of the state irrigation board may appoint one or more of its members to conduct any hearing or investigation. Such member or members shall make a written report to the state irrigation board of the proceedings taken at such hearing and shall state the evidence introduced at such hearing and his or their conclusions thereon.

Upon such report or upon such further hearing as the state irrigation board shall deem proper, the state irrigation board may pass upon and decide any question under consideration at said hearing. The decision of the state irrigation board shall be final except as to questions, the determination of which are vested in the courts by this act or by the constitution of this state or by the constitution of the United States.

No defect in the contents of the petition or in the title to or form of the notice or signatures to said notice or petition shall vitiate any proceedings thereon.

If there shall be presented at such hearing or at any time before the final order herein provided for of the state irrigation board, a written objection or objections signed by the owners of more than one-half of the lands in any such units or constituent districts, or a majority in numbers of the holders of title or evidence of title, according to the equalized county assessment roll or rolls for the year last preceding, the signing of such petition by the officers of such constituent district or unit shall be deemed to be nullified, and the state irrigation board shall have no power to include such unit or district within the proposed water conservation district.

Sec. 7. The state irrigation board shall before making a final order creating a water conservation district as in this act provided, proceed to make or cause to be made all such examinations, surveys, estimates of costs for the acquisition, appropriation, diversion, storage, conservation and distribution of water, any drainage or reclamation or flood control works in connection therewith and works for the generation of hydro-electric power incident thereto and the sale and distribution thereof, as may be necessary or requisite to enable said state irrigation board to ascertain and estimate the requirements and works necessary for the purpose of said water conservation district as prayed for in said petition and the cost and expense thereof, and to make a report thereon as herein provided.

In such connection said state irrigation board may use and adopt all previous estimates, surveys, reports and other data it may have acquired or which are available to it, adapted to that purpose and may employ all necessary engineers, attorneys and other assistants for the accomplishment of said purposes, and the cost thereof shall be deemed a part of the expense of the investigation and organization of such water conservation district as provided in section four hereof, and shall be a charge against said water conservation district if created.

Upon the completion of said examination and study of the proposed project by said state irrigation board, said board shall prepare a report thereof, in which report shall be set forth the character and nature of the proposed works, a description of the rights to water, to lands, and other property necessary to be acquired to carry said project to completion, accompanied by an estimate of the cost of said project. A copy of such report and estimate shall be kept on file in the office of the state irrigation board and be open to inspection during business hours by all interested persons or parties.

SEC. 8. The state irrigation board shall before making the final order creating a water conservation district, by order duly entered in its minutes, apportion to each constituent district or unit of said water conservation district, the portion to which it is entitled of all the water storage capacity in the proposed reservoir, the waters stored or to be stored or diverted or to be diverted by such project for the irrigation of the lands of the water conservation district, and all power developed or to be developed incidental thereto or in connection therewith, and in making such apportionment it must take into consideration the present water rights and the additional water necessary to perfect the irrigation of the lands of each unit, and the apportionment of power to each unit shall be in the same proportion to the whole as its apportionment of capacity in the reservoir, which proportion of such water and power shall be forever applied to the purpose and for the benefit of such constituent district or unit.

Said board shall likewise in such order determine, define and apportion to each of such constituent districts or units the proportion of all costs and expense of the project to be paid by it, including the costs and expenses of said irrigation board in connection therewith, same to be based upon and in proportion to the allotment of water storage capacity, water and power apportioned to each unit plus the benefit of reclamation or drainage or flood control to such unit. A copy of such order duly certified, shall be served on each of the constituent districts or units by delivering the same to some officer thereof, and provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to confer on said state irrigation board or upon any water conservation district formed under the provisions of this act the right to impair or deprive any person, corporation or district of any vested right in or to any water without due process of law.

SEC. 9. When any of the proposed works of a water conservation district will serve the purpose of drainage, flood control or reclamation within a constituent district or unit of a water conservation district, the state irrigation board may estimate the proportion of the cost of said construction which may be properly charged to the constituent district or unit benefited by such drainage, flood control or reclamation and carry such amount into the total sum to be paid by such constituent district or unit.

SEC. 10. After making the order of apportionment provided for in section 8 hereof, the state irrigation board shall make an order directing the governing board of each unit or constituent district to call an election to be held on the one hundred and twentieth day after the making of said order by said irrigation board apportioning the benefits and costs and expenses as herein provided.

Said order of the state irrigation board last above provided for shall contain the name of the proposed water conservation district and shall describe the territory embraced within such proposed water conservation district by naming the constituent units or districts proposed to be joined therein as set forth in the petition to said state irrigation board.

Upon receiving and filing a copy of said order of said state irrigation board duly certified by the secretary of said board, it shall be the duty of the governing board of each of said constituent districts or units to call said election to be held as herein provided for.

In addition to the matters and things required by the laws, rules, and regulations of the unit or district calling such election, the notice of such election shall contain the name of the proposed water conservation district and the description of the territory embraced within such proposed water conservation district by naming the constituent districts or units proposed to be joined therein as set forth in the petition to said state irrigation board.

At such election there shall be submitted to the electors or voters in each of such units or districts the question as to whether or not a water conservation district shall be organized under the provisions of this act. At such election there shall also be submitted to the electors or voters in each of such units or districts the question whether or not bonds shall be issued and sold in an amount sufficient to pay its proportion of the costs and expenses allotted and apportioned to such unit by the state irrigation board in said order, plus fifteen per cent in addition thereto for contingencies. The ballots to be cast at said election shall contain the words, "Water Conservation District—Yes" or "Water Conservation District—No" or words equivalent thereto, and said ballots shall also contain the word "Bonds—Yes" or the words "Bonds—No", or words equivalent thereto.

SEC. 11. Within then (10) days after such election has been held and the result thereof determined and declared, it shall be the duty of the governing board of each petitioning constituent district or unit, to have the secretary of said governing board certify to the said state irrigation board, the result of such election and whether or not, said bonds have been voted, and whether or not the constituent district or unit represented by said governing board, has voted in favor of, or against the organization of said conservation district. Within ten (10) days after the state irrigation board receives the said certificates from all of the petitioning units or districts, said board shall enter an order that a conservation district is established in accordance with the prayer of the petition; provided, all of the petitioning districts or units, have voted in favor of the organization of said conservation district and have voted the bonds at the election held for that purpose; provided, however, that in the event, that any one or more of the said constituent districts or units should fail to vote such bonds, or to vote in favor of the organization of said water conservation district, the governing boards of three or more of the constituent districts or units, that have voted such bonds and voted in favor of the organization of said water conservation district, may petition said state irrigation board, at any time, within six (6) months, after the result of said election has been certified to said state irrigation board, to form and unite said constituent districts or units that shall have voted such bonds and voted in favor of the organization of a water conservation district, into a water conservation district which said petition shall be accompanied by resolutions of the governing boards of the respective units or districts joining in said petition, duly certified by the presiding officer and secretary or clerk thereof, and if, upon receiving such petition, the state irrigation board shall find said project both feasible and practicable, it shall thereupon, make and enter an order, in its minutes, that a water conservation district is created, consisting of such petitioning constituent districts or units, that have voted such bonds and voted in favor of the organization of said water conservation district and to the same effect, in all respects, as if the constituent districts or units that failed to vote such bonds or to vote in favor of the organization of said water conservation district, had never been included in the original petition.

A certified copy of said order shall be served upon the secretary or other officer of the governing board of each of said constituent districts or units, and a copy thereof, duly certified, shall be recorded by said state irrigation board, in the office of the county recorder of each of the counties in which any of the lands included in said water conservation district, are situated.

The board of directors of each constituent district or unit shall enter upon its minutes the certified copy of said order, so received by it.

The state irrigation board shall also, in said order establishing said water conservation district, divide said water conservation district into three, five, seven, nine or eleven subdivisions, as is most practicable, which said subdivisions shall be designated by number, and in making such subdivisions, the said board shall make the same as nearly equal in acreage as is practicable; provided, however, that districts or units or parts thereof created or formed under different laws or acts of the legislature, shall not be joined or united into one subdivision.

A majority vote in each particular constituent district or unit shall be required to carry the election in said district or unit in favor of the organization of a water conservation district.

SEC. 12. Such water conservation district shall be governed by a board of directors consisting of one director elected from each of said subdivisions in the manner herein provided. Within sixty days after the making of said final order establishing the water conservation district, the state irrigation board shall give notice of an election to be held in each subdivision of such water conservation district, for the purpose of electing a director from each subdivision, and shall fix and establish in said notice a convenient number of election precincts in each subdivision of said water conservation district and define the boundaries thereof, and at least one precinct must be established for each subdivision of said water conservation district. There shall also be designated in said notice, a voting place or places in each subdivision and a board of election consisting of one clerk, one inspector and two judges for each voting place, the names of which said officers of election shall be specified in said notice. Said notice, as to the election in each subdivision, shall be posted in three public places in each election precinct, and published in a newspaper of general circulation published in each county in which any of the lands included within the boundaries of said water conservation district are situated, for at least two weeks prior to the date of said election.

Nominating petitions for directors to be elected at such election shall be filed with the state irrigation board in the manner hereinafter provided for filing of nominating petitions with the board of directors of a water conservation district.

On the second Monday after such election the state irrigation board shall meet at its usual place of meeting to canvass the returns. If at the time of the meeting the returns from each precinct in the water conservation district in which the polls were opened have been received, the state irrigation board must then and there proceed to canvass the returns; but if all the returns have not been received, the canvass must be postponed from day to day until all the returns have been received, or until six postponements have been had. The canvass must be made in public and by opening the returns and estimating the vote of each subdivision of the water conservation district for each director thereof voted for, and declaring the result thereof. The secretary of the state irrigation board must immediately make out and deliver to each person elected a director of a subdivision of the water conservation district a certificate of election signed by him and authenticated with the seal of said board.

Sec. 13. The directors of a water conservation district shall at noon on the second Tuesday of the first month after their election and qualification meet and organize as a board, enter upon their official duties, elect one of their members as president and appoint a secretary and a treasurer neither of whom shall be a member of said board, and all of whom shall hold office at the pleasure of the board. The board shall select and designate an office of the board, which shall be in one of the counties in which any of the lands, of the water conservation district is situated, which shall also be the office of the district, at which the board shall thereafter hold its meetings.

The salary of the secretary and the treasurer and the amount of the bond to be given by each for the faithful performance of their duties shall be fixed by the board of directors.

The board shall then proceed to classify themselves by lot into classes as nearly equal in number as possible, and the term of office of the class having the lesser number shall expire at noon on the second Tuesday in March following the next general February election provided for in this section of this act and the term of office of the class having the greater number shall terminate at noon on the second Tuesday in March following the next general election thereafter.

An election which shall be known as the general water conservation district election, shall be held in each water conservation district on the first Wednesday in February of each odd numbered year at which a successor shall be chosen to each director whose term of office shall expire at noon on the second Tuesday in March next thereafter. The term of office of each director of the district elected after the election on organization provided for in section 12 of this act shall be four (4) years or until his successor is elected and has qualified.

In case of vacancy in the office of director, the state engineer shall appoint some person qualified by law to fill such vacancy for the unexpired term. No director shall be elected by the water conservation district at large, but one director shall be elected from each subdivision to represent such subdivision.

Each director from each subdivision shall be a freeholder in the subdivision he represents.

A director or any other official of any constituent district or unit shall be eligible to hold the office of director of a water conservation district.

Within ten days after receiving their certificates of election or appointments herein provided for, each member of the board of directors shall take and subscribe the official oath, and file the same in the office of the board of directors, and execute the bond herein provided for. Each member of said board of directors shall execute an official bond, in the sum of $5000, which said bond, shall be approved by a judge of the superior court of the county in which the office of the board is located, and shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder of said county, and filed with the secretary of said board. All official bonds herein provided for shall be in the form prescribed by the law for the official bonds of county officers and the premiums thereon may be paid by the water conservation district.

Sec. 14. Not less than ten (10) days before the election of directors any ten (10) or more qualified voters in any subdivision of the water conservation district may file with the board of directors of the water conservation district a petition requesting that a certain person or persons specified in such petition be placed on the ballot as a candidate or candidates for the office named in the petition. The name or names proposed by the various petitions so filed, and no others, shall be printed on the ballot; but there shall be sufficient blank spaces left in which voters may write other names, if they so desire. The petitions shall be preserved in the office of the board of directors of the water conservation district.

Thirty days before an election to be held under section 13 of this act the secretary of the board of directors of a water conservation district shall cause notices to be posted in 3 public places in each election precinct of the time and place of holding the election and shall also post a general notice of the same in the office of said board, which shall be established and kept at some fixed place to be determined by said board, specifying the polling places of each precinct. Prior to the time for posting the notices, the board must appoint for each precinct from the electors thereof a clerk, an inspector and two judges, who shall constitute a board of election for such precinct. If the board fails to appoint a board of election, or the members appointed do not attend at the opening of the polls on the morning of the election, the electors of the precinct present at that hour may appoint the board, or supply the place of an absent member thereof. The board of directors must, in its order appointing the board of election, designate the house or place within the precinct where the election must be held.

At all elections held under the provisions of this act, the polls shall be opened at 8 o'clock a.m. and remain open until 6 o'clock p.m.

The inspector shall be chairman of the election board and may administer all oaths required in the process of an election; and appoint judges if, during the progress of the election, any judge ceases to act. Any member of the board of election may administer and certify oaths required to be administered during the progress of an election. Before opening the polls, each member of the board must take and subscribe an oath to faithfully perform the duties imposed upon him by law. Any voter of the precinct may administer and certify such oath.

The ballot used at the election of directors of a water conservation district, after the election of directors on organization, shall be provided by the board of directors of a water conservation district, and one of the judges of election at every election of directors of a water conservation district shall deliver to each of the qualified voters one of the ballots so provided. The ballots to be used in each subdivision for the election of a director from said subdivision shall have printed on them the names of all candidates whose names have been filed as provided in this act, with a voting square behind each name: provided, that the ballots in each subdivision of the water conservation district shall have on them the names of persons to be voted for as director to represent that subdivision only.

As soon as the polls are closed, the election officers shall count the votes cast at such election, and a certificate shall be drawn by said election officers stating the number of votes each candidate received, and the result of said election. The certificate as aforesaid shall be signed by an inspector and judge of such election board. The election returns shall be immediately delivered by the inspector or by some other safe and responsible carrier designated by said inspector to the secretary or other officer of the water conservation district. No returns from election shall be set aside or rejected for want of form if they can be satisfactorily understood. The board of directors of the water conservation district must meet at the usual place of meeting on the first Monday after election to canvass the returns. If, at the time of meeting, the returns from each precinct in the district in which the polls were opened have been received, the board of directors must then and there proceed to canvass the returns; but if all the returns have not been received the canvass must be postponed from day to day until all the returns have been received or until six (6) postponements have been made. The canvass must be made in public and by opening the returns and ascertaining the vote of each subdivision of the water conservation district for each director voted for and declaring the result thereof.

The person receiving the highest number of votes in any election held in a subdivision of a water conservation district for the election of directors shall be elected as director.

The secretary of the water conservation district must immediately make out and deliver to each person elected a director of a subdivision of the water conservation district a certificate of election signed by him and authenticated with the seal of said water conservation district.

The board of directors of a water conservation district shall establish a convenient number of election precincts in each subdivision of a water conservation district and define the boundaries thereof, and at least one such precinct must be established for each subdivision of said water conservation district, and said board whenever it is deemed advisable for the best interests of said district, and the convenience of the voters may at any time, but not less than sixty (60) days before an election to be held in the district, change the boundaries of any such election precincts, which changes when made must be entered upon the minutes of the board.

SEC. 15. Except as herein otherwise provided, all the laws, rules and regulations and amendments and modifications thereto governing the voting, issuance, sale, form, contents, terms and conditions of bonds of each particular unit or district in which the same are voted and issued shall apply to and govern the voting, issuance, sale, form, contents, terms and conditions of the bonds herein authorized.

Except as herein otherwise provided, the manner of conducting and holding elections, qualification of voters, the necessary number of votes to carry any proposition submitted at any election shall be governed by the same laws, rules and regulations and amendments and modifications thereto of the particular district or unit in which said election is held.

SEC. 16. The directors when sitting as a board or acting under the orders of the board shall receive not to exceed ten (10) dollars per day and twelve (12) cents per mile for each mile travelled from his place of residence to the office of the board, such mileage to be computed by the shortest travelled route, and all necessary expenses paid while engaged in official business under orders of the board.

The board of directors shall hold a regular meeting on the second Tuesday of each month at the place selected as the office of the board: provided, that the board may, by resolution duly entered upon its minutes, fix any other time as the time for its regular monthly meeting, but no change in the time of holding regular meetings of the board shall be made until after the resolution proposing such change has been published once a week for two successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county in which the office of the district is located. Such special meetings of the board of directors may be held as may be required for the proper transaction of the business of the district, but a special meeting must be ordered by a majority of the board. The order must be entered of record, and three days notice thereof must be given by the secretary to each director not joining in the order. The order must specify the business to be transacted, and no other business than that specified in the order may be transacted at such special meeting, unless all the members are present and consent to the consideration of any business not specified in said order. All meetings of the board must be public and a majority of the members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but on all questions requiring a vote, except a motion to adjourn, or a motion to adjourn to a stated time, there shall be a concurrence of at least the number constituting a quorum. A smaller number of directors than a quorum may adjourn from day to day. All records of the board shall be open to public inspection during business hours. Whenever any act is required to be done or proceeding taken by this act, or by an act supplemental or amendatory thereto, on the second Tuesday in any month, such act may be had or proceedings had upon the day specified in the resolution hereinbefore referred to as the time for the regular meeting of the board of directors.

SEC. 17. The board of directors of a water conservation district shall, as soon as it is organized, proceed to make or cause to be made all such examinations, surveys, plans and specifications and estimates of costs for the acquisition, appropriation, diversion, storage, conservation and distribution of water, any drainage or reclamation works connected therewith and the generation of hydro electric energy incident thereto and the sale and distribution thereof as may be necessary or requisite to enable said board to ascertain and estimate the requirements and works necessary for the purposes of said water conservation district, as prayed for in said petition and the cost and expense thereof, and to make a report thereof as herein provided.

In such connection said board may use and adopt all previous estimates, surveys, reports and other data it may have acquired or which are available to it adapted to that purpose, and may employ all necessary engineers, attorneys and other assistants for the accomplishment of said purposes, and the cost thereof shall be deemed a part of the expense of the water conservation district and shall be a legal charge against said water conservation district.

Upon the completion of said examination and study of the proposed project by said board, it shall prepare a report thereof in which report shall be set forth in detail the character and nature of the proposed works in order to carry said project to completion, such report to be accompanied by an estimate of the cost of said project. A copy of such report, plans and estimates shall be kept on file in the office of the board and open for inspection by all interested persons or parties. Such plans and reports may thereafter be modified at any regular meeting of the board by an affirmative vote of a two-thirds majority of all the members of said board.

SEC. 18. The board of directors shall have the power and it shall be its duty to manage and conduct the business affairs of the water conservation district; to adopt a seal; to make and execute all necessary contracts; to employ and appoint such agents, officers and employees as it may require and prescribe their duties and fix their compensation. The board shall have the right to enter upon any lands to make surveys, locate works or for any other necessary and lawful purpose. The board shall have the power to construct, maintain, improve and operate the necessary dams, reservoirs and works for the storage and distribution of water and any drainage, flood control and reclamation works connected therewith, and to provide for the generation and distribution of hydro-electric energy incidental to such storage and distribution.

The board shall also have the right to acquire by purchase, lease or contract, all lands, water, water rights or any use thereof or interest therein, and any other property or rights by it deemed necessary for the construction, maintenance, improvements and operation of the works or the carrying out of the project of the water conservation district, including the property and rights of private owners and stock of corporations.

Said board may also enter into, and do any act necessary or proper for the performance of, any agreement with any county, district, public corporation, or municipality of any kind, for any purpose appertaining to, or beneficial to, the project of the water conservation district, and may acquire the right to store water in any reservoir; or to carry water through any canal, ditch or conduit not owned or controlled by such water conservation district, and may grant to the owner or lessee of a right to the use of any water, permission to store such water in any reservoir of the water conservation district, or to carry such water through any canal, ditch or conduit of the water conservation district.

The said board is hereby authorized and empowered to take conveyances, leases, contracts or other assurances for all property acquired by it under the provisions of this act, in the name of such water conservation district, to and for the use and purposes herein expressed, and to institute and maintain all actions and proceedings, suits at law or in equity necessary or proper in order to fully carry out the provisions of this act; or to enforce, maintain, protect or preserve any and all rights, privileges and immunities created by this act or acquired in pursuance thereof. All contracts and other documents executed by the board shall be signed by its president and its secretary, under seal and in all actions, suits or proceedings the said board may sue, appear and defend in person or by attorneys and in the name of such water conservation district.

The said board shall have power generally to perform all such acts as may be necessary to fully carry out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 19. The board of directors shall have the right and power to acquire by condemnation all lands, waters, water rights, or any use thereof, or interest therein, and any other property or rights, except the property or rights of the units thereof, by it deemed necessary for the construction, maintenance, improvement and operation of the works, or the carrying out of the project of the water conservation district. In the case of condemnation proceedings the board shall proceed in the name of the water conservation district under the provisions of section fourteen of article one as amended of the constitution of the State of California, and title seven, part three of the Code of Civil Procedure of California, and all pleadings, proceedings and process in said title provided it shall be applicable to the condemnation proceedings hereunder.

The board of directors shall have power to construct the said works across or intersecting any stream of water, water course, street, avenue, highway, railway, canal, ditch, or flume, in such manner as to afford security for life and property; but said board shall restore the same, when so crossed or intersected, to its former state as near as may be, or in a sufficient manner not to have impaired unnecessarily its usefulness; and every company whose railroad shall be intersected or crossed by said works shall unite with said board in forming said intersections and crossings, and grant the privileges aforesaid; and if such railroad company and said board, or the owners and controllers of said property, thing, or franchise to be so crossed, can not agree upon the amount to be paid therefor, or the points or the matter of said crossings or intersections, the same shall be ascertained and determined in all respects as is herein provided in respect to the taking of land. The right of way is hereby given, dedicated, and set apart for the location, construction, and maintenance of said works over and through any of the lands which are now or may be the property of this state; and also there is given, dedicated, and set apart, for the uses and purposes aforesaid, all waters and water rights belonging to this state within the district.

SEC. 19a. The board of directors shall proceed to carry out the project of the district in accordance with the plans and specifications of the duly approved and adopted report of the board.

When such work is to be done said board shall give notice by publication thereof in the county in which the office of said board is located once a week for four successive weeks, calling for bids for same. If less than the whole work provided for in said plans and specifications is to be done and advertised, the portion to be done must be particularly described in said notice. Said notice shall refer to the plans and specifications of the work to be done and state that the same can be seen at the office of the board and that the board will receive sealed proposals therefor, and that the contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder, stating the time and place for opening said proposals, which at the time and place appointed shall be opened in public, and as soon as convenient thereafter the board shall let said work, either in portions or as a whole, to the lowest responsible bidder; or it may reject any and all bids and re-advertise for proposals or may proceed to construct the works under its superintendence; provided, that in case of emergency or urgent necessity the board of directors, by unanimous vote of those present (provided there is a quorum present) at any regular or special meeting, may award contracts without advertising for bids, but the amount of said contract so awarded shall not exceed fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00). All contracts for the purchase of material shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, provided the purchase price of such material is in excess of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00).

Any person or persons to whom a contract may be awarded shall enter into a bond, with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the board, payable to the water conservation district for its use, for 25 per cent of the amount of the contract price, conditioned for the full and faithful performance of said contract.

The work shall be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of and be approved by the board.

It shall be the duty of the board to see that all contractors doing work for the conservation district carry compensation insurance on all employees.

SEC. 20. Each of the constituent districts or units of a water conservation district is hereby expressly authorized to vote, issue and sell its bonds for the purposes herein provided in this act, and said bonds are to be in all respects of the same force and effect, and of the same priority as a lien on property as other bonds voted, issued and sold by such constituent district or unit under the particular law or laws governing the voting, issuance and sale of bonds by such constituent district or unit.

SEC. 21. If the amount originally contributed and paid into said water conservation district by said constituent districts or units shall be insufficient to complete the system and works of said project, the board of directors of said water conservation district, shall thereupon estimate and determine the amount required to complete said system and works, according to the original plans and specifications thereof, and shall thereupon apportion and allot to each of said constituent districts or units, its proper proportion of said additional cost of the completion of said system and works of said project; said apportionment shall be made upon the same basis as the original apportionment of the cost of construction of said system and works of said project, as is provided for in this act, and thereupon, the said board of directors shall, by resolution, duly adopted and entered upon the minutes of said board of directors of said water conservation district, make requisition upon each of said constituent districts or units for its proportion of said additional cost, and a copy of which said resolution, duly certified to, shall be served upon the secretary or other officer of the governing board of each constituent district or unit. Upon receiving said copy of said resolution, it shall be the duty of the governing board of each of said constituent districts or units, and each of said constituent districts or units is hereby given the power to levy, assess and collect an assessment in the amount called for by said resolution and requisition, which said amount shall be levied, assessed and collected in like manner as the levy, assessment and collection of assessments under the particular law or laws governing the levy, collection and assessment of assessments of each of the said respective constituent districts or units.

SEC. 22. The board of directors of said water conservation district is hereby expressly given the power, and it shall be its duty, from time to time, as occasion may require, to estimate and determine the amount of money required, after the completion of said project, for the maintenance, repair and operation of said system and works and also for the expenses of the management and operation of said water conservation district, and shall also fix and allot the proportion of said estimated amount to be borne or paid by each of said constituent districts or units, which said allotment or apportionment, shall be in the same proportion to each of said constituent districts or units, as the apportionment or allotment of the original cost of said project, as hereinbefore provided for. The board of directors of the water conservation district shall thereupon, by resolution, entered in its minutes, make requisition upon each constituent district or unit, for its proportion of said additional cost and expense, a copy of which said resolution duly certified, shall be served upon the secretary or other officer of the governing board of each constituent district or unit.

Upon receiving said resolution, it shall be the duty of the governing board of each constituent district or unit, and each constituent district or unit is hereby given the power to levy, assess, collect and pay over to said water conservation district, the amount of its proportion of said additional cost and expense. Such assessments shall be levied, assessed and collected by each constituent district or unit in like manner as the levy, assessment and collection of assessments, under the particular law or laws, governing the levy, assessment and collection of assessments of each of the said respective constituent districts or units.

Each constituent district or unit, in lieu of levying, assessing and collecting an assessment for the purpose of raising funds to pay its amount or share of any apportionment or allotment, as provided for in section twenty-one of this act, may vote, issue and sell bonds for the purpose of raising said funds, and each of said constituent districts or units is hereby expressly given and granted the power to vote, issue and sell bonds for said purpose.

SEC. 23. Whenever the board of directors of any constituent district or unit of a water conservation district, shall by resolution, declare that it deems it desirable that any contemplated or outstanding bonds of such constituent district or unit issued under the provisions of this act, including any bonds of such constituent district or unit authorized but not sold, shall be available, for the purpose provided for in section seven of an act of the legislature of the State of California, entitled "An act relating to bonds of irrigation districts, providing under what circumstances such bonds shall be legal investments for funds of banks, insurance companies, and trust companies, trust funds, state school funds and any money or funds which may now or hereafter be invested in bonds of cities, cities and counties, school districts or municipalities, and providing under what circumstances the use of bonds of irrigation districts as security for the performance of any act may be authorized," approved June 13, 1913, as amended, the said board of directors shall thereupon file a certified copy of such resolution with the commission created by, and provided for in, said act of June 13, 1913, which commission, and the state controller in connection therewith, are hereby given the same power and authority in respect of the investigation and certification of bonds issued by any constituent district or unit, under this act as is given to them in respect of the investigation and certification of irrigation district bonds by said act, as amended, except as the same may be limited by, or inconsistent with, any provision of this act, and bonds of any constituent district or unit provided for in this act which have been so investigated and certified and by authority of such investigation and certification are declared to be legal investments for the purposes stated in said act of June 13, 1913, as amended, may be lawfully purchased, or received in pledge for loans by savings banks, trust companies, insurance companies, guardians, executors, administrators, and special administrators, or by any public officer or officers of this state or of any county, city, or city and county, or other municipal or corporate body within this state having or holding funds which they are allowed by law to invest or loan.

SEC. 24. For the purposes of this act each calendar year shall be divided into two (2) fiscal periods, the first period consists of the first six (6) months of the year, and the second period consists of the second six (6) months of the year, and at the regular monthly meeting of March and September of each year, the water conservations district board shall estimate and determine the amount of money that said conservation district will require for the purposes provided by this act during the next succeeding fiscal period, and any requisition herein provided for in this act to be made by the water conservation district upon any of said constituent districts or units for the payment to said water conservation district of its proportional share of the amount of money required by said estimate and determination of said board of directors of said water conservation district shall be made at the beginning of said first period, and it shall thereupon be and become the duty of each of the said constituent districts or units to pay the same to said water conservation district before the commencement of the next succeeding fiscal period.

SEC. 25. All claims against the water conservation district shall be paid by warrants of said water conservation district. Said warrants must be signed by the president and secretary of the board and drawn on the treasurer of the conservation district and paid by him out of the funds of such conservation district and said treasurer shall make a monthly report to the board of the money received by him of the amounts expended and the total sum on hand.

SEC. 26. No director or officer of the conservation district shall in any manner be interested directly or indirectly in any contract awarded or to be awarded by the board, or in the profits to be derived therefrom; and for the violation of this provision such director or officer shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and conviction shall work a forfeiture of his office, and he shall be punished by a fine, not to exceed five thousand dollars, or for imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 27. The board of directors or other officers of a water conservation district shall have no power to incur any debt or liability whatever, either by issuing bonds or otherwise, in excess of the express provisions of this act; any debt or liability in excess of such provisions shall be and remain absolutely void; provided, that nothing contained in this section shall be construed as limiting the right of the board to enter into any contract for the use or lease of any lands, water, water rights or other property, as in this act provided and by such lease or contract to bind the district for the payment of the rentals or consideration specified in such lease or contract.

SEC. 28. The board shall have power and it shall be its duty to distribute to each of the units of a conservation district the proportion of stored water to which it is entitled at its point of diversion from the stream, and may use a stream or natural water course for such purpose. The board shall also have power and it shall be its duty to distribute to the units of a conservation district the proportion of hydro-electric energy to which it is entitled and may desire for its use within such unit, same to be delivered at the place where it is generated; and all hydro-electrical energy not so distributed shall be sold by the board of directors of the conservation district, and the proceeds resulting from such sale shall be distributed to the units in accordance with their respective interests therein.

SEC. 29. The board of directors of a water conservation district shall not have the power to modify, change or alter the distributing system or works of any of the constituent districts or units nor shall said board of directors have any jurisdiction or control over the distribution of water to the land owner within the boundaries of any of the constituent districts or units. Nor shall said board have the power to condemn by law the water, water rights or other property of a constituent district or unit without first having obtained a written consent of the managing board of such constituent district or unit.

SEC. 30. The rights of way, ditches, flumes, pipelines, drains, water rights, reservoirs and other property used for the purposes of a water conservation district and belonging to it shall not be taxed nor assessed for state, county or municipal purposes.

It is hereby declared that the State of California has a paramount interest in the storage, conservation and diversion of water, the prevention of floods, the irrigation, drainage, and reclamation of land, and the production of electric energy; and that such storage, conservation, diversion, irrigation, prevention of floods, reclamation, drainage, and production of electric energy will make productive vast quantities of land that are comparatively unproductive and will increase production, property valuations, and population in the state, make profitable the cultivation of small tracts and promote subdivision of larger tracts, and will promote the welfare and prosperity of all the people. The powers herein conferred upon the state irrigation board and the board of directors of a water conservation district and all other powers herein conferred are hereby declared to be police and regulatory powers and are necessary to the accomplishment of a purpose that is indispensable to public interests. The use of all water required for the irrigation of the lands of any district formed under the provisions of this act and for domestic and other incidental and beneficial uses within such district, together with the rights of way for canals and ditches, sites for reservoirs and all other property required in fully carrying out the provisions of this act is hereby declared to be a public use, subject to the regulation and control of the state, in the manner prescribed by law.

SEC. 31. The state irrigation board and the board of directors of every water conservation district shall, respectively, cause to be entered in books to be kept for that purpose a complete and connected record of all their acts and transactions, which shall be kept and preserved on file in their respective offices and open to inspection by the public during business hours. Said records and all documents, instruments, or other papers filed as above provided, or a copy or copies of any thereof certified to by the secretary of the state irrigation board or the secretary of the board of directors of the water conservation district, shall be received in evidence without further proof in any court of this state, or before any board or tribunal authorized to hear or consider a matter wherein the same shall be properly admissible in evidence.

During the construction of any works in carrying out the project of any water conservation district, the board of directors of such district shall, at least every sixty (60) days, forward to the state engineer, a report of the progress of such construction, together with a statement of the amount or amounts paid for the doing of such work. The board of directors of a water conservation district, at their regular monthly meeting in January of each year, shall render and immediately thereafter, cause to be published in the county where the office of said board is situated, at least once a week, for two successive weeks, a verified statement of the financial condition of the district, showing particularly the receipts and disbursements of the last preceding year, together with the source of such receipts and the purpose of such disbursements.

Immediately after the publication of such statements, the board of directors of the water conservation district shall cause a copy thereof, recommended by a report stating the progress of the work under construction and the general condition of the project, and whether or not the same is being satisfactorily and successfully carried out and any other matter which the board may deem proper to be filed with the state engineer who shall examine said statement and report and make to the board of directors such recommendations and comments as he may deem proper and may publish said recommendations and comments in such manner as may be deemed advisable. Said state engineer may at any time make or cause to be made an examination of the affairs of any water conservation district within the state or call upon the board of directors of such district for such information as he may desire, and may make and publish such report thereon as he may deem advisable.

SEC. 33. The legal title to all property acquired under the provisions of this act shall by operation of law, immediately upon the acquisition thereof, vest in the water conservation district by which it is acquired, and shall be held by such district in trust for the uses and purposes set forth in this act, and is hereby dedicated and set apart to said uses and purposes. The board of directors is hereby authorized and empowered to hold, use, manage, occupy, and possess said property and may determine by resolution duly entered upon its minutes, that any property, real or personal, held by the district is not necessary for the uses and purposes thereof and may sell the same for an adequate consideration; and a conveyance or transfer of any of the property of a district executed by the president and secretary of its board of directors in pursuance of a resolution of the board adopted as above provided, shall convey good title to the property.

SEC. 34. Nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to affect or impair the vested right of any person, association, or corporation to the use of water.

SEC. 35. This act shall be known and may be referred to in any action, proceeding, or legislative enactment, as the "California Water Conservation District Act."

SEC. 36. If any section, subdivision, sentence, clause, or phrase of this act be for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act, and the legislature hereby declares that it would have passed this act and each and every other section, subdivision, sentence, clause, and phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subdivisions, sentences, clauses, or phrases of this act be declared unconstitutional.

SEC. 37. This act shall take effect from and after its passage and approval.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENT.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendment was offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

On page 1 of the printed bill, after line 7, add the following:

"1. The county clerk, one thousand five hundred dollars per annum and such fees for services in naturalization proceedings as by act of congress, in such case made and provided it is said he may retain; and also such other fees as he may be allowed by the law of this state to retain; and provided, that in each year when a new registration is required he shall receive in addition to his salary the sum of ten cents for each elector registered, which amount shall by the board of supervisors at the close of registration preceding a general election, be paid from the general fund of the county; and provided, further, that in counties of this class there shall be and is hereby allowed to the county clerk a deputy, who shall be appointed by the county clerk, who shall be paid a salary of one hundred twenty-five dollars per month, said salary to be paid by said county in monthly installments at the same time and in the same manner and out of the same fund as the salary of the county clerk is paid; and provided, further, that in counties of this class there shall be and is hereby allowed to the county clerk a copyist, for service in his office which office of copyist for the county clerk is hereby created, said copyist to be appointed by the county clerk and said copyist shall receive as compensation for his services the sum of nine hundred dollars per annum, to be paid out of the county treasury in equal monthly installments in the same manner and at the same time as other county officers are paid. The changes effected by this subdivision shall apply to the incumbents.

2. The sheriff, four thousand two hundred dollars per annum, and mileage for the services of papers or process served by him in all civil cases from any court, also necessary expenses for pursuing criminals or transacting any criminal business.

3. The recorder, one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum, and all fees and commissions allowed by law to the registrar for preparing vital statistics for the State of California and also the sum of twenty-five dollars per annum for preparing the abstract of mortgages for use of the county assessor as required by law: provided that in counties of this class there shall be, and is hereby allowed to the recorder a deputy to be appointed by him and who shall receive a salary of nine hundred dollars per annum, said salary to be paid by said county in equal installments at the same time and in the same manner as the salary of the recorder is paid.

4. The auditor, nine hundred dollars per annum and five per cent of all amounts to have been paid out by the county for state aid as per his report as contemplated by section 1099a of the Political Code of this state or other law providing for such compensation.

5. The treasurer, one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; and such fees and commissions as now are, or hereafter may be allowed by law.

6. Tax collector, five hundred dollars per annum and such fees as now are or hereafter may be allowed by law.

7. The assessor, three thousand five hundred dollars per annum and such fees as now are or hereafter may be allowed by law.

8. The district attorney, one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum.

9. The coroner, such fees as are now, or hereafter may be allowed by law.

10. The public administrator, such fees as are now, or hereafter may be allowed by law.

11. The superintendent of schools, one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum, and actual traveling expenses when visiting the schools of his county and also the sum of five dollars per day for his services as secretary of the board of education for the actual time that the board may be in session.

12. The surveyor, such fees as are now or may hereafter be allowed by law.

13. For the purpose of regulating the compensation of justices of the peace, the townships of counties of this class are hereby classified according to population, as follows:

Townships having a population of two thousand five hundred or more shall belong to and be known as townships of the first class; townships having a population of one thousand two hundred and less than two thousand five hundred shall belong to and be known as townships of the second class; townships having a population of less than one thousand two hundred shall belong to and be known as townships of the third class.

For the purpose of this section, the population of the several judicial townships shall be ascertained by the board of supervisors, by multiplying by three the number of registered voters in each township at the last general election.

14. Justices of the peace shall receive the following salaries: In townships of the first class, the sum of nine hundred dollars for the period beginning with the date upon which this act becomes effective and ending December 31, 1923, and thereafter a salary of nine hundred dollars per annum; in townships of the second class, the sum of two hundred forty dollars for the period beginning with the date upon which this act becomes effective and ending December 31, 1923, and thereafter a salary of two hundred forty dollars per annum; in townships of the third class, the sum of twelve dollars for the period beginning with the date upon which this act becomes effective and ending December 31, 1923, and thereafter a salary of twelve dollars per annum.

Such salaries shall be paid in the same manner and out of the same fund as the salaries of county officers are paid and shall be compensation in full for all services rendered.

15. Constables, such fees as are now or may hereafter be allowed by law.

16. Each member of the board of supervisors, nine hundred dollars per annum and twenty cents per mile for traveling from his residence to the county seat, also his actual necessary expenses while acting as ex officio or as overseer or commissioner not to exceed three hundred dollars in any one year.

17. Each member of the board of education shall receive five dollars per day as compensation for his services while in actual attendance upon said board, and mileage at the rate of twenty cents a mile one way only, from his residence to the place of meeting of said board. Said compensation of the members of said board shall be paid out of the same fund as the salary of the superintendent of schools is paid. Claims for such service and mileage shall be presented to the board of supervisors and shall be allowed at the rate above named in the same manner as other claims against the county are allowed. The compensation of the members of the county board of education herein provided for is not in addition to that provided in section one thousand seven hundred seventy of this code.

18. In the superior court, juror's fees, and witnesses' fees in criminal cases shall be allowed as follows:

For attending as a grand juror, for each day's attendance, three dollars, and fifteen cents per mile for each mile actually traveled in going only, and the judge of said court shall make an order directing the auditor to draw his warrant in favor of such juror for said per diem and mileage and the treasurer shall pay the same.

For attending as a trial juror in criminal cases, for each day's actual attendance, three dollars, and fifteen cents per mile for each mile actually traveled in going only.

and the judge of said court shall make an order directing the auditor to draw his warrant in favor of such juror for said per diem and mileage and the treasurer shall pay the same.

For attendance as a witness in criminal cases, for each day's attendance the sum of two dollars, and fifteen cents per mile for each mile actually traveled in going only, and the judge of said court shall make an order directing the auditor to draw his warrant in favor of such witness for said per diem and mileage, and the treasurer shall pay the same; provided, however, that in criminal cases such per diem and mileage shall only be allowed upon a showing to the court by the witness, that the same are a necessary expense of the witness in attending, and the court shall determine the necessity for the same, and may disallow any fees to a witness unnecessarily subpoenaed."

Amendment adopted.

Bill read second time, and ordered to print, engrossment, and on file for third reading.

We favor the New Pension Law as presented by the San Francisco Teachers' Association, and endorsed by the Legislative Committee of the California Teachers' Association—Senate Bill No. 127.

JEANETTE BARROWS, Berkeley,
And 18 others.

Also:

LOS ANGELES SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF,
LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 9, 1923.

Senator Walter A. McDonald, Sacramento.

MY DEAR SIR: There are six public day schools for the deaf in California, employing twenty-three teachers. Out of that number there are sixteen who before coming to California received their teaching experience in state schools for the deaf outside of California. These teachers have been certificated by your State Board and have met the requirements of local school boards. Yet, in the Public School Teachers' Retirement Salary Fund bill about to be presented to the Legislature, now in session, no recommendation is made that any teacher of the deaf in California, with experience as stated above, be given credit for such experience so as to receive a teacher's pension at the end of thirty years of teaching.

In other words: because their teaching experience was received in state schools outside of California instead of day schools, they will be debarred from receiving the pension after thirty years' experience under the laws of the Retirement Salary Fund bill as it now reads.

To present to you an hypothetical case: Miss Smith comes to California with fifteen years of experience obtained in the New York Institution for the Deaf. She teaches in the Los Angeles Day School for the Deaf for fifteen years and then applies for the pension to which she is entitled after thirty years of experience. It is refused her on the ground that she had only state school experience until she came to California and that the Teachers' Pension Act contains no clause covering her case, so that Miss Smith must teach fifteen years more in order to obtain the pension paid after thirty years' experience.

If Miss Smith's experience, during the fifteen years before she came here, had been received in a public day school, no difficulty would have been encountered.

California has no training school for teachers of the deaf, so that they are obtained from other sections of the country and we feel that our experience in other states should be recognized by the Teachers' Pension Fund and included with that of other teachers whose experience is provided for by the pension after thirty years of teaching.

A clause has been added to Senate Bill No. 127 which will give the teachers of the deaf credit for their former experience in state schools.

As the representative of the teachers in the day school here, I have been requested by them to ask for your assistance in the Senate when this bill comes before the Senate.

Assembly Bill No. 975, presented by Mr. Edwin Baker, of Los Angeles, is introduced in the interest of teachers of special schools of California, who have not yet received credit for former experience in state schools under the Retirement Salary Act.

The teachers of the deaf will greatly appreciate it if you will give them your assistance by voting for these bills—Senate Bill No. 127 and Assembly Bill No. 975.

Thanking you, I am

Yours very truly,

NELLIE C. CLAYTON,

And 11 others.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENT.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendment was offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

On page 1, line 3, of the printed bill, after the figures "1609," insert the following: "Boards of school trustees and city, and city and county boards of education shall have power, and it shall be their duty:

First—To employ a principal for each school under their control, and they may employ a district superintendent for one or more schools employing eight teachers or more under their control. In each city school district governed by a city board of education, such board may employ a city superintendent of schools and such deputy or assistant city superintendents as it may deem necessary and fix and order paid their compensation unless the same be otherwise prescribed by law. Any deputy city superintendent of schools, or assistant city superintendent of schools, or district superintendent may be elected for a term of four years.

Second—To employ the teachers (at an annual salary of not less than twelve hundred (1200) dollars) as provided in part fifth of this section; also to employ janitors and other employees of the school; to fix and order paid their compensation, unless the same be otherwise prescribed by law; provided, that no board shall enter into any contract with such employees, other than teachers, to extend beyond the close of the next ensuing school year; except that teachers may be elected on or after May second for the next ensuing school year and each teacher so elected shall be deemed re-elected from year to year, except as hereinafter specified; provided, that any teacher who shall fail to signify his acceptance within twenty days after notice of his election or employment shall have been given into by the clerk or secretary of the governing board of the school district, or shall have been mailed to him by such clerk or secretary by depositing such notice in the United States post office with postage thereon prepaid, addressed to such teacher at his last known place of address, shall be deemed to have declined the same. Any board of trustees, or city, or city and county board of education may arrange to pay the teachers or principals so employed by them in ten or eleven or twelve equal payments instead of by the school month; provided, however, that where the board of trustees or city or city and county board of education arranges to pay the teachers or principals so employed by them in twelve equal payments for the year, they shall begin such payments on the first day of the calendar month following the opening of schools for the current year in all cases where school is opened during the month of July, and in all cases where school is not opened during the month of July, the board of trustees or city boards or city and county boards of education may withhold such warrant or warrants which may have fallen due prior to the opening of school until the teachers or principals so employed by them shall have returned to the employment for which they were engaged by the board of school trustees or the city or city and county board of education and shall have resumed their respective duties, and then such payments shall be continued from month to month on the first day of each calendar month thereafter until said teachers have been paid the full amount due to them for that fiscal year; provided, that a teacher who serves less than a full school year is entitled to pro-rata salary only an amount that bears the same ratio to the established annual salary for such position as the time he teaches bears to the annual school term; provided, that whenever the first day of the month falls on a holiday, payment of teachers' salaries shall be made on the following day.

Third—To appoint, and, in their discretion, pay district librarians, and enforce the rules prescribed for the government of district libraries.

Fourth—To employ in their discretion supervisors of subjects and fix and order paid their compensation unless the same be otherwise prescribed by law.

Fifth—(a) To employ, as teachers, only persons who hold legal certificates for teaching in full force and effect, and on file at the time of such appointment in the office of the county superintendent of schools, to serve as substitutes, probationary or permanent teachers, and to give the county superintendent of schools immediate notice in writing of such employment on blanks furnished by the superintendent of public instruction, stating the name and address of each person thus employed.

(b) To fix and prescribe the duties to be performed by principals, teachers, librarians, janitors and all other employees in the school district.

(c) To classify as substitute teachers those persons employed as teachers from day to day for less than one school year, to fill positions of regularly employed teachers absent from service.

(d) To classify as probationary teachers those persons employed as teachers for the school year, and who have not been classified as permanent teachers, as hereinafter provided, such classification to be made at the time of employment, and thereafter in the month of July of each school year.

(e) To classify as permanent teachers all persons who shall have been successfully employed as teachers by the district for two consecutive school years at the time of classification; provided, also, that the two years of successful service shall have been performed in a district employing at least eight teachers under a principal who shall devote at least two hours per day to supervision in the school or schools under his control. Such classification shall be made at the end of the two years of such employment.

(f) To grant leaves of absence to teachers.

(g) To accept the resignation of any teacher and to fix the time when such resignation shall take effect, which date shall not be later than the close of the school year during which such resignation shall have been received by such board.

(h) To dismiss substitute teachers at any time at the pleasure of the board.

(i) To dismiss probationary teachers during the school year for cause only, as in the case of permanent teachers, except that on or before the tenth day of June in any year the governing board may give notice in writing to a probationary teacher that his services will not be required for the ensuing school year. Such notice shall be deemed sufficient and complete when delivered in person to the teacher by the clerk or secretary of the governing board of the school district or deposited in the United States registered mail with postage prepaid, addressed to such teacher at his last known place of address.

(j) To dismiss permanent teachers, principals, or supervisors of special subjects, except as hereinafter provided, only for one or more of the following causes, after a fair and impartial public hearing. Causes for dismissal are immoral or unprofessional conduct, incompetence, evident unfitness for teaching, persistent violation of or refusal to obey the school laws of California, or reasonable rules prescribed for the government of public schools.

Dismissal for cause shall be made only after the following provisions shall have been complied with: The governing board shall give at least ten days notice in writing to any permanent teacher or principal or supervisor of special subjects against whom charges shall have been preferred, which notice shall state fully the charges, and the time when and the place where such hearing is to be held.

The governing board shall hold such hearing under reasonable rules which it shall adopt, and the teacher against whom charges shall have been preferred shall have the right to be represented by counsel, and to call witnesses on his own behalf and take their testimony at the hearing and to cross examine all other witnesses who may testify at such hearing; provided, that such hearing shall be confined to charges only.

The board may dismiss any permanent teacher after a hearing as in this section provided, upon proof of the charges covering any one or more of the causes for dismissal enumerated in this section, upon the affirmative vote of the majority of the board. No member of the board shall be qualified to vote who has not been present throughout the entire hearing. Such trial shall have been concluded and the decision rendered within ten days after the beginning of said trial.

It is hereby provided, however, that whenever it becomes necessary to decrease the number of permanent teachers employed by a school district on account of the decrease in the number of pupils attending the schools of such district, or on account of the discontinuance of a particular kind of teaching service in such district, the governing board may dismiss such teacher or teachers at the close of the school year.

If the dismissal of such teacher or teachers shall become necessary on account of the decrease in the number of pupils attending the schools of the district, such teachers so dismissed shall be the teacher or teachers last employed by the district.

If the dismissal of such teacher or teachers shall become necessary on account of the discontinuance of a particular kind of teaching service in the district, the teacher or teachers so dismissed shall be the teacher or teachers engaged in the type of teaching work so discontinued. If such a course is reestablished within one year from the time of such discontinuance, the teacher or teachers so dismissed shall have the preferred right to appointment as teacher or teachers of such course.

The board shall give any teacher who shall be dismissed under this proviso a statement or honorable dismissal.

Nothing in this act shall be construed in such manner as to deprive any teacher of his rights and remedies in a court of competent jurisdiction on a question of fact and law.

Sixth—To provide in cities, and in cities and counties, having boards of education, and in other districts employing thirty or more teachers for the payment of the traveling expenses of any representative of the board of education, when performing services directed by said board.

All employments under the provisions of this section shall be subordinate to the right of the legislature to amend or repeal this section at any time, and nothing herein contained shall ever be held, deemed or construed to confer upon any person employed pursuant to the provisions hereof a contract which will be impaired by the amendment or repeal of this section."

Amendment adopted.

Bill read second time, and ordered to print, engrossment, and on file for third reading.

Senate Bill No. 60—An act to amend section 1073 of the Political Code, relating to elections.

Senate Bill No. 552—An act to amend an act entitled "An act to require the installation of certain sanitary facilities in the operating rooms of theatres and moving picture houses; and providing penalties for its violation," approved June 3, 1921.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENT.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendment was offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

On page 1, line 1, of the printed bill, after the period following the figure "1" insert the following: "An act entitled "An act to require the installation of certain sanitary facilities in the operating rooms of theaters and moving picture houses; and providing penalties for its violation" approved June 3, 1921, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 1. In the operating room of every theater and moving picture house there shall be provided running water and toilet facilities for the use of the operator.

In every municipality or other place having a sewer system adjacent to the building such toilet facilities in said operating room shall consist of a flush-tank toilet and a wash-basin with running water. In any municipality or other place having no sewer system a dry-closet or other contrivance acceptable to the local health officer shall be installed in said operating room in place and stead of a flush-tank toilet. Any violation of the provisions of this act shall be deemed a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars for each offense, and it shall be a separate offense each day that an owner, manager, or lessee of a theater or moving picture house shall fail to comply with the provisions of this act.

Sec. 2. As used in this act the terms theaters, moving picture houses and moving picture show places include only such buildings or places as are used primarily as theaters or for the display of motion pictures.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force on and after July 1, 1924."

COMMITTEE AMENDMENTS.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendments were offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

In line 1 of the title strike out the "a" following the word "fifty".

Amendment adopted.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

On page 1, line 14, of the printed bill, after the period following the numeral 2, insert the following:

"(a) The term "commission," when used in this act, means the railroad commission of the State of California.

(b) The term "commissioner," when used in this act, means one of the members of the commission.

(c) The term "corporation," when used in this act, includes a corporation, a company, an association and a joint stock association.

(d) The term "person," when used in this act, includes an individual, a firm and a copartnership.

(e) The term "transportation of persons," when used in this act, includes every service in connection with or incidental to the safety, comfort or convenience of the person transported and the receipt, carriage and delivery of such person and his baggage.

(f) The term "transportation of property," when used in this act, includes every service in connection with or incidental to the transportation of property, including in particular its receipt, delivery, elevation, transfer, switching, carriage, ventilation, refrigeration, icing, dunnage, storage and handling, and the transmission of credit by express corporations.

(g) The term "street railroad," when used in this act, includes every railway, and each and every branch or extension thereof, by whatsoever power operated, being mainly upon, along, above or below any street, avenue, road, highway, bridge or public place within any city and county, or city or town, together with all real estate, fixtures and personal property of every kind used in connection therewith, owned, controlled, operated or managed for public use in the transportation of persons or property; but the term "street railroad," when used in this act, shall not include a railway constituting or used as a part of a commercial or interurban railway.

(h) The term "street railroad corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any street railroad for compensation within this state.

(i) The term "railroad," when used in this act, includes every commercial, interurban and other railway other than a street railroad, and each and every branch or extension thereof, by whatsoever power operated, together with all tracks, bridges, trestles, rights of way, subways, tunnels, stations, depots, union depots, ferries, yards, grounds, terminals, terminal facilities, structures and equipment, and all other real estate, fixtures and personal property of every kind used in connection therewith, owned, controlled, operated or managed for public use in the transportation of persons or property.

(j) The term "railroad corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any railroad for compensation within this state.

(k) The term "express corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, engaged in or transacting the business of transporting any freight, merchandise or other property for compensation on the line of any common carrier or stage or auto stage line within this state.

(l) The term "common carrier," when used in this act, includes every railroad corporation; street railroad corporation; express corporation; dispatch, sleeping car, dining car, drawing room car, freight, freight-line, refrigerator, oil, stock, fruit, car loaning, car renting, car loading and every other car corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, operating for compensation within this state; and every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any vessel engaged in the transportation of persons or property for compensation between points upon the inland waters of this state, or regularly engaged in the transportation of persons or property for compensation upon the high seas on regular routes between points within this state. The term "inland waters" as used in this subsection includes all navigable waters within the State of California other than the high seas.

(m) The term "pipe line," when used in this act, includes all real estate, fixtures and personal property, owned, controlled, operated or managed in connection with or to facilitate the transmission, storage, distribution or delivery of crude oil or other fluid substances except water through pipe lines.

(n) The term "pipe line corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any pipe line for compensation within this state.

(o) The term "gas plant," when used in this act, includes all real estate, fixtures, and personal property, owned, controlled, operated or managed in connection with or to facilitate the production, generation, transmission, delivery or furnishing of gas, natural or manufactured, for light, heat or power.

(p) The term "gas corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any gas plant for compensation within this state, except where gas is made or produced on and distributed by the maker or producer through his tenants and not for sale to others.

(q) The term "electric plant," when used in this act, includes all real estate, fixtures and personal property owned, controlled, operated or managed in connection with or to facilitate the production, generation, transmission, delivery or furnishing of electricity for light, heat or power, and all conduits, ducts or other devices, materials, apparatus or property for containing, holding or carrying conductors used or to be used for the transmission of electricity for light, heat or power.

(r) The term "electrical corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any electric plant for compensation within this state, except where electricity is generated on or distributed by the producer through private property alone solely for his own use or the use of his tenants and not for sale to others.

(s) The term "telephone line," when used in this act, includes all conduits, ducts, poles, wires, cables, instruments and appliances, and all other real estate, fixtures and personal property owned, controlled, operated or managed in connection with or to facilitate communication by telephone, whether such communication is had with or without the use of transmission wires.

(t) The term "telephone corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever owning, controlling, operating or managing any telephone line for compensation within this state.

(u) The term "telegraph line," when used in this act, includes all conduits, ducts, poles, wires, cables, instruments and appliances, and all other real estate, fixtures and personal property owned, controlled, operated or managed in connection with or to facilitate communication by telegraph, whether such communication is had with or without the use of transmission wires.

(v) The term "telegraph corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any telegraph line for compensation within this state.

(w) The term "water system," when used in this act, includes all reservoirs, tunnels, shafts, dams, dikes, headgates, pipes, flumes, canals, structures, and appliances, and all other real estate, fixtures and personal property, owned, controlled, operated or managed in connection with or to facilitate the diversion, development, storage, supply, distribution, sale, furnishing, carriage, apportionment, or measurement of water for power, irrigation, reclamation or manufacturing, or for municipal, domestic or other beneficial use.

(x) The term "water corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any water system for compensation within this state.

(y) The term "vessel," when used in this act, includes every species of water craft, by whatsoever power operated, which is owned, controlled, operated or managed for public use in the transportation of persons or property, except row-boats, sailing boats and barges under twenty tons dead weight carrying capacity, and vessels propelled by steam, gas, fluid naphtha, electricity, or other motive power under the burden of five tons net register.

(z) The term "wharfinger," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any dock, wharf or structure used by vessels in connection with or to facilitate the receipt or discharge of freight or passengers for compensation within this state.

(aa) The term "warehouseman," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any building, structure or warehouse in which merchandise other than second hand household goods or effects or commodities under cold storage, is stored for compensation within this state.

(bb) The term "heating plant," when used in this act, includes all real estate, fixtures and personal property owned, controlled, operated or managed in connection with or to facilitate the production, generation, transmission, delivery or furnishing of heat for domestic, business, industrial or public use.

(cc) The term "heat corporation," when used in this act, includes every corporation or person, their lessees, trustees, receivers or trustees appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, controlling, operating or managing any heating plant for compensation within this state, except where heat is generated on or distributed by the producer through private property alone solely for his own use or the use of his tenants and not for sale to others.

(dd) The term "public utility," when used in this act, includes every common carrier, pipe line corporation, gas corporation, electrical corporation, telephone corporation, telegraph corporation, water corporation, wharfinger, warehouseman, and heat corporation, where the service is performed for or the commodity delivered to the public or any portion thereof. The term "public or any portion thereof" as herein used means the public generally, or any limited portion of the public including a person, private corporation, municipality or other political subdivision of the state, for which the service is performed or to which the commodity is delivered, and whenever any common carrier, pipe line corporation, gas corporation, electrical corporation, telephone corporation, telegraph corporation, water corporation, wharfinger, warehouseman or heat corporation performs a service or delivers a commodity to the public or any portion thereof for which any compensation or payment whatsoever is received, such common carrier, pipe line corporation, gas corporation, electrical corporation, telephone corporation, telegraph corporation, water corporation, wharfinger, warehouseman or heat corporation is hereby declared to be a public utility subject to the jurisdiction, control and regulation of the commission and the provisions of this act. Furthermore, when any person or corporation performs any service or delivers any commodity to any person or persons, private corporation or corporations, municipality or other political subdivision of the state, which in turn either directly or indirectly, mediately or immediately, perform such service or deliver such commodity to or for the public or some portion thereof, such person or persons, private corporation or corporations and each thereof is hereby declared to be a public utility and to be subject to the jurisdiction, control and regulation of the commission and to the provisions of this act."

Amendment adopted.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

On page 1, line 15, of the printed bill, strike out the "a" following the word "fifty".

Amendment adopted.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

On page 1, line 17, of the printed bill, strike out the "a" following the numeral "50".

Amendment adopted.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

On page 1, line 17, of the printed bill, after the period following the numeral "50" insert the following:

"(a) No railroad corporation whose railroad is operated primarily by electric energy, street railroad corporation, gas corporation, electrical corporation, telegraph corporation, telephone corporation or water corporation shall henceforth begin the construction of a street railroad, or of a line, plant, or system, or of any extension of such street railroad or line, plant, or system, without having first obtained from the commission a certificate that the present or future public convenience and necessity require or will require such construction; provided, that this section shall not be construed to require any such corporation to secure such certificate for an extension within any city and county, or city or town within which it shall have theretofore lawfully commenced operations, or for an extension into territory either within or without a city and county, or city or town, contiguous to its street railroad, or line, plant, or system, and not theretofore served by a public utility of like character, or for an extension within or to territory already served by it, necessary in the ordinary course of its business; nor shall any person, firm or corporation hereafter engage in the business of warehouseman, as defined in subdivision (aaa) of section 2 of this act, nor shall any warehouseman add to, extend, or otherwise increase his storage or warehouse floor space, without first having obtained from the commission a certificate that the present public convenience and necessity require the transaction of business as such warehouseman, or any addition, extension or increase of existing storage or warehouse floor space; and provided, further, that if any public utility, in constructing or extending its line, plant, or system, shall interfere or be about to interfere with the operation of the line, plant, or system of any other public utility, already constructed, the commission, on complaint of the public utility claiming to be injuriously affected, may, after hearing, make such order and prescribe such terms and conditions for the location of the lines, plants, or systems affected as to it may seem just and reasonable.

(b) No public utility of a class specified in subsection (a) hereof shall henceforth exercise any right or privilege under any franchise or permit hereafter granted, or under any franchise or permit heretofore granted but not heretofore actually exercised, or the exercise of which has been suspended for more than one year, without first having obtained from the commission a certificate that public convenience and necessity require the exercise of such right or privilege; provided, that when the commission shall find, after hearing, that a public utility has heretofore begun actual construction work and is prosecuting such work, in good faith, uninterruptedly and with reasonable diligence in proportion to the magnitude of the undertaking, under any franchise or permit heretofore granted but not heretofore actually exercised, such public utility may proceed, under such rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe, to the completion of such work, and may, after such completion, exercise such right or privilege; and provided, further, that this section shall not be construed to validate any right or privilege now invalid or hereafter becoming invalid under any law of this state.

(c) Before any certificate may issue, under this section, a certified copy of its articles of incorporation or charter, if the applicant be a corporation, shall be filed in the office of the commission. Every applicant for a certificate shall file in the office of the commission such evidence as shall be required by the commission to show that such applicant has received the required consent, franchise or permit of the proper county, city and county, municipal or other public authority. When a complaint has been filed with the commission alleging that a public utility of the class specified in subsection (a) of this section is engaged or is about to engage in construction work without having secured from the commission a certificate of public convenience and necessity as required by the provisions of this section, the commission shall have power, with or without notice, to make its order requiring the public utility complained of to cease and desist from such construction until the commission makes and files its decision on said complaint or until the further order of the commission. The commission shall have power, after hearing, to issue said certificate, as prayed for, or to refuse to issue the same, or to issue it for the construction of a portion only of the contemplated street railroad, line, plant or system, or extension thereof, or for the partial exercise only of said right or privilege, and may attach to the exercise of the rights granted by said certificate such terms and conditions, including provisions for the acquisition by the public of such franchise or permit and all rights acquired thereunder and all works constructed or maintained by authority thereof, as in its judgment the public convenience and necessity may require. If a public utility desires to exercise a right or privilege under a franchise or permit which it contemplates securing, but which has not as yet been granted to it, such public utility may apply to the commission for an order preliminary to the issue of the certificate. The commission may thereupon make an order declaring that it will thereafter, upon application, under such rules and regulations as it may prescribe, issue the desired certificate, upon such terms and conditions as it may designate, after the public utility has obtained the contemplated franchise or permit. Upon the presentation to the commission of evidence satisfactory to it that such franchise or permit has been secured by such public utility, the commission shall thereupon issue such certificate.

(d) The legislature hereby declares that the provisions of this section are being enacted under the state's reserved power over public utilities or corporations, or both, as the case may be, for the purpose of acting on the right of the grantee of a public utility franchise granted by a county, city and county, or incorporated city or town, to exercise rights thereunder, and not for the purpose of acting on the right of any city and county or incorporated city or town to grant any such franchise. The legislature hereby declares that the provisions of this section shall be and remain in full force and effect concurrently with the right of any city and county or incorporated city or town to grant franchises for public utilities upon the terms and conditions and in the manner prescribed by law."

Amendment adopted.

Bill read second time, and ordered to print, engrossment, and on file for third reading.

Senate Bill No. 401—An act providing rules and regulations governing reforestation, under which exemption from taxation may be obtained.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENTS.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendments were offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

On page 1 of the printed bill, strike out lines 1 and 2 of the title and in lieu thereof insert the following:

"An act to promote reforestation of lands suited to production of forest crops and providing for the assessment and taxation of such lands, specifying the method of classification of such lands for taxation purposes and placing certain discretionary powers in the state board of forestry and state forester."

Amendment adopted.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

On page 1 of the printed bill, strike out lines 1 to 5, both inclusive, and in lieu thereof insert the following:

"SECTION 1. Any land which, except for seed trees or scattered trees not profitably merchantable, is practically without timber of merchantable age but is restocking with a young growth of useful tree species or with proper care is suitable for the growing thereof and not obviously best adapted to early agricultural development, may at the option and request of the owner be separately classified for the purpose of taxation under the title "reforestation land" and when and while so classified shall be assessed and taxed in the manner set forth in this act in lieu of all other taxes, except such as may be imposed by law upon improvements other than forest growth.

SEC. 2. Classification under this act shall be by the state forester, who under such policy and regulations as may be prescribed by the state board of forestry shall determine whether all or part of any land covered by application therefor comes under the definition of the foregoing section and receives the care and protection hereinafter required. No land the owner of which fails to comply with the forest laws of the state and regulations thereunder or against which due taxes or forest protection charges remain unpaid shall be classified as "reforestation land" and classification may be revoked, in the discretion of the state board of forestry, for subsequent non-compliance or non-payment. If the state forester shall be satisfied that any land covered by application is reforesting satisfactorily, or will do so, without requirements additional to compliance with the fire and patrol laws and regulations thereunder, classification may be without further or special arrangement.

with the owner. If, at the time of application for classification, or subsequently, it appears that further steps are necessary to establish satisfactory reforestation, a contract to take such further steps and to perform the necessary additional requirements shall be entered into between the owner of the land and the state, through the state forester, in order to secure such classification or continuance thereof.

SEC. 3. Application for classification shall be made to the state forester upon blanks by him provided and contain such information as he requires: including legal description and plat of the tract or tracts, certificate by proper county officers as to last assessed valuation and payment of taxes due.

SEC. 4. When the state forester shall classify any land as "reforestation land", he shall certify to this effect to the owner and to the assessor of the county wherein it lies, forwarding the latter a plat and description thereof. Upon such certification to the county assessor said land and the forest growth then or thereafter thereon shall be separated for taxation purposes as long as said classification continues. The assessor when making the annual assessment shall assess only the value of the land and improvements alone, not enhanced by reason of forest growth thereon, and upon no higher basis than the minimum rate at which he assesses wild and unfor-ested land of the same character not separately classified under this act.

SEC. 5. Marketable forest products removed from the land shall be subject to taxation as are other crops without duplication of taxation to reach any profits thereon, or upon the business represented by their harvesting, which is not also borne by other crops.

SEC. 6. All taxes due under this act shall be due and collectible as other taxes in the state and subject to the same liens and processes of collection.

SEC. 7. Failure on the part of any owner of lands separately classified under this act to comply with any provision thereof or of any agreement upon which its classification is conditioned shall be cause for cancellation of the certificate of classification by the state forester, subject to the approval of the state board of forestry, following an opportunity for a hearing on the part of the owner, in which event the state forester shall notify the county assessor and the property shall be at once taxed: provided, that this section shall not prevent reclassification of the land without penalty at any time, by mutual consent of the owner and the state forester on behalf of the state.

SEC. 8. To the end that cutting of standing timber shall be conducted so as to place the land in the best condition for reforesting, uncut forest land may be subject to examination, plan and contract as provided for by this act and the separate classification of the land for taxation shall take effect within one year after the merchantable standing timber is cut and removed in full compliance with the terms of said contract."

Amendment adopted.

Bill read second time, and ordered to print, engrossment, and on file for third reading.

Senate Bill No. 656—An act to provide funds for the prevention and suppression of forest fires.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENTS.

During the second reading of the bill, the following committee amendments were offered:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

On page 1 of the printed bill, strike out lines 1 and 2 of the title and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"An act to require owners of forest lands to provide a fire patrol therefor."

Amendment adopted.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

On page 1 of the printed bill, strike out all of line 1, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"SECTION 1. Every owner of forest land in the State of California shall furnish or provide a sufficient and adequate fire patrol therefor during the season of the year when there is danger of forest fires, which patrol shall meet with the approval of the state board of forestry.

SEC. 2. For the purpose of this act a sufficient and adequate fire patrol shall be construed to mean one equal to that maintained by forest owners in this state who have entered into cooperative fire protection agreements with the state board of forestry under the provisions of chapter one hundred seventy-six, Statutes 1919, or who have entered into an agreement with the forest service of the United States Department of Agriculture, or equal to that maintained by owners of fifty per cent or more of forest land in the same localities, or under similar conditions in other localities, who are in good faith patrolling their lands against fire.

SEC. 3. In the event that any owner or owners shall fail or neglect to provide such fire patrol then the state forester shall under the direction of the state board of forestry provide the same at a cost not to exceed three cents per acre per annum; provided, that when in times and localities of unusual hazard, adequate protection of forest areas demands expenditures in excess of three cents per acre, the state forester with the approval of the state board of forestry, may, after thorough investigation of the need thereof, authorize and approve expense sufficient properly to safeguard the timber resources, but amounts so approved shall not exceed the actual cost of the work performed. Any amounts so paid or contracted to be paid by the state forester shall be due and payable immediately to the state forester who shall deposit it in the state treasury to the credit of the "state board of forestry fire prevention fund" hereinafter created. Any amount remaining unpaid for a period of thirty days shall become a lien upon the property protected in pursuance of this act. Notice of such lien shall be filed and recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the said property is situated within thirty days after the right to said lien has accrued and a copy of said notice of lien shall be mailed to the person or persons who appear of record to be the owners of any mortgage, trust deed, lien, contract, option, bond or other encumbrances to said property at the last known place of residence of said encumbrancer and if the place of residence of said encumbrancer be unknown to the state forester, then such fact shall be stated in said copy so mailed and it shall be addressed to the county seat of the county wherein said property is situated, such lien shall take precedence over and shall be paramount to all mortgages, trust deeds, liens, contracts, options, bonds or other encumbrances upon the land, excepting only the lien of taxes. If such sum secured by such lien be not paid within eighty days from the filing of such notice of lien then there shall be added to the same and secured by such lien a penalty of fifteen per cent on the amount of such lien. An action to foreclose such lien shall be commenced within eighty days after the filing and recording of said notice of lien, which action shall be brought in the proper court by the district attorney of the county in the name, and for the benefit of the state board of forestry, and when the property is sold, enough of the proceeds shall be paid into the treasury of the State of California and thereon deposited in a fund to be known as the "state board of forestry fire prevention fund" which fund is hereby created, to satisfy the lien and costs. The surplus, if there be any, shall be paid to the owner of the property if he be known, and if not, into the court for his use when ascertained.

By the second Monday of October in each year the state forester shall have prepared a list of all sums due to the state, and upon request of any forest land owner shall then render a statement of any sums from him so due, and upon further request such owner shall be granted a hearing before the state board of forestry concerning any activity of the said board or the state forester affecting his property or costs charged thereto for protection.

All moneys in the said "state board of forestry fire prevention fund" are hereby appropriated to the use of the state forester for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act and shall be paid out of said fund upon warrant of the state controller based upon claims to be filed by the state forester approved by the state board of control.

SEC. 4. For the purpose of this act any land shall be considered forest land which has enough forest growth standing or down or has sufficient inflammable forest debris to constitute, in the judgment of the state board of forestry, a fire menace to itself or adjoining land.

SEC. 5. The owner or owners of any land coming under the provisions of this act who shall reside within one and one-half miles of the further limits of said land, shall be considered by virtue of said residence to maintain a sufficient fire patrol and shall not be compelled to maintain any additional patrol on said lands.

SEC. 6. The state board of forestry is hereby authorized to prescribe necessary and proper rules and regulations and to do any and all things necessary to carry out and accomplish the purposes of this act.

SEC. 7. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act. The legislature hereby declares that it would have passed this act, and each section, subsection, sentence, clause and phrase thereof irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared unconstitutional.

SEC. 8. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed."
